The Daily News.

FRIDAY EVENING, JULY 7.

CABLE NEWS

July 6. An obscure man named Lemaire has murdered Vicaire, the Mayor of the town of Sache, Department of Indre et Loire. The curate of the parish, attacking one of his parishioners with oils to anoint the body of the murdered man, was also assassinated. Great intense excitement against the Jesuits prevails in the town. A later report announces that De Lallande has committed suicide to escape punishment for his crime.

July 6. A loan is to be raised by the municipality of Paris for the purpose of repairing the monuments destroyed during the war.

Count Ducatel, who became traitor to the Communists to the Versaillists, has received a cross of the Legion of Honor.

Marshal McMahon has been reinstated in the Palace of Versailles.

The Duke de Nemours and M. Schneider, former President of the Corps Legislatif, are candidates for the Assembly.

The election is to be held on Sunday next to fill the vacancies in the Assembly where one has been chosen by different constituencies.

The Orleanists having declared for the Duke de Joinville, will undoubtedly succeed in the Department of La Manche.

Count Montauriol and staff have paid a ceremonious visit to President Thiers. The President subsequently dined with the Prince Leopold Prince Waldersee, German Charge d'Affaires, and Gen. Prince Waldemar, of Prussia, were invited.

Prince Waldersee has informed the Foreign Office that Field Marshal Count Moltke has written to the German commanders in France forbear from inflicting punishment on offenders whom French law can reach.

Prince Waldersee has complained to the Versailles Government of the bitter language used in Germany and the Germans by the French newspapers.

The "Union" in making this statement charges other journals to exercise the forbearance in their illusions to the Prussians.

July 6.—The steamer Gambia was totally wrecked in Algoa Bay. No lives have been received.

The Prince of Wales will attend the Warrington festival in aid of the erection of a statue to Sir Walter Scott.

July 6.—Frederick William, Crown Prince of Prussia, accompanied by his wife Victoria, arrived in London this afternoon and were received at the station by the Prince and Princess of Wales. The Prince brings with him the order of the Black Eagle, which he will confer on Count Bismarkoff, the German Ambassador at the Court of St James.

July 6.—The jury in the Tichborne case privately informed the Judge that they were convinced that the plaintiff was an impostor, and that they were ready to give a verdict to that effect witout hearing the witness for the defence. The Judge consented to give his consent, and the trial proceed.

July 6.—The Submarine Messenger, a journal devoted to the interests of submarine telegraphing, says the Atlantic Telegraph Companies have adopted an irritating policy which occasions great dissatisfaction and general protest in this country. The Government is anxious to increase the facilities of the press. From this fact cable companies should take a lesson. The press, if it will protect itself, and the press and public are allies. We must have an opposition. The Liverpool Chamber of Commerce has already set the ball rolling and the movement is spreading. Existing companies pay 10 per cent. for monopolists. The growing business country is looking out for a line, which the public is in a right temper to encourage.

It is said Napoleon will soon leave England for Geneva, and that Eugenie will immediately pay a visit to her mother in Madrid.

July 6.—The republican journals protest at the continuance of a state of siege in Paris, which they declare is useless and oppressive.

It is said that first act of the National Assembly as soon as the newly elected deputies have taken their seats, will be to confer the powers of M. Thiers as chief executive of the nation for two years.

An opposition is mooted of entrusting Marshal MacMahon the command of the army, in order to give greater unity to action, which will soon amount to several thousand men.

A court martial for the trial of the prisoners now under arrest will take place in following order: First, the central committee; then persons charged with usurped public functions, who are generally compromised in insurrection. General Rossel will be tried by a special tribunal.

On July 6,—The National Assembly passed the law requiring caution money to be given by a vote of 317 to 199.

July 7.—Great freshets have occurred in the Derwent, Wye, Severn and other rivers, and have caused heavy loss to property by the destruction of buildings and crops.

Extremely severe thunder storms have visited the suburbs of London. Many houses were set on fire by lightning and burned, and a number of lives were lost.

The Cunard ship Silesia, from New York, arrived at Plymouth this morning.

July 7.—The debate on the budget and the reorganization of the Department of the Seine prevent the Assembly taking its recess until the end of July.

It has been proposed to lend President Thiers the Palace of the Elysees as a residence, pending the transfer of the government to Paris.

The Bank of France yesterday despatched upwards of four millions of francs. Twenty-five dray carts were needed for the transportation of that amount to the railway station.
