CABLE NEWS.

Madrid, Oct. 9.—The provisional Junta has made a declaration in favour of civil and religious liberty. It is received with enthusiasm and extensive popular demonstrations have been made in Madrid, specially in favour of religious toleration.

Large numbers of workmen are idle in consequence of the political agitations, which have caused a temporary suspension of industry and labour in the city. The provisional Junta assures them that work will soon be provided for all who want it.

A rumour is current that the Duke and Duchess of Montpensier have been allowed to re-enter Spain.

Much excitement has been created in Catalonia by the reform in the customs tariff.

Madrid, Oct. 9.—The Cubans in this city demand that their Island be represented at the deliberations of the provisional Junta.

London, Oct. 9.—Rumors are current at Paris and Madrid that Cuba has declared for independence.

Madrid, Oct. 9.—The Junta will bring a bill before the Cortes for abolishing slavery in the colonies at the expiration of ten years.

London, October 9.—The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone has issued his address to the electors of South Lancashire. After reviewing the progress of reform in England, he proceeds to criticize the course of the Government, especially condemning the increased estimates. In regard to Ireland, he says the true policy would be to make law the friend of the Irish people. He repudiates the propositions for a general endowment of the churches in Ireland, and says the case against the Established Church is aggravated by the fact that it is the church of the rich; the arguments in favour of its continuance are a satire on misapplied funds; the Established Church is a mark of past oppression; disestablishment will give the clergy of that church more scope; the interests of the Irish people must be cared for; the revenue must be applied to public and social works, and not to religious establishments. Mr Gladstone closes with an appeal to the voters of South Lancashire to support the only just policy which England can pursue.

London, October 9.—The Newmarket races closed to-day. Sizoah won the first race; Wild Oats the second.

San Francisco, Oct. 9.—The Franklin House and three adjacent buildings were burned last night. A number of lives were lost. Five bodies have been recovered from the ruins.

Havana, Oct. 9.—Mexican advices state that Colonel Dominguez, one of the leaders in the late Vera Cruz rebellion, had arrived at the capital and been pardoned by the executive. Estimates of revenue receipts for the ensuing year show there will be a deficit of six million dollars.

New York, Oct. 10.—The steamer Deutschland, from Bremen, has arrived.

Philadelphia, Oct. 9.—The first innings of the 22 was concluded for 47 runs, leaving the English eleven 70 ahead. The International baseball match between eight of the Cricketers, with Harrop of the Olympic Club as pitcher, against the Athletic Champion Nine, will be played next Monday. The Cricketers will not accept the odds of extra men or outs.

MR HOWE'S SPEECH AT DRUMMOND COLLIERY.

The Halifax Reporter in its account of the opening festivities of Drummond Colliery in Nova Scotia (an enterprise in which Canadian capital is largely invested) thus reports the speech of the Hon. Joseph Howe:—

As this speech is of considerable importance we will present it to our readers stripped of the oratorical leaves and foliage which loaded it. We will give the denuded trunk and the main branches. Mr Howe first spoke of the extraordinary medley presented by the company before him. Scripture told of many things hard to be understood. But the hardest thing he had undertaken for many a day was to understand this gathering. "No three of you think alike. Every man is ready to fly at his neighbour's throat or to fling him out of the country, because both disagree. Here am I with a Canadian alongside of me, whom I hate and whom at this instant by the instigation of the devil I am desirous to slay, but he has put all weapons, including knives and forks, out of my way. Beyond are officers of the British army. On the other side is a citizen of the United States. But here we all are in the wilderness, and though we differ, we eat our dinners with peace and good will shining in our countenances." From this juxtaposition of persons Mr Howe took his text, which was an examination of the position of Nova Scotia with reference to Great Britain, the United States and Canada, together with her duty in the future. Discussing the relations of Nova Scotia with Great Britain, he said we cannot fight England. Canada tried that once, and she got a lot of muskets and put marbles in them and set men to fire them off, which they did and then ran away. They were big fools. What would Nova Scotia be if, without men, muskets or marbles, she attempts that game? Great Britain he averred to be the greatest maritime nation in the globe, and likely, with her seacoast larger than that of France or the United States, to remain so for the next thousand years, which was far enough in the future to look forward to. The true policy of Nova Scotia was amity and friendship with Great Britain. He next took up the relations of Nova Scotia with the United States, pronounced a eulogium upon the hardy industry and enterprise of the people, spoke of the vastness of its territory, of the wonderful progress it had made, and gave it as his deliberate conviction, that "the United States were a very good neighbour, and long might they remain so." He then referred to the Canadians, declared that Nova Scotians had no cause of quarrel with the people of Canada; if there was anybody to quarrel with, it was the six Nova Scotians who had wrought us wrong. But as for the Canadians they were a fine, manly, noble hearted race, and when a miscreant press had sought to plunge his country in infamy by proposing that Sir John A. and his party should be pelted with rotten eggs, he had fairly boiled over with indignation. He had penned a letter, and nothing gave him greater satisfaction. But a wrong has been wrought us. Let us not blame the Canadians. They never meant it. If there were any feelings of hatred they should be banished. Let us remember the hundred years of common history we and they have had, the hundred years of effort in the same direction. "When Robert Baldwin was working for responsible Government in Canada, he was aiding, by his vote and voice, me working here for the same thing and aiding him by my vote and voice." Let us remember the hundred years yet to come of closer agreement, union, friendship, than had in the past existed. Let us remember the hundred years in the past of friendship, and the hundred years in the future, and forget all about the one or two years of estrangement and of strife. In referring to our future Mr. Howe said that the "great Northern nation" now being built up had a great and special mission to accomplish. "Here am I," said he, "a Canadian, along side of me is John Bull, represented for the occasion by our old friend Sandy Keith (whose back received a substantial evidence of friendship from Mr. Howe's open palm.) On the other side is the United States represented by Judge Jackson. When John Bull gets a little fiery, and declares he will not stand any more insults from brother Jonathan, our mission will be to assuage his kindling wrath and to beg him for our sakes not to war. When Jonathan threatens and grows insolent we may say we have interest in the preservation of peace. Our mission is lying between the two sections of the great Anglo-Saxon race, to keep the peace between them—to act the blessed part of peacemakers. Mr Howe said if any of the eaters of Pictou had a grievance against Canadians, he could only suggest one plan to obtain redress. Let them gather their clans, select thirteen of the most fitting, and send them up to Ottawa. There were thirteen privy councillors. Let the thirteen Nova Scotians pull the noses of the thirteen Canadians. Duels would be the result. Providence would no doubt protect the Nova Scotians, though he must confess they ran some risk. However, they might kill off the first thirteen. Let them wait till another thirteen were selected, and repeat on the fresh batch the old operation, and in time they would no doubt depopulate the country and subdue them. That was the only plan his judgment recommended. Mr Howe in conclusion proposed the health of Sir William Logan, passing a high compliment upon the man whose fame borne on the wings of science had flown to the uttermost parts of the earth. He gave an account of a visit he (Mr H.) had made to Sir William's museum in company with Trollope, the author, and how Sir William had made poetry to flow out of the stones as copiously as Moses had made water gush forth from the wilderness-surrounded rock.

