Beauty.

The joy that beauty confers is of itself no mean or trifling thing. Pure and innocent pleasures are the best safeguards against unwholesome excitement. He who early learns and retains the habit of enjoying external beauty, and letting the influence sink deeply into his nature, will not be greatly exposed to temptation of gross or sensual nature. Beauty is eminently refining, purifying and ennobling. As the eye which perceives it is the most delicate and sensitive of all the bodily organs, and the most tender and refined of all the faculties. To cultivate and develop this sense is then to exalt the pleasure, to purify the desire, to refine the feelings, to ennoble the aims. No one can expand and intensify his sense of beauty without being a better man, and breathing out a sweeter influence than before. It may be as Socrates declares, that outward beauty is but the emblem of expression of what is lovely, grand, or noble in the unseen or spiritual world. Certain it is that they are closely akin, and they act and react upon each with the most perfect harmony. Whoever is imbued with the sense of beauty will involuntarynly create it around him. It will give a grace to his demeanor, a fitness to his word, a harmonious proportion to his conduct. Good taste and consistency will shine in his domestic arrangements and in his buisness affairs. Unconsciously, by his intercourse, he will develop the same power in others. Partaking of his pleasure and enthusiasm, they also will respond to the beauty around them with fresh joy and fervor. Let us, then, no longer neglect the culture of this important part of our nature. Let us open our eyes and our hearts to receive all the beauty that they are capable of taking in; let us welcome its pure delights, and hasten to shed them on others; let us give it a place in our daily life and thoughts, and let its presence ever in our homes, help to bless and purify them. —Philadelphia Ledger.

Ireland's Happy Future.

A kind friend has sent us a humorous brocure, with an illustration, representing two laborers in friendly converse about the future of Ireland, when she will be free from "the curse of landlordism"—and the responsibility of payin debts. Rediculous as the following reductio ad absurdum is, thousands of our thoughtless and confiding people entertain a dreamy notion, that some similar result—stripped a little of its poetry—will spring from the present agitation.

"I tell ye, Tim, as sure as that spade's in my fist, every mother's son of us'll be rale gintlemen, and we'll never do another stroke of work for ourselves nor for anybody else; the country'll be all our own to do as we like with it. We'll have no more judges, or juries, or lawyers, or 'turneys, or magistrates, or bailiffs; and, whisper Tim—I'm a feard to spake aloud—maby—it's just maybe—av the country goes on improvin', in a little time me might be able to do without their Riverinees too, and let them go over to convart the people in England and Scotland, and other haythen nations" * * * We'll allow no taxes no poorhouses, no jails, and no laws of any kind whatever, nor any of them sort of things that are a shame and disgrace to any free country. One man will be as good as another, and a deal betther too. We'll have as much land as we like and no rint to pay for it. We may say what we like, and do what we like, and no one dar say a word to us. No Saxon will iver agin show his nose in our beautiful counthry, and av he does, he'll go away without it. Not a bit of our good beef, mutton, nor pork, nor butter they'll ever taste again. We'll starve every one of them. We'll 'Byeott' every man and woman of them from the Queen down, and they desarve it. Oh, Tim, won't those be glorious times? Then they may sarch Ireland from one end to the other for a landlord or agent and not catch as much as one hidin' in a hole that we could put into a museum for a curosity. We'll be the contintedest, the happiest, the richest, the grandest people undher the sun, and the envy and the wonder of the world."

In his work on India, Dr. Woods gives a curious account of the manner in which native robbers often contrive to evade pursuers by posturing as trees. An officer, with a party of horse, was chasing a small body of Bheel robbers, and was fast overtaking them. Suddenly the robbers ran behind a rock, or some such obstacle, which hid them for a moment, and when the soldiers came up the men had mysteriously disappeared. After unavailing search the officer ordered his men to dismount beside a clump of scorched and withered trees, and the day being very hot, he took off his helmet and hung it on a branch near which he was standing. The branch turned out to be the body of a Bheel, who burst into a scream of laughter, and flung the astonished officer to the ground. The clump of scorched trees suddenly became metamorphosed into men, and the whole party dispersed into different directions before the Englishmen could recover from their surprise, carrying with them the officers helmet by way trophy.

