AMIDST the many valuable Establishments of this Country, there are none more extensively conducive to the interest of the Public, and the benefit of individuals, than well conducted Life Assurance Offices.
THE VERY IMPORTANT TRUTH cannot be too widely disseminated,—it ought to be distinctly known in every family, and to every member of society, that by the yearly payment of a moderate sum, a person may secure to his wife, his children, his dependent relatives, or his friends an adequate provision against the pecuniary distress which might be produced by his death.
An Assurance being effected, all risk is removed, and he has the consoling reflection, that whether he live a month, a year, or many years, he has placed his family beyond the peril of depending for daily support upon the uncertain continuance of his health and life. To the Clergy, to the Medical Men, to Lawyers, to Merchants—and others whose incomes depend, in a great measure upon their powers of healthy exertion. Also, A person of limited stated income, the practice of Life Assurance recommends itself, not merely as a measure of expediency, but as a BOUNDEN DUTY.

IRELAND.
DUBLIN, Sept. 2, 1848.

THE SPECIAL COMMISSION.—The Special Commission for the trial of the leaders and other participators in the late insurrection, was fixed yesterday to be held at Nenagh, on Tuesday, the 12th inst. The presiding Judges are to be the Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench and Chief Justice Doherty.

VISIT OF LORD GEORGE BENTINCK.—The Freeman's Journal, on the authority of its London correspondent, announces that Lord George Bentinck comes to Ireland immediately after the recess, nominally on a visit to his friend, the Marquis of Downshire, at Hillsborough Castle, but in reality to ascertain what practical legislative measures can be originated by him, and carried for the social and political improvement of the Irish people. No day is fixed for his departure.—His present intention is to remain for a few days in Dublin, and then proceed by slow stages into Ulster.

MR. F. T. MEAGHER.—The Cork Reporter is "authorised" to state that Mr. Meagher has retained as counsel for his defence Mr. Whiteside, Q. C., and Sir Colman O'Loghlen.

MORE ARRESTS.—The following curious statement appears in the Cork Reporter of yesterday:—

"On the 7th of this month a man named Jas. Redmond, who had taken up the sum of £40 13s 6d, from Mr. Dargan's office, in the name of Mr. H. Fitzmaurice, absconded, and that gentleman having some suspicion that he was proceeding to America in one of the vessels lying at Cove proceeded thither yesterday, in company with Head-Constable Crowley, for the purpose of searching for him. When they arrived in Cove they were joined by Constable Casey of that district, and the three proceeded on board an American vessel, named the N. D. Chase, bound for Boston, where the passengers underwent a rigid scrutiny to ascertain if Redmond was on board. While examining the emigrants, Head-constable Crowley perceived a gentlemanly looking man, whose face he thought familiar to him, upon which he asked him his name, which the other replied was Corcoran. The head constable having some suspicion of him, consulted with Constable Casey, and eventually they deemed it their duty to take him into custody, notwithstanding that another young gentleman stepped up, who stated that his name was Daniel Corcoran, and that the prisoner was his brother. Having brought him to Cove, Constable Bean, of the Monkstown station, was sent for, who identified the prisoner as the gentleman who stated his name to be Murray at the Monkstown Hotel, and who had made his escape from the two policemen. Upon this the prisoner admitted that he was Mr. Terrance Bellew M'Manus, and gave satisfactory answers to every [illegible] which he was, but thought he was going to Ireland for family reasons, and did not wish his own name to be used, and he therefore permitted me to use his. He expressed great regret at the two policemen having been dismissed on his account at Monkstown, and with tears in his eyes stated that if he had succeeded in getting to America he would have provided handsomely for them and their families. As to his own fate, he said he was indifferent about it, provided that he had been of use to Ireland, which he trusted he had, but that he feared that she had become the scorn of surrounding nations. Mr. M'Manus having been secured, the constables again went on board to arrest Mr. Daniel Corcoran, for harboring and aiding him to escape, but as soon as they got to the vessel some disposition was evinced, particularly by the women, to prevent any further arrests. However, when the mate was informed that the vessel could be put under sequestration, he permitted the police to arrest Mr Corcoran and convey him on shore. Both prisoners were brought up in the Cove steamer last night and placed in the Bridewell, where two persons were left in the cell of each of them, who were relieved every two hours.

"This morning they were brought up handcuffed, and guarded by three policemen with their guns and bayonets, to the police office, for examination before Captain White and Mr. A. F. Roche.

"Mr. M'Manus was in most excellent spirits, and very communicative to those friends and persons who thought proper to ask him any questions; but Mr. Corcoran was rather reserved and preserved a rigid silence.

"After the examination of two constables, informations were drawn up and sworn to, the prisoners having first read them.

