Same day at Bath, Mrs. Forward, wife of Doctor Forward.

On Tuesday, at Ernest Town, Mr. Duncan Macpherson.

COBOURG, 19TH SEPTEMBER, 1828.

The Lord Bishop of Quebec made his first visitation to the district of Newcastle last week. Shortly after his arrival at Cobourg, a deputation of the principal inhabitants of that place and its vicinity waited upon his Lordship with the following address:

To the Right Reverend Father in God, CHARLES JAMES, Lord Bishop of Quebec.

May it please your Lordship;

WE the undersigned inhabitants of Cobourg and its vicinity, members, adherents, and friends, of the Church of England, avail ourselves of the opportunity afforded by your Lordship's first pastoral visitation to this district, to offer our sincere congratulations to your Lordship on your elevation to a station where your well known piety and zeal cannot but add increased success to the cause which has heretofore so warmly engaged your Lordship's interests and exertions.

While your Lordship's desire, as an "overseer of the Church," to guard and advance the spiritual interests of this Province generally affords us unfeigned satisfaction, we have other and more individual sources of pleasure in the prospect of the celebration of those rites and ordinances of our Church, which knit every branch of the community together in the bonds of Christian fellowship, and by their solemnity and importance, give an increased incitement to the due fulfilment of our moral and religious duties.

To this we beg to add the contemplated formation of a society in connection with that Venerable Institution in the Mother Country by whose exertions the cause of true religion has been so eminently furthered; in which design we both hope for and solicit your Lordship's countenance and aid. A society which, by affording the means of diffusing the light and consolations of religion where they may hitherto have failed to penetrate, will be hailed by all as the harbinger of joy to the "wilderness," and the herald of gladness to the "solitary place."

To those amongst us whose attachment to the forms and doctrines of our venerable Church has, from the first dawn of reason, "grown with our growth and strengthened with our strength," as well as to those whose access to her pale has been more recent, every thing which has a tendency to promote the spread of her pure and mild principles is matter of no ordinary interest. We cannot but warmly desire that all men should be enabled to participate in that which has been to ourselves the guide of erring youth, and to which we look forward as the stay & consolation of declining age.

We beg leave to offer to your Lordship our sincere wishes that you may enjoy years of continued health and usefulness and that under your superintending care we may witness the advancement of our Church, to which, alike from claims of national affection as individual affection, we feel a devoted attachment. Satisfied that her tenets are those of "pure religion and undefiled," we view her success and prosperity as a sure indication of the approach of that glorious period when earth's remotest corner shall hear the glad tidings of the gospel of peace, be actuated by its influence here, and enjoy its promised blessings hereafter.

Signed by about ninety persons, almost all heads of families.

To which his Lordship was pleased to make the following reply:

GENTLEMEN,

Inhabitants of Cobourg and its vicinity, members, adherents, and friends, of the Church of England:

Accept my sincere thanks for your warm congratulations on my elevation to the Episcopal Office, and I beg to assure you that the interests of the Church in this part of my diocese, shall ever be the object of my care and solicitude.

I derive great satisfaction from your expressions of regard to the rites and ordinances of our Church, and I heartily concur with you in the sentiment that their tendency is to promote christian charity, and preserve her members "in the unity of the spirit, the bond of peace, and in righteousness of life."

Your intention of forming a district committee in this town, for the promotion of Christian Knowledge, in connection with the Parent Institution, I highly approve, and you may depend on my countenance and support towards carrying into effect so desirable an object.

I congratulate you on your attachment to the doctrines and formulas of our truly Apostolic Church. Their best recommendation is, that they have the Holy Scriptures for their foundation, and speak not the words which "man's wisdom speaketh," but the words which "the Holy Ghost teacheth."

Your kind and affectionate wishes that I may enjoy years of continued health and usefulness, I duly appreciate. Length of years may be deemed a blessing, if those years are devoted to the service of Almighty God. And may he in his mercy grant that my life may be employed in successfully propagating the Gospel of his Son our Saviour Jesus Christ. I am deeply impressed with the awful responsibility that now devolves on me, but I look for strength—not my own—to enable me faithfully to discharge the important and sacred duties of my office. I implore the Divine blessing on all our undertakings designed to promote his glory, the happiness of one another, and of all our fellow creatures.

