COPPER CENTS.

The Globe lately printed an article calling upon government for its assistance in suppressing the copper nuisance. Thereupon the Kingston Daily News accuses our Toronto contemporary of inconsistency, on the ground that with respect to the silver nuisance, the Globe urged private action and proclaimed the impotence of the government to effect anything by way of legislation. The Globe will no doubt be quite able to sustain its own consistency in the matter, and we do not presume to offer our aid in its defence. Nevertheless the subject being one of general interest, we venture to say that we believe our Kingston contemporary is in error in supposing that the copper and the silver nuisance depend upon the same circumstances, or are to be abated by the same remedies. Precisely why it happens that men will receive a coin to which they are accustomed at the old nominal rate, when it has ceased from any cause to have the old value, we do not know. It probably depends upon some quality of the human mind which induces us to continue in an habitual track, even when our judgment informs us that it is no longer desirable to do so. At any rate, those who are acquainted with the history of coinage are aware that it has always been difficult to change the habits of the mass of the people in this respect, and that it has been commonly found necessary, when circumstances have changed, to adjust transactions to previously formed habits. This is what has taken place in Canada. A shopkeeper would lose his customer if he refused to take an American quarter dollar for twenty-five cents; so as the quarter will not answer in his wholesale payments for more than about twenty four cents, he has to add four or five per cent to his charges in order to cover the loss; and then the customer is perfectly satisfied. This is not a desirable state of things, because the adjustment does not take place fairly all round, and a large sum is lost by the community in brokerages, discounts, &c., which would be saved with a currency on a really sound basis. But the government have nothing to do with that. They have not made this silver current at all; but, on the contrary, have created a sound currency, which, however, lies locked up in the bank vaults, simply because of the impossibility of persuading the public to refuse British and American quarters at par. What can government do more? They have tried the foolish remedy of a duty upon coin—one of the most gigantic absurdities ever perpetrated—and though they have embarrassed the transactions of a part of the population residing near the frontier, they have utterly failed, as they were sure to fail, in the proposed object. Are they now to inflict a punishment as for a criminal offence upon a man who receipts a bill, which has been paid him in uncurrent money? That is rather too great an absurdity to admit of being thought of; yet, if we cannot keep uncurrent money out, as experiment has shown us that we cannot, how are we to prevent it passing for more then its value unless we punish those who take it at the conventional rate? The Government, therefore, as we have always advised our readers, can do nothing for the silver nuisance. But the copper nuisance rests on a different ground, and for this simple reason—that the uncurrent or debased silver comes to us from a source outside of our territory, and which we cannot reach, whereas the debased copper is a coinage of our own creation, permitted by the Government, if not actually issued by its authority and for its profit. Of course if our people should consent to be flooded by American cents of less than the nominal value, Government could no more prevent them from suffering the consequent loss than it can save them from the inconvenience attending the silver currency. But that is not the evil with which we have to deal, and it is not likely that we shall have to deal with, inasmuch as our people are not accustomed to American cents, and when an attempt was made to introduce them it signally broke down. The evil with us is that the Government has permitted certain Banks to issue a debased coinage. Yet that we suppose would not have led to any injurious results but for the failure of the Upper Canada Bank, and the consequent throwing upon the country at once of an immense sum which had been stored in the vaults of the Bank, which ought to have been issued only gradually, as it was required for the business wants of the country. While the Bank was in existence we imagine that it was as much bound to redeem its issues of copper as its issues of notes; and it, therefore, had no object in making a larger issue than would keep itself out by the natural requirements of the country's trade. But the moment it failed all its store of copper coins was used in paying off its debts, and as it redeems nothing, there is no backward flow of this great current. The Bank had a large profit on the transaction—if we remember right, some forty per cent—and the public a corresponding loss. Now for this state of things the Government is responsible, and the remedy is easy and within its hands. At present, singular to relate, English copper coins are the only ones which are current by law, and the Canadian coinage is not a legal tender in the country for which it was struck. That was well enough when this coinage was merely a Bank token and redeemable at the Bank, but it is utterly wrong now that there is no place of redemption. The Government should, therefore, first of all declare this copper to be a legal tender to the extent say of 5s. Of course, it would then be receivable at the Post Office, and in any other payments to Government where broken change had to be made. In this manner the excess of copper coinage above what is actually wanted for current transactions would find its way into the Treasury, and there it should be retained and stored until it was found, by the slackening of the copper payments, that the public had no more of that coin than it wanted. After that point was once reached the Government should do as the Upper Canada Bank would have done had it remained standing—it should reissue the cents only gradually and as they are required. There is an immense loss of copper coinage, and it would be found that a regular demand would soon be felt. The whole loss to the Treasury by this transaction would be the cost of storage and the interest on the sums which might lie idle—a very trifling matter indeed and nothing in comparison with the public convenience, nor with the loss now sustained by the poorest class of the community, whose transactions are largely in copper. It may be noted here that providing there is one standard of real value like the gold coins of England, the rest of the metallic currency of a country may, without inconvenience, consist of tokens—that is, of pieces of less than their nominal value—if the sum for which they are a legal tender is limited. Of course the Government derives a profit on the difference between the real and nominal value of its coinage, and if it should continue to issue cents no larger than those of the Upper Canada Bank, it would gain largely. The only obstacle to that course, and one which might possibly interfere with the mode in which we propose to deal with the cent question, arises in this way—that if too large a shave be taken, a temptation may be held out to coiners, whose spurious money would be undistinguishable from the real because it would be of the same weight. Otherwise there is no difficulty in dealing with the copper part of the coinage question, and that upon principles which are perfectly clear and well understood. The spirit of quackery which characterizes our Government, however, induced Mr Cartier to make a promise to his electors of about equal value to that of the charlatan who pledges himself to cure consumption, while an evil perfectly within reach is allowed to remain. As to the old pence and half pence issued by the banks, they should be made uncurrent, called in at a certain rate, and broken up. Or they might be made legal tenders—the half penny for one cent, the penny for two, and treated as we have proposed that the cents should be treated, excepting their reissue.—Montreal Herald.

