WERE ARE STARS?

WHICH THE PEOPLE USED TO WORSHIP.

Their Names Are Unfamiliar to the Present Generation—Some Are Living on the Money They Amassed.

Where do all the actors go? It's a poor week in which one does not hear of this actor or actress retiring from the stage. It's a poorer week in which some actor or actress whose name was once a household word does not retire unhonored by brass or cymbals. What becomes of all these players?

For instance, how many of the thousands that used to applaud Lawrence Hanley know what became of him? Where is Mojeska and what is she doing? How about Rhea, Georgia Cayvan or Frankie Bailey? Eben Plympton, one of the greatest Romeos that ever sighed to a Juliet? Kate Claxton, known from one end of the country to the other as the creator of the big part in The Two Orphans, the most successful melodrama of them all? How about Lotta, the wonderful soubrette, whose twinkling shoes never have been quite filled? And Marie Jansen and Marion Manola and Fannie Rice of A Jolly Surprise? Where has Bobby Gaylor gone, and Effie Elisler, and what has become of Frederick Warde? Can Janaushek be placed, or Annie Myers? Clara Morris is a newspaper reporter, but where are Ida Mulle, for instance, or Geraldine Ulmer, or Maggie Mitchell, or Helen Barry?

Lawrence Hanley, up to a few years ago, was regarded as perhaps the best Shakespearian actor on the American stage. Who knows that when careless living caught him by the lungs at last he died in an obscure village in California, his once magnificent voice ruined, his once powerful frame wrecked? Modjeska, a costar with Edwin Booth and Lawrence Barrett, what of her? She lives on a ranch in Southern California, with her husband, the Count Bozenta, save when she is playing in the "one-night stands."

Rhea, an actress of great dramatic power, who mastered the English language that she might play in it, just as Bertha Kalich has done since, died in comparative poverty in France. Norman Hackett, an actor whose home is in Detroit, and who left the University of Michigan to become an actor in Rhea's company, started a fund for the purpose of marking in a suitable manner the final resting place of his former star. Fortunately he found that her relatives had cared for the little tomb.

Who does not remember Pinero's delightful The Amazons, the pretty comedy in which three girls were shown as having been reared as boys, but who, nevertheless, fell in love with three likable men and spoiled the plans of their parents? The prettiest and cleverest of the three was Georgia Cayvan. A couple of years ago she died in a public institution in poverty. Della Fox, inimitable once as the Prince Mataya in Wang, lost her voice and now accepts vaudeville engagements at a figure at which she once would have snapped her fingers. In the days of the old David Henderson extravaganzas at the Chicago Opera House, when Eddie Foy was chief comedian, who was more popular than May Yohe? Later she married Lord Hope. She has since lost the diamonds that made her family notable and was last seen in New York "on her uppers."

Marie Jansen lives in obscurity in New York, as Marion Manola does in Boston. Fanny Rice is in vaudeville. Effie Elisler is lost among the "talks" and Frederick Warde has cast aside the toga to lecture in small towns as a feature of the local "culture" courses.

Frankie Bailey heads a burlesque show this season, the same Frankie Bailey who, as the head of the Weber and Fields chorus, had her name in type as large as that which decked out the name of any of the principals. Indeed, she was a principal in all but name.

Eben Plympton, the Beau Brummel of Romeos, lives in a little cottage near New York and emerges now and then to accept at a high salary an easy engagement. Lotta, the soubrette, uses her real name, Lotta Crabtree, now, and has thousands and thousands of dollars in real estate. So has Maggie Mitchell. The younger generation of playgoers know nothing of them. Yet they once were national figures, and the Lotta fountain presented to the citizens of San Francisco was a landmark. But the younger generation of playgoers does not know either that Mrs. Fiske, the stately, scholarly exponent of the subtlest roles, once was a soubrette with a song and dance. Joseph Galbraith, a leading man, well known in stock companies, made a lot of money in California real estate, and a few weeks ago was married to a rich widow in Los Angeles. Tony Denier, the premier clown of his time, and the great Humpty Dumpty, is living in ease and has much real property.

E. E. Rice, whose "1492" was only one of many brilliant extravaganzas which he produced, made and lost several fortunes and now runs a summer show in New York. When Marie Wainwright was the wife of Louis James, she was called one of the finest Shakespearean actresses in the world. She is in vaudeville now.

