THE KING AND HIS HONORS.

The Montreal Star's London correspondent has it that Lord Dundonald has been knighted as the king's personal comment upon the ministry's right to employ Canada's ex-commander. What about the Balfour government, which recalled my lord and had the power to give him an appointment in any other part of the empire? The king is a diplomat and is not giving offence to any one, or any government or party. He may have his own admiration for the men who do distinguished service in his name and behalf, but he knows better than to do or say anything which would have the impression that he is expressing personal feeling anent the life or action of any individual. Lord Dundonald, in common with all who shared in the king's birthday honors, has been slated for recognition on account of some worthy public labour, and so far as Dundonald is concerned it was rendered in South Africa and not in Canada.

OFFENDING THE JAPANESE.

The action of the police commissioners of San Francisco, in refusing to renew the permits of certain Japanese to do business in the city, will accentuate the trouble which has been on between the representatives of the national governments. The first difficulty was with reference to the schools, to which admission had been refused the Japanese children. The Japanese are not like the Chinese in the one respect that they will not settle down and become residents of the country. The little men of the northern empire are not like the almond-eyed celestials in making all the money they can in America, simply to go back to China and spend it there. The Japanese are not so gregarious, and have been regarded more favourably in America than anywhere in the rest of the world. They are more public spirited, more social, more adaptable to conditions. In San Francisco they are being ostracized unduly and unreasonably, and the fact is a subject of concern at Washington, where the government is helpless, because the issue is not a national one. The relations between the United States and Japan have been strained on account of the school difficulty, and now the situation has been aggravated by the evident desire of the civic government to drive the Japanese merchants out of business. If this thing does not produce a crisis nothing will, for to the last analysis it is offensive and injurious to the Japanese.

MURDEROUS OPERATORS.

The question of all questions, because it vitally affects every living creature, is, Why should bread be dear? Why should there be talk of advancing prices and the menace in it of higher living? The English papers give more space to this issue than the papers of America, and because the masses in Britain are more dependent than any other people upon the wheat crops of the world.

Some time ago it was figured out that there was a larger reserve stock in the United States, by nearly fifty million bushels, than in the spring of 1905 and yet the price was as 90c. to $1.03. The visible supply was greater than for several years at the same date, both in Europe and America, but the reports about poor prospects had their effect. These reports had reference to conditions in Russia, Roumania, Hungary, Austria, and Argentina. In Canada and the United States the seasons for sowing were later. In China there was a famine, 50 dollar wheat was in demand, and that meant a dearer loaf and a consequent raise in the cost of living.

Then there were copious rains, and the market took on an easier appearance. The crops were saved. This was the rumour. There was no sooner a calm on the exchange, than a new agitation begins. This time it is due to the announcement that there is too much rain, in some places, that wheat is being damaged, and that if anything happens now, in the way of rust, or frost later on, there will be a sad experience. The rumours have the result which is perhaps designed. They unsettle the market, and the speculators are reaping the advantage. The fact is that most of the market reports emanate from interested sources, the men who are financially interested in the crops and stocks, and that it is almost impossible to get information or data which can be relied upon.

The Liverpool Post recently had occasion to contrast conflicting reports upon the food supply, and to remark:

"On top of these natural disadvantages come the murderous operations of the well-named corner men of the States, who are blatantly and unblushingly prophesying 'dollar and a half' wheat! On the other side we must set the providentially recuperative power of good weather, and the larger area of the Argentine cornfields. In the meantime, the hundreds of millions to whom bread is indeed the staff of life have to remain quiescent and pay bigger bills for flour and bread, but if the conscienceless gamblers in the people's food can be proved responsible for any of the rise, one might hazard the opinion that nations possessing common sense may find it not without the region of practical politics to bring home to them that the material welfare of a nation is of greater importance than the bank books of a few millionaires."

Brought home how? That is the issue. Suppose it became apparent to-morrow that the very lives of the people were in the hands of the few—and it is coming to that—what can the legislators do? Fiscal policies may regulate the imports and exports to some extent, but they do not prevent men with plethoric purses from buying and selling the commodities of life without regard as to how their transactions touch the comfort of the people. How can the millionaires and multi-millionaires on speculation bent be held up or restrained?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be warmly welcomed on his return to Canada. His constituency, East Quebec, will especially show its appreciation of his popular leadership.

