FRANCE AND PRUSSIA.

The Eastern Correspondence gives interesting news about the health of Bismarck and the influences now at the Prussian Court. The latter, it is now quite convalescent; his pains, which formerly caused him much suffering, have disappeared, he is already able to walk and drive. In the last few days he has worked an hour, and telegrams are constantly arriving at Varzin (his estate in Pomerania where he is now staying) and Berlin. A report is daily sent him by Herr Delbrück, his deputy in the Cabinet. The reports are addressed to the Count an Varzin, describing his late journey through Germany, and expressing his satisfaction at the conduct of the South German sovereigns, of whose loyalty he declares himself thoroughly assured. His Majesty seems disposed to adopt the policy of General Moltke and his party, who holds that Prussia would best consult her interests, not by making alliances with Austria, but by uniting herself as closely as possible with the other German States. The General is especially averse to a war with Russia, which is advocated by a strong party at Court, consisting of the Minister of War, General von Roon, the Minister of the Interior, Count Eulenburg, and General Manteuffel. Although a strong lover of the blessings of peace, General Moltke, the Times says, like most Prussian officers, thinks that a war between France and Prussia is inevitable, and that France is waiting for the completion of her army to find a pretext for picking a quarrel with the conquerors of Sadowa. The Times is also shared in by the King, who says that Prussia should do her utmost to avoid such a result.

SODA LAKE OF MEXICO.

About 40 miles of Tescoco, a short distance from the capital of Mexico, and communicating with the city by means of a canal, is one of the greatest natural curiosities of Mexico. In the centre is a barren rock, like a hill composed of volcanic ashes, known as El Penon de los Banos, or the Baths, rising from the surface. This rock is famous for the manufacture of crude soda, or tequesquite, which is much more remarkable for its quality than its vast resources. The valley adjoining the lake is impregnated with a species of soda, and the water itself is a concentrated solution of soda, it contains an immense deposit of the salts of sodium, chiefly the carbonate of soda, and the carbonate of lime. The lake has a great surface and a great depth, and with a rainy season of the utmost and a dry season of eight, its rapid expansion and contraction is from a surface of 20 miles in its maximum, to 180 miles in its minimum. A calculation of the contents of the lake was made at the time when it was considerably dried, and the proportion of solid matter ascertained to be not less than 20 per cent. The Penon soda stills are not large, but illustrate the rude principle. Fires all around the lake. They are pyramids of accumulated dark blue-ware, in which large round holes are burned here and there. In these holes bags of skin, and in the bag the impregnated decaying earth is found every morning by the lake. Over this earth water is poured, and the liquor, which sinks through the dirt, and is drained from the bags into a vessel below. The solution is then brought is evaporated over a fire, and tequesquite is the result. This is the process, which is the same that was used in the days of Montezuma. With this abundant system of manufacture, the lake, according to the estimates of the School of Mines of the city of Mexico, produces annually 3,000,000 pounds of crystallized carbonate, and 3,696,000 pounds of tequesquite of impure soda.

Official history of the military events of 1866 has been drawn up by the general staff of the army, and gives the definitive loss as follows: Killed in battle or dead from wounds, 4,359; victims of cholera or other maladies, 36,880. Total, 16,177.

A dispatch of Verona states that lately during the vintage vintagers proceeded to the church of Sant' Anna di Dosso-Baono, in order to ring the bell, the sound of which they believed would drive off the tempest. However, the lightning, instead of entering, fell on the tower and killed the bell ringer.

The newly organized Legislatures in the United States—those of them, at least, which have got fairly at work—give no high-toned evidence of their title to a full restoration of the franchises that properly belong to them under the Federal Constitution. They set manfully to work at the removal of disabilities from the minority recently delivered from the enjoyment of political rights. From Montgomery, Alabama, we have it reported that the Legislature, or a very large number of the members, favour the repeal of all the disfranchising statutes, and a resolution looking to this end has been offered by the Speaker of the House, and is made the order for Friday. In South Carolina there is an equally generous disposition displayed by the governing majority, and there is no reason to expect that a less liberal spirit prevails in any of the lately rebellious States, excepting, perhaps, Texas and Tennessee.

An interesting discovery has been made at Pompeii. Three days back a portion of the wall of one of the stables at the military quarter of Samnium gave way beneath the feet of the horses, precipitating them into a chamber about ten feet deep. On the rubbish being cleared away, some of the pupils provided with torches, and found subterranean passages branching off in various directions, and which proved to be the vaults of the Doric abbey of Saint Jacques of Pompeii. An exploration in the direction of the King's palace brought to light the tombs of the clergy, and in a remote corner was found a mausoleum bearing the date of 1481, and a Latin inscription showing that the monument had been erected to the memory of Archduke Louis, the eldest son of the Emperor Maximilian and Marie de Bourgoyne. The remains of the deceased were found in a leaden coffin containing the body was at the bottom of the mausoleum, which was of marble, and surmounted with a child in marble, with its head on a pillow, with a lion at its feet.

Who is Mrs. Winslow?

As this question is frequently asked, we will simply say that she is a lady who, for upwards of thirty years, has untiringly devoted her time and talents as a female Physician and nurse, principally among children. She has especially studied the constitution and wants of this numerous class, and as a result of this effort, and practical knowledge, obtained in a lifetime spent as nurse and physician, she has compounded a Soothing Syrup for children teething. It operates like magic—giving rest and health, and is, moreover, sure to regulate the bowels. In consequence of this article, Mrs Winslow is becoming world-renowned as a benefactor of her race; children certainly do RISE UP and bless her; especially is this the case in this city. Vast quantities of the Soothing Syrup are daily sold and used here. We think Mrs Winslow has immortalized her name by this invaluable article, and we sincerely believe thousands of children have been saved from an early grave by its timely use, and that millions yet unborn will share its benefits, and unite in calling her blessed. NO MOTHER has discharged her duty to her suffering little one, in our opinion, until she has given it the benefit of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup. Try it, mothers—TRY IT NOW.—Ladies' Visitor, New York City.

RAPPE, WEBER, & Co.,

MANUFACTURERS OF

GRAND OVERSTRUNG SQUARE

PIANOS,

Cor ner of King & Princess Streets

KINGSTON, ONTARIO.

RAPPE, WEBER, & Co. announce to the Public that they are now in possession of facilities for manufacturing Pianos unsurpassed, if equalled, by any in the Dominion.

The members of the Firm are Practical Piano Makers, and are anxious to establish their success in manufacturing enterprise by careful workmanship rather than by mere speculation. They are able skilfully to superintend every department, and are prepared to guarantee every instrument they sell.

For strength of manufacture and materials, beauty of finish, and durability and excellence of tone, they challenge the Dominion to produce superior instruments; and while they claim for their work every excellence that can be expected from skilful and enterprising workmen, they beg to announce that their resources are sufficiently ample to enable them to compete in prices with any speculator in Pianos.

The Subscribers keep no Travelling Agent. All orders addressed to the Subscribers, or sent through any respectable Music Dealer, will receive attention. Orders through mail will be attended to as if selected in person.
