TWO OPEN LETTERS

IMPORTANT TO MARRIED WOMEN

Mrs. Mary Dimmick of Washington tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well.

It is with great pleasure we publish the following letters, as they convincingly prove the claim we have so many times made in our columns that Mrs.

Mrs. Mary Dimmick

Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., is fully qualified to give helpful advice to sick women. Read Mrs. Dimmick's letters.

Her first letter:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I have been a sufferer for the past eight years with a trouble which first originated from painful menstruation—the pains were excruciating, with inflammation and ulceration of the womb. The doctor says I must have an operation or I cannot live. I do not want to submit to an operation if I can possibly avoid it. Please help me."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, Washington, D. C.

Her second letter;

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"You will remember my condition when I last wrote you, and that the doctor said I must have an operation or I could not live. I received your kind letter and followed your advice very carefully and am now entirely well. As my case was so serious it seems a miracle that I am cured. I know that I owe not only my health but my life to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to your advice. I can walk miles without an ache or a pain, and I wish every suffering woman would read this letter and realize what you can do for them."—Mrs. Mary Dimmick, 50th and East Capitol Streets, Washington, D. C.

How easy it was for Mrs. Dimmick to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and how little it cost her—a two-cent stamp. Yet how valuable was the reply! As Mrs. Dimmick says—it saved her life.

Mrs. Pinkham has on file thousands of just such letters as the above, and offers ailing women helpful advice.

ALL TASTED HAM

Every Person Attending Exhibit Could Try Ham.

Berlin, March 13.—The great German ham exhibition at the Kaiserhof Hotel here came to an untimely end the second day of its existence.

Every province in the fatherland sent its best hams to the Kaiserhof, and 1,000 specimens of all kinds, from the mighty hams of Westphalia to the delicate small ones of South Germany, were on show amid a profusion of flowers and greenery.

Each purchaser of an admission ticket was entitled to taste a number of hams, and give his vote for the one he considered best. Following the advice of a famous Tammany Hall politician, the public "came early and voted often," with the result that the exhibit had been devoured by visitors on the day following the opening of the show.

HORRIBLE TRAGEDY RECALLS VIAU-PARSLOW MURDER.

Wallace McCraw, Accused by Mrs. Percy Howard Sclater of Having Killed Her Husband—Woman Admits Illicit Relations With Accused.

Three Rivers, Que., March 13.—The whole district of Three Rivers is worked up over the terrible murder of Percy Howard Sclater, at his home in Grand Anse, seventy-five miles up the St. Maurice river, on Sunday week.

Wallace McGraw, voyageur, a young man of twenty-five years of age, is in jail here, awaiting his preliminary investigation on Monday, March 20th, on a charge of murder, while Mrs. Sclater, the widow of the murdered man, is held under surveillance, at the residence of Constable Theodore Beaulieu, who, under orders from Chief Detective McCaskill, arrested the prisoner.

The case in many points resembles that of Cordelia Viau and Sam Parslow, who were hanged at Ste. Scholastique some years ago, for the murder of the woman's husband. Mrs. Sclater has admitted that she had illicit relations with McGraw for some months previous to the murder, and that she indicated to him the place where she had hidden the revolver with which the deed was committed.

Grande Anse, the scene of the murder, is a stopping place for Hudson Bay employees and the men portaging supplies to the posts, as well as to the lumber camps on the Upper St. Maurice River. Percy Howard Sclater, the victim, was a man of nearly forty years of age, who had been for some ten years a clerk in the employ of the Hudson Bay company, and had married a daughter of Robert Skeene, the factor of the company, at Cacoocach, near the junction of the Riviere Croche, or Crooked River, with the St. Maurice. He was a man of some education and good connections, but had lost in his years of intercourse with the wild shantymen and the Indians, most of the polish which he at one time undoubtedly possessed. His wife and the other people connected with the case are, for the most, untutored children of the wilds, among whom the animal traits and passions are fully developed, while the moral and intellectual faculties lie almost dormant.