Sir William Logan, in rising to respond, spoke of the remarkable coal basin over which they were standing, said it had taken him seven years to determine the coal beds of South Wales, and the coal beds of Nova Scotia were infinitely more complicated. He assured his hearers that Nova Scotians had much to be proud of in possessing a province so rich in mineral resources.

The Springfield Republican says that a box of Boston letters, recently lost in the mail, has turned up in that city, nothing being lost except the interest of $100,000, contained in it, while lying idle.

The year 1860 will witness the completion of the two greatest enterprizes the world has ever witnessed—the Suez Canal and the Pacific Railroad.

No eclipse of the sun so favourable for observations upon the nature of that celestial body as that of the 18th August, can occur for two hundred years.

A. T. Stewart purposes erecting an immense block in New York, divided into family apartments, to be offered as houses rent free for the families of ruined merchants. It will cost a million of dollars.

A German artisan describes his business upon his sign in a single word, namely: "Hinterladungsverterligewehrpatroinembilsmfabricantarbeitenchef." Described concisely in English he is "manufacturer in chief of cartridge sockets for the Vetterli breech loading rifle."

The heirs of Weber, the great composer, have lately received a sum of four thousand francs from the sale of his works. This is the result of the prolongation of literary ownership for the period of twenty years.

The statue of William, Duke of Cumberland, the hero of Culloden, which has been standing in the centre of Cavendish square, London, for ninety-eight years, has fallen into such a rapid state of decay that it has been taken down to be modelled and recast.

To the Electors of the County of Frontenac—

GENTLEMEN: The death of your late member, Sir Henry Smith, having rendered vacant the representation of the County of Frontenac in the Legislative Assembly of Ontario, I am induced to think that the offer of my services might be acceptable to the Electors. Long identified with the County interests, and having as an old member of the County Council, and as Warden, become thoroughly conversant with your local affairs, I am, I think, in a position to be of service to you in the Legislature. Many of you too have had knowledge of me in my business transactions, and you can thus in both respects form an opinion of my fitness for the honour which I seek at your hands.

Agriculture will have in me a warm and active friend, and I shall always be ready to lend my aid to all measures having its advancement in view.

The promotion of the settlement of the country I shall endeavour to further by seeking to have the Back Roads completed, by endeavouring to secure the passage of a generous Homestead Law, and the adoption of a more liberal policy with respect to Free Grants of Public Lands.

Education has been greatly fostered in Canada for many years past by grants of public money. I believe that most good can be done with such grants by adopting the channels which the various denominations of Christians among us have selected for the expenditure of their own means, and I will advocate the continuance of the grants to the several Colleges in Ontario which they have hitherto received.

The present Government of Ontario has met the just expectations of the people in the economical administration of public affairs, and is entitled to my cordial support.

I shall endeavour to see you as far as time will permit, between now and the Election, and will be ready to explain my views on all public questions.
