MENTION HONORABLE GENERAL EXCELLENCE.
D. Whitehead's
ARRIVED AT LAST.
THIS elegant Turkish Tonic is one of the most salutary and delicate preparations ever submitted for public approval in this hemisphere, and asserts its pretensions to patronage on the following grounds:
That it is a preparation of one of the most eminent Purveyors to the Ottoman Court.
It prevents acidity of the stomach.
It relieves lowness of spirits.
It is a mild and invigorating tonic, and a most efficient but innocuous stimulant.
It renders the breath sweet and agreeable.
It stimulates the appetite if taken before meals.
It promotes digestion if taken after meals.
It neutralizes the propensity for strong liquors.
It renders the intellect bright and clear.
If taken habitually it imparts vitality and energy to all the bodily organs.
By its use a man of 70 will become, as it were, restored to the elasticity of 30; and to persons of delicate constitutions it is strongly recommended.
It is an especial favourite with Oriental ladies.
Secure, then, health, longevity and vital energy by the habitual use of the ALKABASAR TURKISH TONIC.
Kept in stock by the principal Druggists and Grocers in the Dominion.

Batchelor's Hair Dye.
This splendid Hair Dye is the best in the world; the only true and perfect Dye. Harmless—reliable—instantaneous—no disappointment—no ridiculous tints—"does not contain lead or any vitalic poison to injure the hair or system." Invigorates the hair and leaves it soft and beautiful; black or brown. Sold by all druggists and dealers. Applied at the Factory, 16 Bond Street, New York.

The Florence Nightingale of the Nursery.
The following is an extract from a letter written by the Rev. C. Z. Weiser to the German Reformed Messenger, at Chambersburg, Penn:—
A BENEFACTRESS.
Just open the door for her, and Mrs Winslow will prove the American Florence Nightingale of the Nursery. Of this we are sure, that we will teach our "Susy" to say, "A blessing on Mrs Winslow," for helping her to survive and escape the griping, colicking and teething siege. We confirm every word set forth in the Prospectus. It performs precisely what it professes to perform, every part of it—nothing less. Away with your Cordial, Paregoric Drops, Laudanum, and every other Narcotic, by which the babe is drugged into stupidity and rendered dull and idiotic for life.
We have never seen Mrs Winslow—know her only through the preparation of her Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. If we had the power, we would make her, as she is, a physical saviour to the Infant Race. 25 cents per bottle. Sold by all Druggists.
Be sure and call for
MRS WINSLOW' SSOOTHING SYRUP,
Having the fac-simile of "Curtis & Perkins" on the outside wrapper. All others are base imitations.

Prof. Edward North, Clinton, N.Y.
Surgeons in the Army, and others of eminence.
Sold everywhere at 25 cents per box.
"Troches," so called, sold by the ounce, are a poor imitation, and nothing like Brown's Bronchial Troches, which are sold only in boxes with fac-simile of the proprietors,
JOHN I. BROWN & SON,
on outside wrapper of box, and private Government stamp attached to each box.
This care in putting up the Troches is important as a security to the purchaser, in order to be sure of obtaining the genuine Brown's Bronchial Troches.

DISTRESSED CONDITION OF THE PEOPLE IN PARIS.

There are indications, apart from complaints contained in letters from Paris, that the blockade is already telling severely on the troops and the people of Paris. The Bavarian General Hartman states, in an official report, that several hundred women and children from Paris appeared at the German outposts between Montrouge and Bicetre, on the 24th ult. Being told that they would be fired upon unless they returned forthwith, they replied that they preferred death to their miserable life inside the city. They were permitted to cross the German lines. The prisoners also taken at the last sortie from Paris state that the troops in the city receive only twice a week half a pound of meat. The population also, for the sake of a little food, expose themselves to the fire of the besiegers as it is thought they could not be induced to do except under the sternest pressure. Hundreds of people daily sally forth from the gates, at the risk of their lives, to dig up potatoes from the fields between, and even before the forts, which make a show of covering them by a heavy fire. A few days ago two or three thousand came out with carts round Mont Valerien in quest of vegetable sustenance; and at one time the outpost firing becoming rather lively, the marauders got such a fright that they fled back en masse leaving their rolling stock and booty behind them.