The "little woman," as she is called by most of those who speak of her, for she is hardly five feet in height, and weighs about ninety pounds, is unable to read or write, and speaks broken French and English, though she can speak Indian with great volubility. She is not bad looking, although she is very much broken up and there is a vague look in her eyes. It is said there is a strain of Indian blood in her veins, and it is not unlikely that such is the case, for she exhibits the stolidity of that race, while her tone of voice is somewhat like that of the Indian.

Her father, Robert Skeene, is well known by the river men, as well as by many of those who go hunting in the upper portion of the district, while he is acquainted with many people in this city. He is regarded as a good man in his business, and enjoys a good reputation for many years back, although he had some exciting episodes in his earlier years. One story told is that somewhat over twenty years ago, while he was at work in Michigan, in company with Theodule Beaulieu, the very man who has charge of the old man's daughter, a murder was committed. Bob Skeene as he was then and is still known, was thought to be in a position to throw some light on the affair, but he skipped out and could not be found. The real murderer, however, was found out and punished.

Wallace McCraw, the prisoner, is a peculiar type. He denies that he has any Indian blood, but he certainly looks the typical half-breed. He is a giant in stature, but slight though strong of build, with arched shoulders. His mother, who was a Miss de Coteaux, of Three Rivers, was a milliner, and in her day was regarded as one of the best dressed and proudest young girls in this town. His father is said to be a quiet easy-going man. The young man has been employed for a number of years as a voyageur, although he is only twenty-four years of age. He is far from prepossessing in appearance; with bronzed colored complexion and a straight broad nose, which looks as if it were artificial and had been placed on his face after the other features. He has thick sensual lips and large ox-like eyes. He is said to have been very fond of the little woman, and declared, so some of the witnesses at the inquest stated, that he would kill her husband, if necessary, to get her. He denies, however, that any illicit relations existed between the wife of his former employer and himself, and protests his innocence. He does not seem to be very much alarmed, although at times his twitching face gives the lie to the assumption of indifference which he effects.

He declared yesterday morning to Chief McCaskill that he was not at all alarmed. "She cannot swear she saw me shoot her husband, she cannot prove it," he remarked, referring to Mrs. Sclater's charge that he was the murderer. The unfortunate fellow has evidently never heard of circumstantial evidence.

Chief Detective McCaskill has established a new record in this case. He had not been more than half an hour in Grandes Piles, where McCraw and Chandonnet were awaiting his arrival, when he had obtained from Mrs. Sclater an admission that she had told McCraw where her husband's revolver was kept, and that she knew McCraw had killed Sclater. She was confronted with McCraw, and maintained her statement. She declared that she had been afraid of her life of McCraw, who had threatened her life if she did not tell him where the revolver was, and afterwards renewed the threat if she dared to tell of her knowledge of the affair. She had begun by telling the detective the same story she had told the coroner's jury, but when Mr. McCaskill pointed out that her story did not hold water, she wavered and finally made the charge against McCraw.

The prisoner, in his conversation before his arrest, and even in his evidence before the coroner, tried to convey the impression that Mrs. George Skeene, the half-breed woman, had something to do with the affair, as Sclater had repeatedly threatened her life, and he says she told him Sunday, a few hours before the tragedy, the she would kill Sclater.

ADVICE FROM HEADQUARTERS

To the Farmers and Grazers of Canada.

Toronto, March 6.—(To the Farmers and Grazers of Ontario): D. McDonald, of McDonald & Maybee, live stock commission agents of Toronto, has spent a great portion of the last eight years on the American markets as live stock agent, and has handled a great number of Canadian cattle, sheep and lambs, which have been exported out of Ontario for sale. The farmers and grazers of Ontario are losing a great deal of money every year through their neglect in not looking after their stock and making it suitable for the markets. The farmers are losing 75c. per cwt. on their lambs every year that they neglect to surgically treat, equal to 75c. per head. There were 10,000 lambs imported to the United States markets last year and a large number of these had to be culled out and reduced prices taken. The trade in this branch of the stock business has changed wonderfully, and if the farmers would prepare them suitably there is no reason why they should not be sold on our own market at as good an advantage. Agents can secure orders for a great proportion of those lambs, providing they come to our market in good state.