"The two gentlemen were then removed from the court handcuffed, and placed in separate jaggies, one containing Mr Walker and two police, and the other H. C. Crowley and two more, and escorted by four mounted men, they were drawn off to the City Gaol. Previous to being removed Mr. M'Manus, who is a most gentlemanly person in appearance and address, thanked those gentlemen who had shown him any kindness, and said he did not regret any act he had done, but would cheerfully go through it again."

THE POTATO BLIGHT.—The Northern Whig says:—"We have received the following letter; and we have to state that, according to the information which has reached us from various quarters, there appears sufficient reason to believe that at present the disease in the potato is less extensive than has been supposed, and that it is not progressing as had been apprehended.

"Sir,—On Tuesday last I took a tour through the parishes of Ballyclare and Ballynure, for the purpose of ascertaining what was the real condition of the potato crop at present; how far the disease had progressed; and what was the opinion of the farmers as to the probable result; and I am happy in being able to inform the public that the answers to my enquiries upon the whole were satisfactory. It is true, the blight, from whatever cause, is everywhere observable in the withered leaves, but very partially affecting the stalk; and wherever I found the healthy stem the tubers were equally healthy and sound. There is not, I think, more than one-fifteenth diseased. "Black sheddings" were an exception; the half of them are gone;—however, there are but few of them planted. The farmers in general are of opinion that the disease is not making progress; on the contrary, that the crops, and oats of like kinds, are continuing to improve at the roots; so that, after all, we have a good supply for human food from the quantity planted.

"JOHN LARMOUR, Relieving Officer.
"Carrickfergus, August 30."

CLERICAL PEACE-MAKERS.—It is not generally, if at all, known, that during the existing martial ordinances were in the hands of the police for the apprehension of two Roman Catholic clergymen of the archdiocese of the Most Rev. Dr. Murray; and who, owing to the intervention of the latter, narrowly escaped companionship with the most great leaders now lying prisoners in Her Majesty's gaols of Kilmainham and Newgate. The names of the reverend disaffected are not unknown to the readers of Irish intelligence as being constant spouters at the meetings of the Confederation. The Rev. Mr. Meehan, of St. Michael and St. John's Chapel in this city, and the more celebrated Father Thadeus O'Malley, having by their speeches and writings rendered themselves obnoxious to the authorities, orders were issued for their arrest. Before, however, they were put into execution, their friends strongly advised themselves to absent themselves until the storm blew over. Both gentlemen having resolutely declined taking this course, Mr. O'Malley's capture was effected. In the meantime the diocesan interposed in his behalf, and after being two hours in custody the rev. gentleman was set at liberty, but upon what conditions is unknown beyond the precincts of the lower Castle-yard. In Mr. Meehan's case the warrant it is said, was absolutely suspended.

THE FRENCH REPUBLIC.

From the London Times.

SEPTEMBER 2ND.

During the extraordinary period in which the affairs of France were directed by the Provisional Government, various motives contributed to induce the principal organs of public opinion throughout Europe to suspend their direct censure of the irregular and scandalous proceedings of that administration and to postpone the complete exposure of the depravity and the crimes of those who had suddenly been invested with supreme revolutionary power. We do not regret the indulgent reserve which was observed towards that Government, because, bad as it was, powers more fierce, more sanguinary, and more wicked, lay beyond it, and by comparison with such men as SOBRIER, HUBERT, and BACHES, even a LEDRU-ROLLIN and LOUIS BLANC seemed almost durable. But the great inquest of the French Assembly on the causes which have already on more than two occasions brought the Republic itself to the verge of ruin, has preserved in lasting records a picture of the Provisional Government of France which exceeds the darkest suspicions and heaviest accusations ever brought against it; and we only regret that the enormous bulk of these revolutionary annals and the infinite confusion of the mass of evidence render it impossible for us to analyse or condense such multifarious treachery and such intricate iniquity. It is vain even to draw a line between one part of the Government and another; for although there is no distinction between such a man as ALBERT (Ouvrier,) who boasted to LEDRU-ROLLIN on the 15th of May that "in half "an hour not a wretched Chamber (the National "Assembly) would have the fate it deserves," and his more moderate colleagues, yet from the first these colleagues had been well aware what fuel was every day put upon the fire. Clubs of the most atrocious and violent character were in hourly communication with the Minister of the Interior, and though their leaders vast sums of the public money were spent on the missions of revolutionary emissaries to the departments. On one occasion alone LONGUEREL, one of the chief agents of LEDRU-ROLLIN, received upwards of 300,000 f. to be spent upon these creatures. And what emissaries were selected to do honour to republican principles! Umbrella-makers, pastry-cooks, an agent for wet-nurses, a scene-painter, a milliner, miserable men of letters (!), and not a few branded galley-slaves formed the [illegible] of the professors of liberty, the lords of [illegible] the chartered libertines who were sent forth [illegible] destroying spirits to pervert the reason, to [illegible] the passions, and to demoralize every honest [illegible] ment of the French people. No wonder if
