HANGED BUT STILL ALIVE

REMARKABLE CASE OF A CONVICT IN KANSAS.

Escaped Lynching, Convicted, Sentenced and May Get Second Trial — The Pleading of a Farmer

Kansas City, Aug. 7.—The action of the supreme court in sending the case of murderer James Hamilton back to Butler county for a new trial has a peculiar interest from the fact that Hamilton was hanged by the neck through a space of more than one hour, and yet lived to describe the frightful sensations which he underwent while swinging at the end of a rope.

In the spring of 1900, Hamilton killed George J. Webb, his boss, while working on a railroad not far from Eureka. The men had quarreled and Hamilton seized an axe and split Webb's head, causing instant death. He was captured by the other laborers and strung up to a tree. The men were not, however, expert in tying the hangman's knot, and the rope did not compress Hamilton's neck tight enough to entirely shut off his breath.

After he had hung more than an hour a farmer who chanced to be passing cut him down, but the men who had been watching from a distance at once closed in and prepared to hang him again. And then followed a strange yet inspiring thing.

The farmer stood over the body of the unconscious man and pleaded with the mob to let the law take its course. Little by little he won them over, until at last they consented to take Hamilton to El Dorado, and turn him over to the authorities.

He was tried, convicted and sentenced to twenty-one years in the penitentiary. His attorney appealed the case to the supreme court on a technicality. In the trial he had asked certain of the witnesses if they had not taken part in the hanging. The county attorney objected to this question and the court ruled it out. The court decided that the question was proper and sent the case back for a new trial.

THE MINERS' CRISIS.

Can Mitchell Keep Up Strike and Prevent Disorder.

Philadelphia Times.

No rule of public responsibility applies to one side in this controversy that does not apply to the other. The officers and leaders of the Miners' Union have shown that they understand this. They have given their pledges from the first that this should be a peaceful strike; that there should be no violence or lawless intimidation, and that their cause was to be won solely by abstaining from work until necessity should compel the employers to accede to their demands. Is this pledge to be fulfilled or not?

This is the question that now presses on John Mitchell. On the answer depends absolutely the solution of the present crisis. The time has arrived which he must have foreseen, when his authority, or the integrity of his position, must be put to a supreme test. The operators can no longer resist the importunate public demand for a resumption of mining.

If Mr. Mitchell's authority, through the organization which he directs, is sufficient to prevent resumption, by the lack of competent workmen, they must come to him. If he has not sufficient authority to restrain his men from riot and murder and forcible interference with peaceful men who prefer to work, his organization is no longer entitled to respect and cannot look for recognition.

There should be no misapprehension upon either side of the attitude of public opinion, which must be always the supreme arbiter in the end. Sympathy has been largely with the men, whose grievances are believed to be real; and the refusal of the operators to accept the proffered arbitration has strengthened the prepossession in the miners' favor.

But the basis of this judgment is in the belief that the miners' organization is a lawful and honorable agency for the protection of the legitimate interests of the men and that it has both the power and the will to conduct the strike by lawful means to a lawful end. If it fail in this now, if it prove itself an agency of lawlessness and crime, or incapable of restraining its members and adherents from lawlessness, it has no longer any excuse for existence and public sentiment will have no more patience with it.

Heroic Judges.

If there are no heroes in British Columbia jails there must be some on the bench in this great free country. To sentence a young editor to practically twenty-one months in prison without a trial by jury is an act of heroism that few judges have ever displayed in this age.

LATEST FASHION NOTES.

A Pretty Blouse Of Liberty Satin Described.

There is greater latitude in the cut of sleeves than that of any other portion of the feminine costume. The range in style from the perfectly plain coat sleeve made somewhat larger than formerly and usually furnished with a cuff, to the immense flowing sleeve, comparatively small at the shoulders, and increasing in size as it descends, nearly or quite covering the hand. The latter type is found more frequently upon the more elaborate of the long silk coats. A medium among these various types of sleeve is seen here. In this the fullness is arranged in tucks which are allowed to escape at the elbow, forming a puff which is gathered into a small close cuff. The blouse is made of Liberty satin, laid in tucks and stitched with Corticelli silk in such a way as to produce the effect of puffs. These are mounted upon a yoke of plain material which is defined by straps, embroidered in Corticelli filo to imitate the gay Bulgarian embroidery now so fashionable.