Binghampton and Oswego, N.Y., declare that they have had enough of asphalt pavement. A long time it would last in Kingston with holes picked in it by the water works, the gas, and sewer excavators.

The Virginia jury did not believe that the loving girl suffered much by the alleged assault of Estes, but it acquitted her father of murder. The question is, What was it that influenced the verdict if not the evidence?

Can a government assume a copyright, or appropriate the work of an author by act of parliament? The question comes up in the controversy about the public school readers, and Whitney's lawyers will have something to think about.

This week the large corporations and the railway companies are paying their dividends and interest charges, and they amount to many, many millions. This is what the financiers call "cutting the melons," and it is a very delightful occupation.

The local government's mining policy is seriously questioned. The fact that it passed, or caused to be passed, certain acts of the last legislature, confirming sales, will not permit appeals to the court and decisions, perhaps, of a most embarassing nature.

Is there to be an early federal election? That is the question. Sir Wilfrid Laurier is said to have promised another session of the commons before the appeal. Meanwhile there is as much fuss in some places as if dissolution were already announced.

Col. Sam Hughes reports that there will be great crops in the North-West, and he speaks from a knowledge of the facts, having lately crossed the continent twice. Of course, he thinks the Liberal government doomed. On political subjects his talk is not quite so rational.

Retain The Officials.

Denver, July 3.—Charles H. Moier was continued as president of the Western Federation of Miners, and William D. Haywood, was retained as secretary-treasurer, at the election yesterday. J. L. Simpkins holds over as a member of the executive board. The convention was unanimous in its decision to retain these officials.

CHEAPER STEEL

COST OF PRODUCTION TO BE REDUCED

United States Steel Corporation Will Spend Millions of Dollars on New Machinery—Monster Gas Engines to be Installed in All the Plants.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 3.—The cost of the production of steel may be reduced a few cents a ton, millions of dollars are to be spent in new machinery for the plants of the United States Steel Corporation, and almost a hundred engines are to be relegated practically to the scrap heap. This step will probably take two or three years to complete, but it is assured by the experiments which have been carried on at the Edgar Thompson plant of the corporation of Braddock, where the experiments have been along the lines of using gas instead of coal and fuel, and using the gas that blows from the blast furnaces.

Two of the four great engines that were the pride of the St. Louis exposition in 1904, and are now used to blow the furnace in the Edgar Thompson plant, will in all probability be discarded within the next three or four years.

The experiments at the Edgar Thompson plant, it is said, have determined the policy of the steel corporation for all of its works, and gas engines will be installed as fast as they can be built at all the plants.

Can't Convict Anyone.

Exchange.

In his written judgment on the demurrer in the Emmerson case Judge Landry opened an easy way of escape to criminal libellers of public men. He declared categorically that Crockett, the defendant in the case, was "entitled to have it declared by the court that the publication was in the public interest, and by the jury that the matters published were true, or convince the jury by evidence that he had reasonable grounds for believing, and did believe, that they were true." Under that ruling any accused who is prepared to testify as to the source of his information, and to swear that he believed it was true, might laugh at efforts to bring him to punishment.

The Extreme Partisan.

Ottawa Citizen.

To a deputation of his supporters who waited upon E. D. Smith, M.P., the popular member for South Wentworth, to endeavor to persuade him to again become their candidate, he regretted that he could not alter his resolve to leave public life. Mr. Smith is getting up in years and is one of the largest fruit farmers in the Niagara district, and while still in good health, he does not feel that he can stand the added strain of attending to his public duties in Ottawa. Incidentally Mr. Smith voiced the sentiments of a great many level-headed men like himself in the course of his remarks to the deputation. The discussion of the affairs of the country was one of the most interesting and useful matters to which a man could devote his time, and while he was always fond of a contest in the political arena, he thought that when politics carried so far that one side or the other was ready to sacrifice public interest to party considerations it was going too far. He believed in a party but if there was less partizanship the country would be governed better.