Coughs and Colds.
Sudden changes of climate are sources of Pulmonary, Bronchial, and Asthmatic affections. Experience having proved that simple remedies often act speedily and certainly when taken in the early stages of the disease, recourse should at once be had to "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Lozenges. Few are aware of the importance of checking a cough, or "common cold," in its first stage. That which in the beginning would yield to a mild remedy, if neglected soon attacks the Lungs. "Brown's Bronchial Troches," or Cough Lozenges, allay irritation which induces coughing, having a DIRECT influence on the affected parts. As there are imitations, be sure to obtain the genuine. Sold by all dealers in Medicines at 25 cents a box.

Mothers! Mothers!! Mothers!!!
Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of Mrs WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. There is not a mother on the face of the earth who has ever used it, who will not tell you at once that it will regulate the bowels, and give rest to the mother and relief and health to the child, operating like magic. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the eldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. Price 25 cents. Sold everywhere.
Be sure and call for "Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup,"
having the fac-simile of "Curtis & Perkins" on the outside wrapper. All others are base imitations.

Philosophy of Marriage.
A new Course of Lectures, as delivered at the New York Museum of Anatomy embracing the subjects:—How to live and what to live for; Youth, Maturity, and old Age; Manhood generally reviewed; The cause of indigestion; Flatulence and Nervous Diseases accounted for; Marriage philosophically considered, &c., &c. Pocket volumes containing these Lectures, will be forwarded post-paid, on receipt of 25 cents, by addressing "SECRETARY, New York Museum of Anatomy and Science, 618 Broadway, New York."

Batchelor's Hair Dye.
This splendid Hair Dye is the best in the world; the only true and perfect Dye; harmless, reliable, instantaneous; no disappointment; no ridiculous tints; remedies the ill effects of bad dyes; invigorates and leaves the Hair soft and beautiful black or brown, Sold by all Druggists and Perfumers; and properly applied at Batchelor's Wig Factory, No. 16 Bond street, New York.

Dr Record's Essence of Life,
The only unquestionable and absolute remedy for Nervousness, Debility, and Restoration to Manhood. The medicine, taken for four weeks, cures as certain as water quenches thirst. Sold in Bottles at $3 (in gold), or four times the quantity for $9. To be had from the Agent, WOMAN.

FEMALES, owing to the peculiar and important relations which they sustain, their peculiar organization, and the offices they perform, are subject to many sufferings. Freedom from these contributes in no small degree to their happiness and welfare, for none can be happy who are ill. Not only so, but no one of these various female complaints can long be suffered to run on without involving the general health of the individual, and ere long producing permanent sickness and premature decline. Nor is it pleasant to consult a physician for the relief of these various delicate affections, and only upon the most urgent necessity will a true woman so far sacrifice her greatest charm as to do this. The sex will then thank us for placing in their hands simple specifics which will be found efficacious in relieving and curing almost every one of those troublesome complaints peculiar to the sex.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT OF BUCHU.