They come and go. In the words of Macbeth, they fret their little hour upon the stage and then are seen no more. Some go to the Forest Home, maintained for aged actors. Others go to their relatives. Others tug along in harness, playing in minor stock companies. Some die in harness, as good old Mrs. Gilbert died during the run of Granny, that Clyde Finch wrote for the farewell tour upon which death rang down the curtain.

SERMONS IN HATS.

Headgear Tells of Both Villany and Virture.

What relation, if any, does the manner of wearing a hat bear to the character of the wearer?

The answer is given, as we should expect, by a learned German. In a book on criminal psychology, published at Leipzig, says The British Medical Journal, Prof. H. Gross has made a number of observations on the way of wearing the hat in its relation to character, and has formed conclusions of the accuracy of which he has satisfied himself by a long experience.

He holds that a hat worn exactly perpendicular to the vertical axis of the head is a sign that a man is upright, but a pedant and a bore.—Men who are gentle and amiable and full of the milk of human kindness wear the hat a little on one side. The wearing of the hat very much on one side is said by the German writer to be a mark of insolence and swagger.

According to our German authority, wearing the hat on the back of the head may be taken as a proof of recklessness and being in debt; the further back it is, the nearer to bankruptcy is the wearer.

On the other hand, if the hat is worn over the forehead, it indicates a man of difficult temper, sulky—in short, in the words of the Scottish song, "a sumph to keep up spite."

The professor has not neglected the science of footgear in the midst of his other labors. Thus, he has observed that a man who wears down the heels of his boots equally may safely be put down an energetic man of business or a trustworthy official.

If they are worn down on the outer side, the owner is gifted with imagination and is of an adventurous spirit. If they are worn down on the inner side, he is weak and undecided in character; this diagnostic sign, however, we are told, is more to be relied upon in the case of men than of women.

Kept Her Busy.

Harper's Weekly.

A prominent physician of Baltimore tells of an amusing experience of the early days of his practice, when he was residing in a small town where by far the majority of the workers were coal miners.

"I was greatly distressed by the unsanitary conditions prevailing in their cottages," says the doctor, "and among other things I tried to explain to each household the importance of maintaining a wholesome atmosphere in their sleeping rooms. I laid in a stock of thermometers, which were distributed to the households, where they were most needed. I took pains to point out, to each family in turn, just how the thermometer would indicate the proper degree of temperature.

"As I was making the rounds one day, I inquired of the woman at the head of one establishment, wherein I observed my thermometer proudly displayed at the end of a string, whether she had followed my instructions.

"'Yes, sir,' answered she. 'I'm very careful about the temperature. I watch the thing all the time as it hangs up there.'

"What do you do when the temperature rises above sixty-eight?'

"'I take it down, sir, an' put it outside till it cools off a bit.'"

Mrs. McAteer is spending some time at the Marysville House. Mr. and Mrs. Cummings and daughter, Toronto, were recent visitors of Edmund McNeill.

Reports From Westport.

Westport, Aug. 13.—Farmers are finished haying and report a very light crop. The low land or swamp hay is above the average. Hay is selling here now for $20 a ton. C. J. Sheagle has finished his contract on a number of buildings he put up at Chaffey's Lock. John Whelay, Cobalt, is home visiting his family. Mr. and Mrs. Nelson, Dauthier, Ottawa, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. McCann. Miss Stasia McCann, nurse-in-training, Watertown, N.Y., is home for her two weeks' vacation. Mrs. Thomas Egan is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. McCann. Mrs. Edward Martin was here for the last couple of weeks nursing her husband, who is improving. She returned to her home in Dakota, to-day. Mr. Nolan will commence building the cement sidewalk here soon. M. J. McCann, Jr., returned to Cobalt after spending a week here visiting relatives. T. J. McCann is spending his vacation with his family here.

Inverary Jottings.

Inverary, Aug. 13.—The electric storm of last week did considerable damage to grain crops. The hailstones broke all of the glass out of the west end of G. Akroyd's and T. Arthur's [illegible]. Dr. A. E. Freeman and family have returned from camping. Miss Fanny Arthur spent a week at their guest at Chaffey's Locks. Mrs. Mina Hughes and daughter, Laura, are at W. J. Arthur's for a week. Mrs. H. Teepell is recovering after undergoing an operation at the Kingston general hospital. Work on the new agricultural hall is being rapidly pushed forward. Messrs. Sproule's; Miss Robbs, of Sydenham, and Miss Wartman, Bath, at J. A. Sproule's; Miss McCabe and Miss Brown, of Hay Bay, at J. Howie's.