Every Cottage Taken.

Gananoque Journal.

We may say that every cottage in the immediate vicinity of Gananoque, with one exception, is now occupied. Hundreds of people from a distance are now summering on the St. Lawrence at this point, and the influx of strangers makes quite a noticeable addition to our population. It is many years since there were so many people on the islands in this vicinity.

WILL 1883 BE REPEATED?

FACTS FROM WHICH TO OBTAIN PRACTICAL ANSWER.

Singular Analogies Between the Situation To-day and That of Twenty Years Ago.

There are various singular analogies between the present financial year and that of 1882—twenty years ago. Historically, the matter is curious; for not only did 1901, with its wild outburst of public speculation, 1900, with its high tide of real industrial prosperity, and 1899, with its huge grain exports and meagre imports, reproduce rather closely the incidents of 1881, 1880, and 1879, but the parallel for the industrial misery of 1894 and the acute financial panic of 1893 can hardly be found short of 1874 and 1873. The financial world, which always, and properly, looks to the future rather than to the past, is less anxious to know whether last year duplicated 1881 than to guess whether 1883 will be duplicated by the coming twelve months.

There are some facts from which a partial answer may be framed. In one direction there are forces at work which resemble with singular accuracy the forces which started the ebb tide of 1883. But in another direction forces which at this time twenty years ago were visibly at work cannot now be discerned at all. It is now a matter of well-accepted financial history that this year in the last great "boom" was marked by most strenuous efforts of powerful capitalists to disentangle themselves from their heavy security holdings. Better than anyone else in the seething flood of Wall street they knew both the present and prospective value of the enterprises which they owned. They were aware, moreover, when it was time to withdraw and convert their purely speculative undertakings into cash. The characteristic phenomenon of the time was the struggle of the Goulds and Vanderbilts of the day to shift their load without loss over to the public's back, and no one can doubt that the same thing is going on to-day. It does not need pessimism to point out such a fact; it merely requires some power of observation and a little common-sense. It is the perfectly obvious inference from such striking episodes as that of the Rock Island.

In August, 1882, however, there were two clouds, very much larger than a man's hand, which had already overshadowed the horizon of the markets. The railway rates were one, and the other was the iron market. By the early autumn of that prototype of the present year every important western railway was at its neighbor's throat; and, with the resultant cancelling of construction plans, the fabric of prosperous iron prices fell. These movements were visible to the close observers by midsummer; they are not visible at all to-day.

The Principal Resigns.

The adjourned meeting of the separate school board took place last night. There were present: Rev. Fr. Kehoe, chairman; J. J. Behan, T. J. Leahy, Dr. Ryan, James Loughrin, Edward McFadden and W. Duffy. J. P. McNamara, principal of St. Mary's school, tendered his resignation, as he proposes taking a college course. The resignation was accepted, and the secretary instructed to advertise for a new principal. Owing to an increase in the size of one class and the decrease in the size of another, Miss Brannigan's class and Miss Anderson's class will exchange rooms in order to better accommodate the pupils. The usual repairs will be made to the school in preparation for the opening of the fall term.

Light Weight Coats And Vests.

Prevost, of the New York clothing store, Brock street, has a splendid assortment of light-weight coats and vests; the proper garments for summer wear. His summer coats at $1 and $1.50 are special value, sizes 34 to 46. See his window, great variety to choose from.

The Flags Are Mixed.

A "Mariner" writes to the Whig and asks by what right the Stars and Stripes float from the stern of a Canadian built steamyacht plying in Canadian waters, even though the owner is a citizen of the United States? As the steamyacht is Canadian built, she must be Canadian registered and therefore should fly the Union Jack astern, not on the bow. The writer calls the attention of the customs authorities to this fact.

A Well-Developed Case.

A young Princess street hatter and a well-known citizen employed in an educational office went on a fishing trip yesterday to the Three Brothers Islands. Their "catch" consisted of two bites. On the way home they encountered a rough sea, and the last mentioned citizen developed a fine case of mal de mere. His friends had the laugh on him to-day, that one of his experience should get sea-sick.

