The Family Market Basket

The market was fairly large on Saturday morning and the mild weather brought out apples, vegetables and quantities of flowers. The rain drove as many people as could get in into the inland market and there they found eggs selling for 50 and 55 cents, butter for 38 and 40 cents and turkeys, ducks and chickens all just a little lower than usual on account of the weather. Beef, pork and veal were the meats displayed, and several sleighs and motors had brought honey, pickles and sauerkraut.
