AT CHALMERS' CHURCH.

Addresses Were Delivered by Men in Rescue Work.

There was a good attendance at the meeting held in Chalmers church, on Friday evening, at which addresses were delivered by Rev. J. H. Johnson and J. C. Westenberg. Rev. M. Macgillivray occupied the chair.

Mr. Westenberg, in an interesting manner, told the story of his life, how he had reformed from a drunkard, gambler and convict and told many incidents of his life. He was in San Francisco, when he heard the call. One night he drifted into a meeting, and heard an evangelist say that Christ would save a drunkard, and as a result of that meeting, he was saved. Mr. Westenberg does not tell his story in a boastful manner at all, but is telling it in order to show what can be done, if men will only believe.

Rev. Mr. Johnson spoke particularly to the parents on the care to be taken in the bringing up of children.

NO WORK FOR THE MASONS.

About One Hundred and Fifty Men are Idle.

It is estimated that there are now about one hundred and fifty men out of work, as a result of the carpenters' strike.

A large number of masons and their helpers were at labor hall, on Saturday. The strike of the carpenters has held up the work of the masons, and their helpers. There appears to be no sign of settlement as yet.

FOR GOOD HAY CROP.

Farmers Say Outlook is Good—Frost Nipped Tomatoes.

It is expected that there will be a bumper hay crop, this season. Farmers on the market stated on Saturday, that everything pointed to a fine crop.

It was stated that the frost on Friday night, nipped a great many of the tomato vines

Marsh for Dumping Ground.

The city property committee was given authority by the city council to take preliminary steps towards acquiring the marsh in the eastern portion of the city for a dumping ground, and if necessary to provide for expropriation proceedings. The committee has not done anything yet. It is possible that a price will be agreed upon between the owners and the committee, and a by-law put to the people next January, if it will be necessary to issue debentures for the purchase money.

Was Not Racing His Horses.

Joseph J. Woods, of Barriefield, who witnessed the accident to the late William McAdoo, of Dufferin, last Monday evening, by which the latter lost his life, states that Mr. McAdoo was not racing his horses as has been alleged. When he passed him, his horses were walking. The accident occurred just afterwards. He says that Mr. McAdoo was sitting with his feet on the front of the waggon, and evidently leaned down to pick up the reins, which he may have dropped. He lost his balance, and fell forward under the left wheel. Then the horses started off, and the waggon passed over Mr. McAdoo's body. Mr. Woods also stated that the deceased's father was not killed in an accident, but died at his home, about sixteen years ago.

The June winds still blow cold. Saturday morning, farmers living short distances out of the city reported that there were faint evidences of frost during the night. That durned old comet is provoking. Perhaps the sun is losing its power. Anyway, "here's hoping" that summer will soon arrive.

EXCITEMENT WAS CAUSED

By a Plank Getting Wedged Under a G. T. R. Car.

On Friday night, the passengers on the G.T.R. mail and express train, which reaches Kingston outer station from Montreal at 12:35 a.m., got quite a fright. As the train approached the Kingston Mills bridge, the passengers felt a thumping sound. Then the train suddenly slowed down, the emergency brakes were thrown on, and the train was soon stopped, just as it was at the bridge. Lanterns were brought out, and it was found that a large plank, fourteen feet long, over a foot wide and three inches thick, lying loose between the tracks, had caught under one of the cars and entangled around one of the wheels. The plank was removed, and the train proceeded on to the station, five miles distant.

James T. Sutherland, who, with W. C. Kent, Angus Orr and A. Abernethy were passengers for Kingston, stated that as the train approached the bridge, he remarked that there was only about five more miles to go, when there was a thumping and grating sound heard. He and some others rushed out of the smoking car, and found the passengers much frightened. He thought that the train was "up against it," and was going to be thrown from the tracks, and probably over the bridge. However, the engineer and the train crew acted with great alacrity and brought the train to a standstill in very quick time. The brakeman, Mr. Sutherland said, acted with great presence of mind in using the emergency brakes. The plank had a long spike in it, and was evidently loosened from a crossing by accident.