HOSPITAL SCENES AT VERSAILLES.

A correspondent at the Crown Prince's head-quarters describes a visit to the Palace wards:—The first I entered was the "Salle des Guerriers Celebres"—the ancient ante-chamber to the apartment of Madame de Pompadour—in which were the usual hospital scenes—a Sister of Charity with a bowl in one hand and a spoon in the other, feeding a soldier too weak to rise; a surgeon dressing a dreadful wound—"I am trying to save the joint, but I fear—still it's a neat case." The poor wretch looked at the shattered bone as if he more than shared the doubt. While I was in one of the Salles des Marechaux a surgeon was probing a gun-shot wound in the thigh of a man, who uttered such harrowing yells that the Sister of Charity—there is one in each room—turned and fled, a wounded man near burst into tears, and all in the ward were agitated except the surgeon and his assistants, one of whom tried to stop the outcry by putting one hand on the top of the "patient's" head, and squeezing his mouth and chin with the other, till the doctor lost his patience and roared at the wretched sufferer to be quiet, applying a strong term at the same time. The yell died into a whimpering moan still more dreadful, and I retired. The doctor is a very clever man, I am told, and has his hospital in capital order. One man is alive with a ball lodged in his brain; he had even been conscious. Another had the side of his skull clean carried off by a bit of shell. The gallery of Louis XIII., of the admirals of France, and so on all round, are filled with wounded men. Every day there is a ceremony which attracks a crowd in Versailles, and makes its sad sensation—the departure of funeral parties from the front of the palace with their burdens for the cemetery. These military funerals are conducted with great propriety and decent solemnity. The officers' coffins are covered with a black velvet pall, with a cross edged with white thrown over it, and the biers are decorated with wreaths and chaplets; the men's are draped with white. When all is ready the bearers take up their loads, the band leads the way, and nothing can be more touching, plaintive, and tender than the strains of the funeral march. Then comes the infantry guard with sloped arms, not reversed. Then the officers who are mourners; next the chaplain, with an officer on each side; the coffins are borne behind the chaplain, who is on foot, and the procession is closed by the firing party and by soldiers and civilians. All along the route to the cemetery the streets are crowded, and the windows are full. You see women in black with streaming eyes look out on all that remains of an enemy whose hand may have filled the unconscious house with mourning. In the cemetery there is an immense excavation, capable of containing some hundreds of coffins. And so Protestants and Catholics are left to their rest. "They will never enter Paris," growled a young man near me as he walked off; "those there, at all events." "Mon ami," said, in a gentle tone, an old gentleman, turning around on him, "let us hope they will enter a far better place, where we shall meet them."

Apples are a drug in the market this season. Seventy-five bushels of fair quality were sold by auction a few days since in Grafton, Vt., for one cent a bushel.

After three trials before the Pittsburg, Penn., District Court, a verdict for $525 has been awarded to a young man of that city for the loss of one of his toes on the Pittsburg and Manchester Passenger Railroad.

A French functionary who was present at the capitulation of Soissons states that when the balls began to whistle about their heads he saw the regular troops by hundreds throw down their arms, unbuckle their knapsacks, and run away as hard as they could. The same thing occurred at Orleans, and in other places.

An Irish woman who was stealing wood at Holyoke, Mass., the other night, got too big a load, and the rope with which it was bound slipped around her neck and strangled her. She was found dead next morning.

At the recent consecration of the Jewish synagogue in Columbia, Ohio, the pulpit was occupied, besides the rabbis, by six clergymen, four of whom were Methodists, one a Presbyterian, and the sixth a Congregationalist.

It is five years since nitro-glycerine came into use. The one thousand seven hundred persons whom it has killed or maimed for life, and the millions of property which it has destroyed, may be styled recommendations of its efficiency.

