Trustee raises

Outgoing board to set stipend

YORK CTY. — Future salary reviews for York County Board of Education trustees will be completed in the second month prior to an election and changes made effective when a new board assumes office.

Speaking at a recent meeting of the board, Georgina trustee, William Laird said he had presented the motion because he felt the timing of the last increase was "bad".

"I still maintain it is a trustee's responsibility to set allowances for an incoming board," he said, "although I object strongly to the view put out by others, previously, that raising salaries will attract a better class of trustee in the next election."

At present, the Ministry of Education rules that allowances be set by incoming council. A motion, made by King trustee Margaret Coburn, to ask the minister to review the method of setting salaries, was lost.

"I couldn't support that motion," Markham trustee Donald Cousens said. "Salaries are important but there are other matters with more immediate ramifications and I'd much rather approach the ministry on more important issues."