CORRIGAN'S.

GRANT INCREASED BY $1,000.

For Use of Schools for Pedagogy Students.

The management committee of the Board of Education has adopted a new agreement with Queen's University in connection with the Faculty of Education. Heretofore, the board has been receiving $3,000 for the use of the schools for observation and practice teaching by the pedagogy students. This was not considered enough, and a request was made for an increased grant. The result is that the board this coming year will receive $5,000 for teachers and an additional $1,000 for the use of the schools. The $5,000 is used in giving teachers more salary for the extra work they do outside of school hours.

A Courtier in Blue Flannel.

A fine yacht lay at anchor awaiting a favorable breeze for her mission of pleasure. The crew idled about the deck, and a happy group of guests was aft conversing pleasantly. In the group was a handsome mother. Her romping boy of five years broke from her hand, clambered to the rail, rolled over it and was whirled down the tide. The mother's shrieks roused a dozing, lounging sailor, who at once comprehended the situation and plunged after the child. Others promptly manned a boat and soon overhauled the sailor, who was now swimming with the little fellow in his grasp. As soon as they returned to the yacht's deck the mother, with streaming eyes, threw her arms around the neck of the dripping rescuer and fervently exclaimed: "Oh, oh, sir, how, how can I ever repay you? Name your own reward for giving back my son and saving me from a broken heart!"

Then she pressed a half score of kisses on the tar's weather bronzed cheeks.

"Lady," answered he as she released him, "let the youngster go overboard again!"

His First Taste of Discipline.

Admiral Jouett, probably one of the jolliest sea dogs our navy ever knew, once told an amusing story of his early days as a cadet.

"I was a sociable youngster," he says, "and when I went to my first assignment, the Independence, and saw the Stars and Stripes floating over it I remembered my mother had taught me that my first duty was to the flag so I attempted some conversation on this line with the executive officer who had received me when I came on board and who was one of the strictest disciplinarians in the navy of that day.

"'Silence, sir!' he roared at my first question, his face red with anger. 'Silence, sir! Who gave you permission to speak? Let me hear only six words from you, sir, while you are on this ship—"port," "starboard," "yes sir," and "no, sir."'

"And this was my first discipline in the navy."

Paraguay Lace.

Making lace by hand is a well developed art in Paraguay. It was taught the natives 200 years ago by the missionaries and has been transmitted from generation to generation till it is now quite general throughout the republic. Some towns are devoted to making a certain kind of lace. In one town of 8,000 or 9,000 inhabitants almost all the women and children and many of the men make lace collarets, handkerchiefs and ladies' ties. Another town makes lace embroidery and others drawn thread work, such as centrepieces, tray mats, teacloths and doilies. The designs used in making the lace are taken from the curious webs of the semitropical spiders that are so numerous there. On this account it is called "nanduti," an Indian name which means spider web.

Preaching and Practice.

W. S. Gilbert on one certain occasion was on a visit to a friend, the owner of a fine English country house. On the morning after his arrival he was chatting with his host before breakfast when he became suddenly aware that family prayers were about to be read. The household filed in, and the distinguished guest knelt down on the spot where he happened to be standing. Looking up, he caught his host's eye fixed on him with a warning glance, which he, however, failed to read aright. The service began, "Almighty Father, who hast made all men alike" (more telegraphic glances), "rich and poor, gentle and simple"—then, unable to contain himself any longer, the host called out, "Gilbert, you are kneeling among the servants?"

A Gentleman and Boots.

London Graphic.

The "first gentleman in Europe" got the very worst definition of a gentleman from his valet when driving down to Brighton. The prince regent was arguing about the gentleman and finally turned to his valet. And the valet replied that a gentleman was one who did not clean his own boots. It was a funky's reply. One likes better the demand of the Duke of Wellington, "Give me men who can sleep in their boots."