Immediately after which, a meeting was held for the purpose of forming a District Committee in connection with the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge, when the Right Reverend the Lord Bishop of Quebec, being requested by the meeting, accepted the office of President of the Committe and took the Chair.

His Lordship (after prayers according to the Parent Society's prescribed form) stated the object of the institution to be the circulation of the Bible, Prayer Book, and such other of the Society's publications as are adapted to the religious state of this Province, either gratis or at reduced prices to the poor, and at the Society's prices to all members of this institution; and further recommended the general object of the Parent Society both as combining its efforts with those of the Sister Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts, as well for its own vital importance.—It was then

RESOLVED 1st,—That the Newcastle District Committee be now established under the rules and regulations of the Parent Society—(which were read.)

2d.—That a subscription of 12s. 6d. per annum, Hx. Currency, shall constitute a member of such Committee.

3d.---That a General Meeting of the Society take place annually during the Assizes for the District.

4th.---That a local depository of Books for the supply of the members be established at Cobourg as the place most central, under the direction of the Committee.

5th. That the following officers be appointed

VICE PRESIDENTS;

Rev. J. Thompson,	S.S. Wilmot, Esq.
Rev. S. Armour,	W. Boswell Esq.
T. A. Stewart, Esq.	E. Barnum, Esq.
T. Ward, Esq.	B. Whitney, Esq.

BENJAMIN THROOP, Esq.---Treasurer.

REV. A. N. BETHUNE, GEORGE S. BOULTON Esq. } Secretaries.

WM. H. DRAPER, Esq.—Asst. Secretary.

6th.—That a standing Committee be appointed to meet Quarterly on the first day of the Quarter Sessions in this District, and that all the officers of the District Committee be ex-officio members thereof, together with the following Gentlemen:---Robert Henry, Esq., William Falkner, Esq., John Lodge Wilcocks, Esq.---and that five do constitute a Quorum.

7th.---That the first meeting of the Standing Commitee be on Tuesday the 14th of October next, at Stile's Tavern, to complete such arrangements as may be necessary for carrying into effect the objects of this institution.

8th.--That an annual Sermon be preached at Cobourg, to be arranged by the Quarterly Meeting of the standing Committee next previous to the General Meeting, and that a collection be then made for furthering the views of the Society.

After which thanks were voted to the Lord Bishop for his conduct in the Chair, and the Meeting separated.

To the Editor of the Kingston Chronicle.

SIR,

I think I may say with truth that I yield to no man in a wish and zeal to promote the interests of the country of my residence, and as it is KNOWLEDGE that makes a principal difference between either brute or savage society and a civilized population, whatever tends to increase knowledge, must tend also to the increase of civilization.

And as the rubbing of rough substances together produces smoothness, so the collision of intellect, or the rubbing together of different and opposite minds, produces that polish which retired and abstract study alone cannot effect.

Besides the sparks of one man's genius thrown into the materials, combustible of another man's imagination, produces that effervescence before which the shackles of ignorance become "like threads of tow touched with the fire."

Then the introduction of questions which brings the mind fully into play, and sometimes half strains its powers, not only increases its knowledge, but also strengthens its faculties in the same way as exercise and labour do the sinews of a healthy man.

However, as the exercise of either body or mind is only labour lost, unless it be directed toward some profitable end, therefore, if the present happy taste which seems to prevail for the investigation and solution of questions and propositions should continue, I think it would be well worth a word of advice as to the description and quality of the questions, as well as the mode of their solution.

I would be glad to have the advice of my friend "Problem," in this matter: and as I am now about (with the greatest deference) to give a few of my own thoughts, I should like, if he felt it convenient, to SEE his opinion of them, as well as of the subject in hand.

And FIRST, with respect to the description and quality of the questions that may be proposed, I think they should be practical—such as should suit either the wants, convenience, or comforts, of this country, as yet young, however industrious, and rising.

This would seem of course to exclude all delicacies of Science, as well as all questions in the higher branches of the Mathematics.

SECONDLY.—As to the mode of solution, I think it should be such as would be likely to call into exercise the largest proportion of talent—I do not mean the greatest abilities, but the greatest number of persons who possessed any tolerable adequacy to the task.

Therefore, as it is possible that there are very few in this Province who understand Algebra, I think solutions should in general be attempted independent of its aid.

