THEODORE'S LETTERS TO SIR ROBERT NAPIER.

Masses of fresh papers connected with Abyssinian expedition has been published. It contains selections from Sir Robert Napier's despatches, with a variety of papers relative to the services of the Army, the supply of transport, the medical services, &c. Among the documents are communications addressed to the Commander-in-Chief by the late King Theodore after the defeat of his army at Arogee. These letters, translated from the original Amharic, will be read with interest.—Delivered by Lieutenant Prideaux, and the Dejet Alamie on the 11th April, 1868. Note, without superscription, signature, or date. Along with it accompanied the Commander in Chief's letter, this morning, in which the king was pleased to submit. In the name of the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost, God in His Trinity and His Unity, whose trust is Christ, thus speaks:—Kings of Abyssinia, will it always be so? you flee before the enemy, when I fight for the power of God, go not forth to you to encourage you! Believing that power had been given to me, I had subdued my Christian people in this place and spot. In my city are multitudes of slaves fed; maidens protected, and women unprotected; women whom yesterday made widows; and aged parents have no children. God has given you power. See that you forsake not these sins. It is a heathen land. My counsellors have turned their backs on me, and deserted me, because I imposed tribute on them, and sought to bring them under military discipline. You have prevailed against me by means of people brought in contempt of discipline. My followers who before me were frightened by one bullet, I held in spite of my commands. When I addressed them I was not with the fugitives. Believing myself to be a great lord, I fled to you battle; but, by reason of the cowardliness of my artillery, all my pains were unavailing. The people of my country are taunting me with having embraced the religion of the Franks, and by saying that I had become a Mussulman, and in ten different ways, had provoked me to anger against them. Out of what I have done of evil towards them may God bring good. This will be done. I had intended, if God had so willed, to conquer the whole world; but it was my desire to die if my purpose could not be fulfilled. Since the death of my friend I now no man has dared to fight against me. Whenever my soldiers have gone to war in battle, it was mine to win and not my them. Last night the darkness hindered me from doing so. Your people, who have passed the night in joy, God has not done unto you as he has done to me. I had hoped, after subduing all my enemies in Abyssinia, to lead my army to Jerusalem, and expel from it the Turks. A warrior who has dandled strong men in his arms like infants will never suffer himself to be dandled in the arms of women."

No. II.—Delivered on April 12, by Mr Rusher and the King's scribe. Note.—Sealed with the royal seal. In the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, Amen. The King of the Kings, Theodore. May it reach the beloved servant of the great Queen of England. I am glad to hear you without being able to address by name, because our intercourse has been unexpectedly. I am grieved at your sending my writing of yesterday, as having quarrelled with you, my friend. When I saw your manner of fighting and the discipline of your army, and how my people failed to execute my orders, I was consumed with sorrow lest that although I killed and punished my soldiers, yet they would not return to the battle. Whilst the fire of jealousy burned within me, Satan came to me in the night, and tempted me to kill myself with my own pistol. But reflecting that you would be angry with me if I were to do it in this manner and leave my army without a protector, I sent to you in a hurry, that I might die and all things be in confusion before my message had gone. I touched my pistol, and putting it in my mouth, pulled the trigger. Though I pulled and pulled yet it would not go off. Then when my people rushed upon me, and laid hold of the pistol, it was discharged. Just as they had drawn it from my mouth. God having thus signified to me that I should not die, but live, I sent to you Mr Rusher that same evening, that your heart might be made easy. To-day is Easter, I wished to let me send a few cows to you, the reason of my returning to you yesterday was that I believed at the time that we should meet one another in Heaven, but never on earth. I let the night pass without sending for the body of my friend Peter Graree Gibre, because I thought that after my death we would both be buried together; but, since I have lived, be pleased to allow him to be buried. You require from me all the Europeans, even my best friend Mr Waldemeier. Well, be it so. They shall go. Now that we are friends you must not come without artizans, as I am a lover of mechanical arts."

Sir Robert Napier the above letters proceeded to induce him to modify the resolution he had formed of insisting at all costs on Theodore's surrender. On the contrary, they rather confirmed the impression that the King identified the idea of friendship of the English forces with the support against his enemies. The Commander-in-Chief remarks:—"It will not be forgotten that, while they were being written, the mangled remains of at least 300 of his countrymen who had been blinded by his order, and some of them killed by his own hand, were exposed to view at the bottom of the rock from which they had been thrown. The treacherous manner in which, only a few days before the appearance of our army, he plundered the peasantry of the districts round Magdala, who, owing to his solemn promise of protection, had always been faithful to him, must be taken as a further illustration of the king's real character."

A telegram from the Secretary of State for War tenders to his Excellency and the Army, both European and native, her Majesty's cordial congratulations and thanks, which speaks in high terms of the foresight, energy, promptitude, skill, and spirit which his Excellency has displayed, and also expresses the special pleasure with which her Majesty has observed the care taken to provide for the wants of the sick and wounded. Sir Stafford Northcote observes that it is with peculiar gratification that he finds himself charged with the duty of conveying these acknowledgments to the native portion of the army. "They have taken," he says, "a worthy place by the side of their English fellow soldiers, in an operation on which the attention of Europe has been fixed, and have given to the world a striking proof of the extent to which India contributes to the power of the British Empire." The despatch closes with an intimation that the government have resolved on granting six months' donation batta to the naval and military forces.

Who is Mrs. Winslow?

As this question is frequently asked, we will simply say that she is a lady who, for upwards of thirty years, has untiringly devoted her time and talents as a female Physician and nurse, principally among children. She has especially studied the constitution and wants of this numerous class, and as a result of this effort, and practical knowledge, obtained in a lifetime spent as nurse and physician, she has compounded a Soothing Syrup for children teething. It operates like magic—giving rest and health, and is, moreover, sure to regulate the bowels. In consequence of this article Mrs Winslow is becoming world-renowned as a benefactor of her race; children certainly do RISE UP and bless her; especially is this the case in this city. Vast quantities of the Soothing Syrup are daily sold and used here. We think Mrs Winslow has immortalized her name by this invaluable article, and we sincerely believe thousands of children have been saved from an early grave by its timely use, and that millions yet unborn will share its benefits, and unite in calling her blessed. No MOTHER has discharged her duty to her suffering little one, in our opinion, until she has given it the benefit of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup. Try it, mothers—TRY IT NOW.—Ladies' Visitor, New York City.

Sold by all druggists. 25 cents a bottle.

RAPPE, WEBER, & Co.,

MANUFACTURERS OF

GRAND OVERSTRUNG SQUARE PIANOS,

Corner of King & Princess Streets

KINGSTON, ONTARIO.

RAPPE, WEBER, & Co. announce to the Public that they are now in possession of facilities for manufacturing Pianos unsurpassed, if equalled, by any in the Dominion.

The members of the Firm are Practical Piano Makers, and are anxious to establish their success in manufacturing enterprise by careful workmanship rather than by mere speculation. They are able skilfully to superintend every department, and are prepared to guarantee every instrument they sell.

For strength of manufacture and materials, beauty of finish, and durability and excellence of tone, they challenge the Dominion to produce superior instruments; and while they claim for their work every excellence that can be expected from skilful and enterprising workmen, they beg to announce that their resources are sufficient ample to enable them to compete in prices with any speculator in Pianos.

The Subscribers keep no Travelling Agent. All orders addressed to the Subscribers, or sent through any respectable Music Dealer, will receive attention. Orders through mail will be attended to as if selected in person.