STUFFED SUCCESSFULLY.

New Business Promoted by the Dominion Government.

The Dominion dairy commissioner, Prof. Robertson and Dr. Fletcher, of the Dominion experimental farm, have gone to the maritime provinces. Prof. Robertson is to deliver four lectures on chicken fattening in Prince Edward Island. The industry has already been demonstrated a success in that province. Four stations are already in operation there under the care of the government and the farmers are showing a tendency to go into the artificial fattening business on their own account. Although very little had been said about it the industry was destined to become one of the most important of the agricultural stock raising communities of the lower provinces. The chief articles of food are oats and skim milk, and this is why Prince Edward Island has been so successful in this particular industry.

The shipments to England on steamers provided with cold storage appliances have been such as to justify the promoters in declaring that the industry has already passed the experimental stage, and now takes its place with butter and cheese, and the other permanently established industries of the lower provinces, and especially Prince Edward Island. The chickens fattened at the stations just mentioned brought from 6¾d. to 9d. per pound, and the profits were thus very considerable. Mr. Robertson explained that the chickens were bought from the farmers when two months old, and fattened at the stations, the farmers here finding a market for all he may raise. In fact, the stations have been so successful that farmers have, in many cases, undertaken the industry on their own account, and the probability is that the government will, in time, dispossess itself of the stations in question, as the farmers will, in the near future, understand the secret of successfully raising and exporting chickens. The Dominion government had, in fact, established a station at Truro, N.S., and the project had succeeded so well that the Nova Scotia government has taken it over and will run it themselves.

Another object of Prof. Robertson's present visit to the eastern provinces is to bring about the choice of localities for the consolidated rural schools, destined for the several provinces of the dominion by Sir William Macdonald's generous donation.

Black River Bridge Ripples.

Black River Bridge, Aug. 5.—Farmers are more than busy harvesting. Samuel Jarvis and William Steele, have each purchased a new binder. The first quarterly meeting for the year was held in the Methodist church here on Sunday. A large crowd was in attendance. Victor York has returned to his home at Battersea. Mr. and Mrs. Albert Waghorn, spending the season at Cherry Valley, have returned to their home here. Mr. Waghorn is very poorly and is under the doctor's care. William Mack is still very poorly. Miss Geraldine Delaney, Syracuse, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Norman Hobson, here, this week. Mrs. Dennis O'Shea is under the doctor's care. Dropsy and heart failure are the causes. B. Wilson Hubbs, Picton, late of California, is this week visiting his brothers, Charles and Alva. The following are rusticating in this section: Mr. and Mrs. William Kelly, Jr., Syracuse, N.Y., at William Kelly's; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene J. Shannon and son, Toronto, and Miss Helen Shannon, Rochester, at John Shannon's; Mrs. Myers, Toronto, and Miss Bertha Crosby, Roblin's Mills, at Samuel Jarvis'. A. E. Grimmon is in Kingston this week.

Suffered A Sunstroke.

Collins Bay, Aug. 7.—Rev. Mr. Gibson preached in the Methodist church on Sunday evening. A large number from here attended the Free Methodist camp meeting at Westbrook on Sunday evening. We were sorry to learn of the death of Mrs. Martha McDonald, an old resident of our village, who died at Ernesttown Station last week. Mrs. Henry Woodcock is very ill. A few from here attended the celebration at Bath on Wednesday. James Waller had a sunstroke on Wednesday afternoon, while working in the field. The hotel in the village has changed hands. Mr. McConnel, Westbrook, took possession Friday. Alexander Darragh has taken up residence in one of J. J. Losee's houses. Miss Frances Smith returned to Parrott's Bay on Thursday after spending two weeks with her cousin, Miss Laura Clement. Visitors: Marsh Woodcock, at his brother's, Alexander Woodcock; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Clement at Deseronto; Mrs. Magdonald and children, Cleveland, at George Marsh's; Miss Edna Asselstine at Elginburg.

Three Tired Fishermen.