This would seem at least generally practicable; for the "Great Master" became a Great Master, and laid the immoveable foundations of Geometry before the existence of the "Great Art," and all the questions I have as yet seen proposed in the Kingston Jonrnals, are capable of solid answers, without reference to that "peculiar species of Arithmetic."

I have stated this in order, as much as possible, to remove discouragements out of the way, as the more practical any thing is, of course the more general it will become.

I am, Sir,

Your obt. servt.

PHILOMATH.

Kingston, Sept. 26, 1828.

To the Editor of the Kingston Chronicle.

SIR,

Having observed in the Kingston Chronicle, the Herald, and the Gazette, several communications, signed "Philomath," "Robert Jeffers," &c. respecting the measurement of hoppers of different dimensions, I send for your insertion a rule, by which may be found the area of the top of any hopper, that is, the area of the base of the frustum of any regular pyramid, whether circular, triangular, square, rectangular, or polygonal.

RULE.—Divide the solid content of the frustum by 1-3 of its perpendicular height; from the quotient subtract ¾ of the area of the less end; extract the square root of the remainder; and from the root subtract one half of the square root of the less end. The square of the number thus found will be the area of the greater end.

This rule is deduced from the 108th, 114th, and 115th, Theorems of Hutton's Geometry, or the 7th Theorem of the 12th Euclid, and from the Formula for solving Quadratic Equations.

EXAMPLE.

43008 solid in.=content 20 bush.
100 sq. in.=area less end, being square
36 inches =perpendicular height.

SOLUTION.

36-3=12, then, 12)43008

3584
75=¾ area less end

3509(59.237 nearly.
25 5.=½sq. ro. less [end.

109)1009 54.237
981

2 * *

54.237=one side of the top, being square.
54.237 × 54.237=area, or 2941.652169.

SIRS,

I should be glad to see a solution of the following question in plain Trigonometry.

Yours, &c.

A. Y——.

QUESTION.

A Tower, 45 feet high, has a flag-staff erected upon it 30 feet high; at a point on the horizontal plane, the staff subtends an angle of ten degrees. Required the distance of that point from the bottom of the tower.

For the Chronicle.

SIR,

I perceive your correspondent Mr. Courteney (if I recollect his name aright) quotes the side of the upper surface of the hopper 59.12 inches.

Now, a HOPPER, of which the

Altitude is	36 inches,
The lower (or lesser) base	10 inches,
The upper (or greater) base	59.12 inches,

Its solid content would be 50236.4928 cubic inches, which would be 7228.0928 cubic inches more than twenty bushels, the capacity required.

Of course, is not such a hopper as was wanted by

Sir,

Your Obedient,

PHILOMATH.

Kingston, Sept. 15, 1828.

N. B.—My old friend Problem, (although a little peevish) and your other Correspondent, has given the solution correctly.

For the Kingston Chronicle.

MR. EDITOR,

A correspondent in your paper of the 6th inst. appears to consider a rule for finding the solid content of the frustrum of a pyramid, the smaller end of which is a square, and the larger a rectangle, and all the dimensions given, a desideratum.

Not being a mathematician, and having limited means of ascertaining, I am unable to say whether any rule is laid down by authors or not; but this I can say, that the operation is extremely simple, as the content may be found by the following process, which can easily be demonstrated to be an infallible rule in such cases.

Deduct the side of the smaller end from the two sides of the larger one, severally; multiply the remainders into each other, and the product by 1-3 the height of the frustrum. Then multiply ½ the sum of the remainders found as above, by the side of the smaller end. and that product by the height—then multiply the area of the smaller end by the height. The sum of these three products is the solid content of the frustrum.

NOTICE.

WHEREAS, it has been the practice for the Chelsea and Kilmainham Pensioners to give up their Instruction Papers to Agents, and receive their Pensions through that channel, instead of appearing personally for the purpose of being identified as His Majesty's instructions require. The Commissary General hereby gives notice, that all Pensions must be claimed in person, at least once in each year.—The Pensioners resident at Richmond, Perth and vicinity, will in future receive their Pensions, on and after the 25th December, 1828, at By-Town, instead of Montreal, and they must claim their first payment at that Post in person, so that their existence and identity may be proved, as no other person or persons are (pursuant to Act of Parliament) entitled to receive the same, under any pretence whatsoever, if the Pensioner is living. Any Pensioner wishing to change his place of residence must notify the same through the Commissariat Officer, from whom he received his last payment.