The Crops At Glenvale.

Glenvale, Aug. 13.—The farmers in this community are experiencing many inconveniences from the effects of the prolonged drought. Most all the wells have dried up, a great scarcity existing even of drinking water. Pastures only afford a mere existance for cattle. Joseph Cramer states that the milk total is much lower than he has known it to be in previous years. The crops also are a total failure and in many cases are not worth the harvesting.

Of the visiting list mention is made of Mrs. Joseph Cramer, who returned after a pleasant visit with friends in Watertown; Mrs. Wood, Brandon, Man., and also Mrs. McCrary, of Sydenham, are visiting at A. C. Orser's; E. Richardson, of Toronto, is visiting at Mr. Cramer's; Michael Hawkey went on the excursion to Watertown on Saturday last; Edward Elliott spent Sunday at T. Hawkey's. Mrs. George McGowan and son are visiting at James Moon's, at Conway.

Quarterly meeting was held in the Methodist church on Aug. 4th. On Sunday afternoon Miss VanOrder rendered a solo in splendid voice. The Misses Edythe and Mabel Howard, Collins Bay, paid a visit to friends here. Summer visitors are very numerous. Among them Mrs. Robinson and daughters, Winnipeg, at Mrs. T. Orser's; Miss Wood and Russel Pillar, Toronto, at W. Pillar's; E. R. Elliott, Cataraqui, at T. Hawkey's; Miss Maud Miss Georgie Amey, Kingston, at J. Ellerbeck's; Mrs. McFarlane and grandson, Sydenham, at G. Toplin's; Mr. and Mrs. Rodindyzer, Florida, U. S., at J. Wartman's; Miss Rhoda Daryou, Kingston, at R. Ellerbeck's.

BATTERSEA BUDGET.

Grain Crop Fair—Fruit and Potatoes Poor.

Battersea, Aug. 13.—The farmers are through cutting and storing their hay crop for 1907. Everyone had plenty of barn room, no stacking being necessary, as the yield averaged only about a load to the acre. The grain, which is now being harvested is a fair crop and will yield well as it is well filled. The fruit crop is very poor and the potatoes have again been blighted.

A ceaseless swarm of visitors, campers and fishing tourists have been making things hum in this burg and vicinity during the past month.

Mrs. Hanky, Sr., relict of the late George Hanley of Milburn, passed away on the 4th inst., after a protracted illness at the advanced age of eighty-seven years. She was a faithful member of the Methodist church for many years and highly esteemed in the community. The funeral was conducted by R. J. Reid, Kingston, on the following Tuesday, service being held in the home by the Rev. Mr. Waddell, after which the remains were conveyed to the Sand Hill cemetery. Four daughters are left in the home.

G. S. Wakeford left for Hamilton last week to take a lucrative position with the Keewatin milling company. The family will follow shortly and take up residence in the Ambitious City.

Messrs. John and Bert Meyer, accompanied by Walter Lyons, Sunbury, proceeded last week to Bollingbrook, where they will develop a mica mine, which they have leased.

Visitors: Mrs. (Dr.) B. Bridge and children of Albert City, Iowa, at her mother's, Mrs. T. Hogan's. Miss Edna Lake, of Kingston, and Miss Lake, Inverary, at Isaac Lake's; Miss Maud Robertson, Morrisburg, Penn., at G. S. Wakeford's; Mrs. Ferguson and child, of Trenton, at W. H. Jameson's; Rev. Mr. Ebersole, and family, Brighton, at J. L. Sears'; Miss Lily Anglin, of Kingston Mills, at W. J. Anglin's; Miss Amanda Knapp, Kingston, at Mrs. Knapp's; Miss Werden, Pittsburg, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. James McMillan and Miss Mabel Chown, of Sydenham, at Dr. S. K. Lake's; Dr. Joseph Robb, Mountain Grove, at John Robb's; Ross Hartley, Holyoke, Mass., at W. Hartley's; Mrs. Brown, Holyoke, Mass., at S. K. Lake's; Mr. Vanalstine and family, Napanee, at W. Sutherland's; Mrs. Russell Wilson and daughter, Montreal, Messrs. Samuel and Charles Jameson of Saskatoon, Man., arrived home this week.