Cetywayo, the Zulu ex-King, is to be released from his close confinment in Cape Town Castle, and allowed to live on a farm in the neighborhood of the city. He will thus, in all probability, become a neighbor of the Fatal chief Langalibalele, who has for some years been provided with a similar residence. So far as health and beauty of surroundings are concerned, Cetywayo has nothing to complain of. His dwelling will be in the midst of a dry, breeze-swept, heath covered flat, with a magnificent view of Table Mountain constantly before his eyes.

Kossuth is now living in a pleasant villa near Turin. Although nearly seventy-nine years old, he is in good health, and his intellect is unimpaired. He spends a great deal of his time in studying natural science.

Italy has decided to construct another colossal iron-clad, superior to anything now afloat.

Toads.

French industry and sagacity took the lead of the world in little things, if nothing more. Toad culture is a regular business there with the economic people, and the demand for toads is great and increasing. The useful little animals are employed as insect destroyers, not only in the gardens of that country, but thousands of them are packed down in baskets of damp moss and sent to other countries to be sold to gardeners. The more observing horticulturists and florticulturists have long been aware of their value as insect destroyers, and have utilized them to a greater or less extent. And it is not much to the credit of American gardiners and farmers that they have never recognized the service of it is helpful and innocent reptile. Nature conducts her operations by reciprocal means, and if she gives us the hurtful insects to eat up our crops, she also gives us the birds, toads, etc., to eat up the insects. The farmers should keep a close eye on nature, and seek to make her manifold operations helpful, instead of casting hindrance in the way by destroying her agents. The successful farmer has great need to be a good economic naturalist. Many things, as loathesome looking as the toad, are the farmer's friend.

An engagement took place recently in Senegal, between 1,500 natives and 150 French infantry in which 100 natives and 22 Frenchmen were killed or wounded.

Our devil informs us that he has a few spare evenings during the next two weeks when he will be able to attend some of the taffy pulls to which he expects urgent invitations.

A CUTE YANKEE has invented a nest, in the bottom of which there is a kind of trap door, through which the egg, when laid immediately drops; and the hen, looking round and perceiving none, soon lays another!

HE WAS TELLING of a sad catastrophe where a bucket of earth went crashing upon a laborer in the well. "Oh, it was pitifull" exclaimed a young lady listener. "No," it wasn't, marm, "was his quick contradiction; "it was a pailful. I was there and seen the whole on't."

The Irish M. P. who has lately implored ministers not to "raise up a chasam between England and Ireland" has distinguished himself again. He remarked a night or two ago that "after England had crushed the last sigh out of Ireland she would be deaf to all Ireland's complaints!"

A Countryman saw, for the first time, a school-girl going through some of her gymnastic exercises for the amusement of the little ones at home. After gazing at her with looks of interest and commiseration for a while he asked a boy near by "if that gal had fits." "No," replied the lad, contemptuously, "that's gymnastics," "Oh 'tis, hey!" said the verdant; "how long has she had em?"

Although Dr. Gywn Jeffreys has, during a period of between forty and fifty years, dredged, as an explorer, all the seas of the British Isles, besides a considerable part of those on the coast of North America, Greenland, Norway, France, Spain, Portugal, Morroco, and Italy, he never found anything of value except to a naturalist, nor any human bones, although many thousand human beings must have perished in those seas.

Do not let prejudice stand in the way of relief if you suffer from any lingering disease. Burdock Blood Bitters cure others, why should it not benefit you? It is a specific for all forms of Blood, Liver, and Kidney Complaints, Nervous Headaches, General Debility, Scrofula and all diseases of the Secretory system. Trial Bottles 10 Cents.—b160.

Two men in Paris have been sentenced to eight month's imprisonment for playcarding addresses congratulating the Nihilists on the assassination of the Czar.

A Mistake.

It is a great and often fatal mistake to take repeated drastic purgatives for constipation of the bowels, they induce pile and cause debility of the bowels. Burdock Blood Bitters is a safe and perfect regulator of the bowels, arousing the torpid Liver and all the secretions to a healhy action acting on the Kidneys, and renovating and toning the system in the most perfect manner.—b160.

When Mr. Edward Wymper was on this side of Chimborazo, in the course of an exploration of the peaks of the Andes, in Equador, he saw a grand eruption of Cotopaxi. Ashes rose in a column not less than 20,000 feet above the rim of the crater, and then expanded over an area of many miles. Two million tons of matter were ejected in this single eruption, and the particles of the ashes were so fine that in some samples, it required no less than 25,000 to make a grain in weight.