News From Bannockburn.

Bannockburn, July 2.—J. Best left on Monday to work in the Silver King, Mine. The English church people feel quite elated over the big success of their lawn social the proceeds of which amounted to over fifty dollars, after paying all expenses. The funeral of the late Mrs. Sanford, who died so suddenly on Tuesday last, took place on Wednesday afternoon. A large number took in the big degree meeting at Nickle's lodge on Monday night. Mr. Burrell, of Millbridge, was in town on Thursday last for the lawn social and played the bagpipes dressed in his highland costume. James Best, sr., of Bancroft, was a visitor in town, attending the funeral of Mrs. John Sanford. Prof. Young, of Toronto, registrar of Trinity University, was in town for the lawn social and also spent a few days on a holiday trip to the neighbouring mines.

The United L.O.L. of Eldorado and Nickles will attend service in a body on Sunday next, when the Rev. Mr. Wright will preach the Orange sermon.

The marriage of Miss Helen Caton to Harry Emory was solemnized at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Caton, Cherry Valley, Ont., on June 20th. The bride received a number of beautiful presents. After a brief wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Emory will occupy their new home in Cherry Valley.

ACCIDENT IN CANAL.

The Steamer Picton Had Trouble At Montreal.

A serious accident was narrowly reported, on Tuesday morning, in one of the locks of the Lachine canal, about opposite the Canada car works, when the steamer Picton was damaged considerably by coming in contact with the side of the canal. It appears that the vessel, owing to the heavy wind, was crossed against the entrance of the lock, and in an effort to place her now into the centre of the canal, she was thrown heavily against the sides of the lock.

The tremendous pressure of the boat against the sides of the lock caused certain portions of the canal to give way, while it is expected that the injury to the steamer will be considerable.

Raise Sunken Dredge.

The dredge Sir Wilfrid, which sank opposite Port Hope, on October 6th, 1902, will be raised almost immediately. Mr. Polson states that the Reid wrecking fleet of Port Huron left there on June 28th. He expected that the fleet would arrive in Toronto Wednesday or Thursday. The spot where the dredge went down is known and there will be very little trouble in that respect. The dredge was built at the Polson shipyards and was en route to Montreal when the rope holding the dipper broke, causing it to swing to one side suddenly, which resulted in the sinking of it.

Marine Notes.

The steamer Missisquoi was here from Rockport yesterday.

Straw Hat With Plumes.

In the accompanying illustration is shown one of the smartest ways to use plumes on a large hat, a great many of the newest models showing the trimming massed in this way at the back. Soft side moire ribbon is folded about the crown of the model illustrated, two very large ball hat-pins being thrust through the folds of ribbon.

Places Of Interest.

No notable place or scene is absent from the "Stoddard Lectures." The writer and traveller has not confined himself to route of travel as usually followed, but has gone off to places inaccessible to the average globe trotter or tourist. Wherever a natural beauty spots exists, wherever nature has reached a climax of her mighty powers, wherever the genius of man has made a prominent memorial of his abilities, John L. Stoddard has followed with mental and mechanical mirrors and reproduced the scene so that everyone can know of it and join in appreciation.

Married In Syracuse.

In Syracuse, on June 26th, a quiet but pretty wedding took place, when Miss Dora Troy, daughter of the late John Troy, Wolfe Island, was married to John Ludgate, of that city. The bride was given away by her uncle and was dressed in white silk with a pretty hat to match. The young couple left for Rochester and Toronto, after which they will reside in Syracuse, N. Y.

Price Of Milk Raised.

Milk has again been advanced to six cents a quart, and the housewife is "in the dumps." All last winter and till May 1st, six cents was the price. Then milk was sold at five cents a quart for three months. The high price of cheese and the recent dry weather has caused the increase. It is most unusual for the price of milk to be raised in the summer.

Walks And Crossings.

There are now two different gangs at work upon concrete walk construction, which will be rushed during the next three months. The city engineer has delayed the building of asphalt crossings on account of not knowing whether some of the roads were to be rebuilt this season. He will have only absolutely necessary ones constructed.