In Rhode Island bribes are never offered to voters, but this is the way they do it: An honest man says to an independent voter, "I'll bet you $10 you don't vote for——." Voter—"I'll bet you $10 I will." Voter goes out and votes for——, wins the bet, and gets his money. Of course no reasonable man will call this bribery.

The Chinese division of human life is interesting. The age of 10 is called the opening degree; 20, youth expired; 30, strength and marriage; 40, officially apt; 50, error knowing; 60, cycle closing; 70, rare bird of age; 80, rusty visage; 90, delayed; 100, age's extremity.

Muelhause was the name of the foreman of the pyrotechnic department in the arsenal at Swinemunde, Prussia, who plunged his bared hands and arms elbow deep in a boiler of seething pitch, and took therefrom an extensive hand grenade, which a workman had accidentally dropped into it, thereby saving many lives and that part of the town from the effects of a terrible explosion. Recently the citizens of Swinemude assembled to do him honour, and he was presented with a costly gold watch and a splendid sword in token of their appreciation of his heroism.

The Cincinnati Commercial has a Washington telegram which states that soon after the meeting of Congress Secretary Fish will retire from the State Department, and that General Ben Butler will be his successor. "It is determined," says the writer, "to force the Alabama claims with diplomatic insolence, so as to humble the British Government if submitted to; or if not, to fetch on a war."

M. Baroche, the eminent French statesman, formerly Minister of Justice, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Vice-President of the French Senate, died on the 29th ult. at Jersey, where he has been living for the past month. He was 68 years of age.

The King of Italy has presented to the Emperor of Austria, through the Italian Ambassador at Vienna, a magnificent hunting chest, used for the chase, all made of the horns of animals which had been killed by the King.

Small pox is said to be raging along the upper parts of the Ottawa river, and several of the stopping places along the way have the infection very badly. It is likely the municipality will shut up such places until the disease abates.

Mr Gladstone is, we understand, the author of the article on "France, Germany, and England," in the recently published number of the Edinburgh Review. The notice which the essay had attracted by its intrinsic ability and by the freedom with which it discusses the questions of European policy, will not be diminished by the knowledge that it proceeds from the pen of the First Minister of the Crown.

Advices just received from Melbourne to Sept. 10 state that the news of the outbreak of war between France and Prussia had caused much excitement, and that energetic measures were being taken to put the colony in a state of defence in case Great Britain should be drawn into the struggle. A permanent artillery corps, consisting of trained and experienced men, was being formed; the volunteers, who number about 4,000, were being converted into militia; the large 300 and 68-pounder guns were to be mounted with all possible speed; the batteries were to be placed in order, new earthworks constructed, and the naval brigade was to commence drill so as to be ready for active service if the occasion arose. With these and other preparations the colony would soon, according to the Argus, be in a position to give a very warm reception to any enemy likely to pay it a visit.

There was a public meeting in Tours, last evening in the favourite Salle des Mille couverts, otherwise known as the Vendanges de Bourgogne. The chief speaker was an individual from England named Merriman, who held forth to a delighted audience in plain unvarnished Anglo-Saxon. The funny part of the oration was that, after each sentence, the speaker paused and a translation of the same was given to M. Pascal Duprat, who is himself utterly ignorant of the English language. How he did it, was at first a mystery to me, but a friend placed in my hands a copy of the Siecle which that morning had published a French version of something Mr Merriman had pronounced before a distinguished meeting of equally distinguished citizens in Hyde Park. The notion was not a bad one, for the two orations bore a great family likeness to each other, the only points of difference being that in London the abuse was principally directed against the Queen, the royal family, and her German relatives generally, while in Tours Napoleon, Eugenie and the Bonapartes were the objects of his vituperation. M. Duprat detected this, and made the necessary substitution, his fertile brain supplementing anything which he thought might be deficient in power or point."

THE CITY OF BOSTON.—A bottle has been cast upon the shores of the west which presumes to throw some light upon the mystery enveloping the loss of the missing steamer City of Boston. Obviously, however, the relic must be received with reserve, especially as we are without any collateral evidence of its authenticity. On Saturday a bottle appears to have come in and been picked up on Cranstock Sands, two mi