D. McDonald spent last month on the Chicago and New York markets, trying to work up a trade for Canadian markets, and the reason that he could not secure orders was that the lambs that come to Toronto market are too bucky, and not suitable for the American butchers and exporters. They said they were willing to deal if we could secure the quality their market demands. The lighter lambs could be picked out and sold to the farmers for feeding, which is becoming a great industry, and the lambs fit for the market could be sold to the best advantage. Surely you do not want to throw away your money when it can be saved with very little trouble. A large proportion of our best lambs are exported when they are ewes and wethers, and they call for the highest prices on the British markets. Our lambs, if properly handled, at the age of nine months will average in weight from 120 to 125 pounds, while the American farmers have to hold their lambs for one year and a half to make them weigh 130 pounds. This goes to show that we have a superior quality in Ontario, and they can be sold for as good a price on our own local market as they can be on any other market. Of the lambs offered on the Toronto market fully 70 per cent. have been bucks, and when we have an over-supply they cannot be handled unless at sacrifice prices.

There is no outlet for these buck lambs which have to be used by local butchers; whereas, if they came suitable for the different markets, the sheep and lambs could be handled fully as well on Toronto market as they can be on any other market, as Buffalo is only a distributing point. Why should we build up the Buffalo markets when we can handle them equally as well on our own. Our Toronto market is about the third largest in America, and if the farmers look after the sheep and lambs properly, the dealers will protect them. We have as good dealers on Canadian markets as are on any other market. The only thing that they ask the farmers is to give them their stock so that it can be properly distributed. This is the reason to look after this important trade, and it will be well repaid.

The cattle branch has been greatly neglected through farmers not dehorning their cattle. On the United States market horned cattle for grazing are not worth within 35c. per cwt. of the dehorned cattle, and the largest portion of the better farmers will not buy horned cattle if they can secure them dehorned. The horned cattle ship badly, are usually bruised, and their hides scored. Butchers and exporters have to be particular, and watch these points closely. The cattle trade is figured closely, and exporters and butchers cannot afford to buy the cattle to lose on them from $2 to $4 per head on account of bruises. The trade is changing rapidly, and farmers will have to live up to the times if they want to compete. United States exporters and butchers say we are twenty years behind the times, and that we do not know how to get our stock ready for the market. The Chicago market is ruling our market, and it is only within a few years that our shippers have paid any attention to the Chicago market. It is, not because cattle in Western Ontario are inferior in quality, for there is no better. Our farmers should dehorn their cattle and fatten them well, and they will get as much as any market will demand. You can at Chicago get train-load after train-load and every one of them dehorned cattle. Exporters and butchers have the United States farmers trained to know what they want, and they do not get bruised beef or scored hides.

CONSPIRACY OF MONTREAL ELECTORS SHOWN UP.

Sir W. Macdonald's Great Educational Plans Unfolded—Will Put Up Buildings at Ste. Anne—Will Endow Normal School.

Special to the Whig.

Montreal, March 13.—J. G. Trenholm rendered a judgment, this morning, which means that the trial of the men, Bissonnette and others, charged with conspiracy in connection with the late St. Antoine division election of the House of Commons, must go on. This case has attracted a great deal of attention for some time following the election, in view of the sensational arrests in time to stop what was believed to be a big conspiracy to defeat Alderman Ames, the sitting member. The defence hoped to quash the indictment, which has been refused, and the men must now stand their trial.

The elaborate educational plans of Sir William Macdonald were unfolded, to-day, at a meeting of the Protestant council of the public schools of the province of Quebec, a scheme which is said to involve the expenditure of millions of money. In addition to the agricultural college, which Sir William will build at Ste. Anne De Bellevue, he now proposes to establish a normal school for the training of teachers, in close proximity to the agricultural college. Two buildings for male and female students will be erected, at which the students can live. He will endow the normal school, and it is only a matter of procedure as to how the school will be conducted, and its relations to the provincial committee.

In Horrible Plight.