Thursday three employees of the St. Lawrence River Steamboat company went down the river on a fishing cruise. They anchored off the Spectacle Islands and became so exhausted hauling up fish that they found it necessary to pull ashore for a rest. They fell asleep and did not awake until the stars were high overhead. They then had a weary row home.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

NEVER SO NUMEROUS AS IN PRESENT COMBINATIONS.

The Field for Capacity and Ability was Never Greater—The Young Man Was Never so Many as Now.

Philadelphia Ledger.

It is far from our intent to say that some trusts and trust methods are not bad and tyrannous, but it is preposterous to contend that the young man is not needed in the modern world or that he cannot or does not win his reward. Large business enterprises rests upon one essential, and that is extraordinary ability, training and force of character in the individuals employed. Trusts, good or bad, cannot succeed in business without capable men, and it is safe to say that never in the world's history were the rewards so great or so numerous as they are at this hour in the United States for ability, training and character.

It is true, "the busy world shoves aside the man who stands with arms akimbo set," and, as the world is busier than it ever was before, it shoves impatiently. And now, as ever, the good and the just sometimes meet with misfortune, but there never was such a field for capacity and ability; and in spite of faults in the world which always remain there never was such a "prodigious spectacle of human happiness" and comfort as the United States presents to-day.

Evils exist and always have; they will be resisted, checked and mastered, not by those who weakly despair because the ideal has not been reached; but by that buoyant, courageous and wholly optimistic people who, from the formation of this government, have been constantly performing a series of what appeared to the rest of the world impossibilities.

As for the young man, there never were so many of him as the last census recorded, and he never played so prominent a part and never was so well paid as now. He is not in danger, nor is the individual, old or young. The business of the world is not done automatically yet; no giants "mold the world like soft wax," and the individuals who do the work will demand and receive their reward, even if the president should not succeed in slaying any trust dragons.

BOTTLES FULL OF MONEY

Are Being Found All Over the Yard.

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 8.—In the backyard of a home in the German section of the city has been found part of a fortune which disappeared when its supposed owner, Dr. J. G. Scheureman, died eight years ago. He was supposed to be wealthy, but the $15,000 which he was supposed to have accumulated could not be found.

Yesterday the owner of his old home Mrs. Martha S. Hille, found a bottle of gold pieces in the yard. Search revealed another bottle, with the diagram of the yard indicating where more bottles were to be found. Now a guard of special detectives surrounds the house and yard night and day, keeping off those would would dig for the hidden treasure. The owner of the land refuses to say how much she has discovered already, but it is said to be nearly $10,000. Surrounded by the special officers, Mrs. Hille is digging industriously at intervals, bringing to light bottles of gold or paper money as the case may be.

Bath Brevities.

Bath, Aug. 8.—Mr. Trotter has returned to Rochester, N.Y., after visiting at E. McKenty's for two weeks. Mrs. and Miss Deacon, Belleville, visiting at D. T. Rowse's, have returned home. Miss Laura Armstrong is at present very ill. Lorne Covert has returned to Rochester, N.Y., after visiting his parents here for a few weeks. Mrs. William H. Hall, very sick for the past week, is beginning to slowly improve in health. Fred. K. Baker, Guelph, paid his many friends here a short visit the forepart of this week. M. Forrester, near Guelph, accompanied him on a visit to his brother, John Forrester. William McGuinn is very happy; a young son having arrived at his home. Daniel Grant, Toronto, formerly of this place, visited here this week.

Women And Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insiduous consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boschee's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure-all, but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get this reliable remedy at Wade's drug store.

"FORCE" FOOD CO.
Buffalo, N. Y.

I have introduced "FORCE" at my breakfast table, and must say it is the most pleasant breakfast dish I have ever found. The ordinary breakfast foods, while of nourishing properties, are to me more or less unpalatable, and after their use for a week or so I have become tired and sought a change; thus it has gone from one food or preparation to another. I have gotten so now that I look forward with expectancy to my breakfast, which is something I have not done in a long time, and as the "FORCE" Food is at my plate every morning, I eat it with the greatest relish. I don't say this as "taffy" or flattery, but it is an honest fact that I think "FORCE" Food is the most delectable breakfast dish I have ever tasted for its health-giving qualities. Its crispness and savory flavor is something new and unrivalled.

Yours very sincerely,
Name sent on application.