Hundreds suffer on in silence, and hundreds of others apply vainly to druggists and doctors, who either merely tantalize them with the hope of a cure or apply remedies which make them worse. I would not wish to assert anything that would do injustice to the afflicted, but I am obliged to say that although it may be produced from excessive exhaustion of the powers of life, by laborious employment, unwholesome air and food, profuse menstruation, the use of tea and coffee, and frequent childbirth, it is far oftener caused by direct irritation, applied to the mucous membrane of the vagina itself.

When reviewing the causes of these distressing complaints, it is most painful to contemplate the attendant evils consequent upon them. It is but simple justice to the subject to enumerate a few of the many additional causes which so largely affect the life, health, and happiness of woman in all classes of society, and which, consequently, affect more or less directly, the welfare of the entire human family. The mania that exists for precocious education and marriage, causes the years that nature designed for corporeal development to be wasted and perverted in the restraints of dress, the early confinement of school, and especially in the unhealthy excitement of the ball-room. Thus, with the body half-clothed, and the mind unduly excited by pleasure, perverting in midnight revels the hours designed by nature for sleep and rest, the work of destruction is half accomplished.

In consequence of this early strain upon her system, unnecessary effort is required by the delicate votary to retain her situation in school at a later day, thus aggravating the evil. When one excitement is over, another in prospective keeps the mind morbidly sensitive to impression, while the now constant restraint of fashionable dress, absolutely forbidding the exercise indispensable to the attainment and retention of organic health and strength; the exposure to night air; the sudden change of temperature; the complete prostration produced by excessive dancing, must, of necessity, produce their legitimate effect. At last, an early marriage caps the climax of misery, and the unfortunate one, hitherto so utterly regardless of the plain dictates and remonstrances of her delicate nature, becomes an unwilling subject of medical treatment. This is but a truthful picture of the experience of thousands of our young women.

Long before the ability to exercise the functions of the generative organs, they require an education of their peculiar nervous system, composed of what is called the tissue, which is, in common with the female breast and lips, evidently under the control of mental emotions and associations at an early period of life; and, as we shall subsequently see, these emotions, when excessive, lead, long before puberty, to habits which sap the very life of their victims ere nature has self-completed their development.

For Female Weakness and Debility, Whites or Leucorrhœa, Too Profuse Menstruation, Exhaustion, Too Long Continued Periods, for Prolapsus and Bearing Down, or Prolapsus Uteri, we offer the most perfect specific known:

HELMBOLD'S COMPOUND EXTRACT OF BUCHU.

Directions for use, diet, and advice, accompany.
Females in every period of life, from infancy to extreme old age, will find it a remedy to aid nature in the discharge of its functions. Strength is the glory of manhood and womanhood.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU

is more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron, infinitely safer, and more pleasant.

HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU,

having received the indorsement of the most prominent physicians in the United States, is now offered to afflicted humanity as a certain cure for the following diseases and symptoms, from whatever cause originating: General Debility, Mental and Physical Depression, Imbecility, Determination of Blood to the Head, Confused Ideas, Hysteria, General Irritability, Restlessness and Sleeplessness at Night, Absence of Muscular Efficiency, Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Emaciation, Low Spirits, Disorganization or Paralysis of the Organs of Generation, Palpitation of the Heart, and, in fact, all the concomitants of a Nervous and Debilitated state of the system. To insure the genuine, cut this out. Ask for HELMBOLD'S. Take no other. Sold by all Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Price $1,25 per bottle, or six bottles for $6,50. Delivered to any address. Describe the symptoms in all communications. Address H. T. HELMBOLD, Drug and Chemical Warehouse, 594 Broadway, N.Y.
None are genuine unless done up in steel-engraved wrapper, with fac-simile of my Chemical Warehouse, and signed

THE CIRCULATION of the DAILY NEWS is fully one-half larger than that of any other daily journal published in Kingston. The circulation of the old established weekly CHRONICLE AND NEWS is also greater than any other weekly published in the county. Advertisers will perceive that these journals are the best media for attracting public attention in this locality.