Paris, March 13.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Petit Journal says that the disaster surpasses in horror all that could be imagined. The miserable Russian soldiers, seized with madness, fired upon one another. Others charged trees with their bayonets, taking them for Japanese. Many of the troops threw themselves on the ground, weeping and making the sign of the cross. Gen. Kuropatkin still lives, but with only 150,000 wretched men, who have no bread and no ammunition, and whose one idea is to escape from the 300,000 Japanese and Chunchuses, who, drunk with slaughter and carried away with enthusiasm of victory, are shooting them down as they lose their way in the mountains and ravines. The magnificent divisions so patiently concentrated are mere debris to-day. All the siege artillery that crowned the heights around Mukden, and more than 300 field guns are in the hands of the Mikado's troops.

WAS AFFECTED.

The Women's Appeal to the Empress.

Special to the Whig.

London, March 13.—A despatch from St. Petersburg says that the czarina has been much affected by an appeal sent to her by the women of Moscow. The appeal bearing thousands of signatures, read in part as follows:

"We Russian women, mothers, wives and sisters of the warriors who are shedding their blood in the far east, for the beloved fatherland, address ourselves to you, O Sovereign, believing that, with your mother's heart you feel all the horrors of war, as we do. You will understand that a woman ardently desires peace. Peace is being violated, not only beyond the frontiers of our country, but even in the heart of the fatherland. We see with terror in the recent troubles the beginning of calamities that may crush all Russia if the emperor does not seek, in unity with his people, to avert them. All the bases of life are shaken, and all moral foundations are trembling. Mothers, those who have to bring up the young generation, are saddened and their task made impossible. It is beyond their power, beyond all possibility to train children up on bases of unshakable truth and love of duty when the social life of the country does not rest on these for its foundation. The youth of the country, on entering life, constantly meet contradictions to what was taught them in their families. They thus lose all faith in the principles taught them, seek new faiths and fall into extremes. Our best forces are perishing. Mothers' hearts are breaking. They cannot remain silent. They feel that many more lives will yet be sacrificed, for what is happening is not spasmodic, but the result of earlier calamities. The emperor can still save Russia by his puissant will. Be our pleader and pray the emperor that he may listen to the voice of the country and the cry of its mothers. If the emperor leads the country into the paths of greatness, its women will help in the work of its organization by guiding their brothers and children into the new way and a life of light."

The Highest Skilled Surgeon

Is Rich, Nutritious Blood Which Prevents the Necessity of Operations.

It is true that organic changes may be so acute that nothing but the surgeon's knife will overcome the trouble. Yet it must also be said that in many cases building up the vitality of the body overcomes the need of surgical interference. Unfortunately, by neglecting the simple rules of health man places barrier after barrier against nature's tendency, which is to heal and to cure—hence the world is full of weak, nervous men and women that enjoy but few of the pleasures of life.

It is to minister to the requirements of these sick, over-strained people that Ferrozone has been devised. It contains more nutriment and strengthening qualities than you can get in any other form. It's concentrated nourishment—that's what Ferrozone is. It enriches and vitalizes the blood, and thereby sends its uplifting influence to every nook and corner of the body. The remarkable power of Ferrozone over weakness, nervousness, lack of vitality, and general debility is the marvel of the age.

No medicine could do more than Ferrozone did for Mrs. Annie Jeffry, of Sandy Cove, N.S., whose cure is vouched for by Rev. D. C. Moore, of the Sandy Cove Baptist church.

"My condition was deplorable. Though I employed the most skilful medical aid, I grew steadily weaker. In fact, I was in such a low condition it was impossible for me to walk across the room. My heart was very weak and I suffered from terrible palpitations. Friends urged me to try Ferrozone, and I bought six boxes. When I had used the third box my old-time vigor and strength returned. The palpitations ceased, my appetite increased, and I got a good, rosy color in my cheeks. It would be impossible to speak too highly of Ferrozone."

Ferrozone makes healthy, virile, vigorous men and women. Try it. 50c. per box of fifty tablets, or six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., and Hartford, Conn., U.S.A.
