EFFECT OF ADVERTISING.—It is amusing at times to observe the stores of the merchants who don't advertise; to see the anxious proprietors looking into the streets and see the people go by, wondering why they don't come in, while the stores of their neighbours who do advertise are thronged with customers. Some people will learn by observation, others will not.—Daily Palladium.

TO PHYSICIANS.

New York August 15th, 1867.

ALLOW me to call your attention to my PREPARATION OF COMPOUND EXTRACT BUCHU. The component parts are BUCHU, LONG LEAF, CUBEBS, JUNIPER BERRIES.

MODE OF PREPARATION.

Buchu in vacuo Juniper Berries, by distillation, to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement by liquor obtained from Juniper Berries, containing very little sugar, a small proportion of spirit, and more palatable than any now in use. The active properties are by this mode extracted.

Buchu, as prepared by Druggists generally, is of a dark colour. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle), leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the colour of ingredients. The Buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection it will be found not to be a Tincture, as made in Pharmacopœa, nor is it a Syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflammation exists. In this, you have the knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favour it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of confidence,
I am, very respectfully,

H. T. HELMBOLD,

Chemist and Druggist of 16 years' experience in Philadelphia, and now located at his Drug and Chemical Warehouse, 594 Broadway, New York.

[From the largest Manufacturing Chemists in the World.]

"I am acquainted with Mr H. T. Helmbold; he occupied the Drug Store opposite my residence, and was successful in conducting the business where others had not been equally so before him. I have been favourably impressed with his character and enterprise.

WILLIAM WEIGHTMAN,

Firm of Powers & Weightman, Manufacturing Chemists, Ninth and Brown Streets, Philadelphia.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

For weakness arising from indiscretion. The exhausted powers of nature which are accompanied by so many alarming symptoms, among which will be found Indisposition to Exertion, Loss of Memory, Wakefulness, Horror of Disease, or Forebodings of Evil; in fact, Universal Lassitude, Prostration, and inability to enter into the enjoyments of society.

The Constitution, once affected with Organic Weakness, requires the aid of Medicine to strengthen and invigorate the system, which invariably does. If no treatment is submitted to, Consumption or Insanity ensues.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU,

In affections peculiar to Females, is unequalled by any other preparation, as in Chlorosis, or Retention, Painfulness, or Suppression of Customary Evacuations, Ulcerated or Schirrous State of the Uterus, and all complaints incident to the sex, whether arising from habits of dissipation, imprudence in, or the decline or change of life.

HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU AND IMPROVED ROSE WASH will radically exterminate from the system diseases arising from habits of dissipation, at little expense, little or no change in diet, no inconvenience or exposure; completely superseding those unpleasant and dangerous remedies, Copaiva and Mercury, in all these diseases.

Use HELMBOLD'S FLUID EXTRACT BUCHU in all diseases of these organs, whether existing in male or female, from whatever cause originating, and no matter of how long standing. It is pleasant in taste and odour, "immediate" in action, and more strengthening than any of the preparations of Bark or Iron.

These suffering from broken-down or delicate constitutions, procure the remedy at once.

The reader must be aware that, however slight may be the attack of the above diseases, it is certain to affect the bodily health and mental powers.

All the above diseases require the aid of a Diuretic. HELMBOLD'S EXTRACT BUCHU is the great Diuretic.

Sold by all Druggists everywhere. Price $1,25 per bottle, or six bottles for $6,50. Delivered to any address. Describe the symptoms in all communications.

Address H. T. HELMBOLD, Drug and Chemical Warehouse, 594 Broadway, N.Y.

None are genuine unless done up in steel-engraved wrapper, with fac-simile of my Chemical Warehouse, and signed

H. T. HELMBOLD.

Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

Rev. Sylvanus Cobb thus writes in the Boston Christian Freeman: We would by no means recommend any kind of medicine which we did not know to be good—particularly for infants. But of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup we can speak from knowledge; in our own family it has proved a blessing indeed, by giving an infant troubled with colic pains quiet sleep, and its parents unbroken rest at night. Most parents can appreciate these blessings. Here is an article which works to perfection, and which is harmless; for the sleep which it affords the infant is perfectly natural, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." And during the process of teething its value is incalculable. We have frequently heard mothers say they would not be without it from the birth of the child till it had finished with the teething siege, on any consideration whatever.

Sold by all druggists. 25 cents a bottle.

Be sure and call for

YOUNG RAVENS.

(From the London Telegraph.)

Yesterday we enjoyed the remarkable experience of dining with the "Young Ravens." The scene was a large, low room in Great Queen street, Lincoln's Inn Fields, the time mid-day, "for small and early" was the word as regards the guests of this amazing dinner party and the hour. Punctual to the stroke of 1, flights from the London ravenries might be seen directing their course to the feast provided for them. Five hundred of the raggedest and hungriest boys and girls in St. Giles and Bloomsbury had been bidden by the Refuge Society to the weekly banquet, which is given during the winter by this excellent association. They came from all quarters out of the various gathering places in long strings—just as ravens might. No need to ask what was in the wind—beef and potatoes and white bread were in the wind, as any one could tell by their ravenous eyes and open beaks. There were he-ravens and she-ravens, all of tender years, but most tremendous appetites—appetites which would not allow them to walk to the glorious rendezvous. As they neared the spot they kept breaking into quick trots, not to be repressed by those in charge; and mingling with the flight the observing eye was borne forward into the premises of the Refuge Society. Passing, with the sharp-set swarm, through workshops and schoolrooms, the said observing eye came upon the large low room where boards were spread with five hundred tin plates and earthenware mugs; and down upon these in a cawing cloud, the small London birds settled—the boys on one side of the room, the girls on the other. Up and down the middle were immense block-tin pans and dishes, trenchers of colossal size, piled with huge slices of bread and cans of water. Going into the large room was a kitchen, where monstrous masses of roast beef, mountains of mealy potatoes, and bakers' shops full of loaves awaited distribution. On the arrival of the birds the cooks and the assistants went to work with carving-knives, and very soon reduced the roast beef to thousands of slices, the mealy potatoes were shot out into the block-tin pans by hundreds, the dripping was poured over them, the loaves were cut into four, and the tables up and down the room were charged with the smoking provisions. This done, a dozen swift attendants whisked the plates up to the dishes, and carried them back with a rousing good help of beef, five or six potatoes and a quarter of a loaf. Salt in plates stood ready upon all the boards, and water was poured into the mugs. Five hundred little ones were there who never see beef except in this way—dressed in anything, indeed, but festive garments, yet with such eyes, watering mouths, such ready stomachs! You begin to understand what "hunger" means when there is all the year to practise appetite upon chance crusts.

While the beef and potatoes were upon the central tables, every eye was fixed upon these delicious foci, and when the distribution was made, every eye was fixed upon the plate pertaining to it. The rule is to wait till all are helped and grace is sung. The rule is very proper, but awfully hard to keep. The girls, as is natural, were most restrained; they sniffed the smoking vians demurely, and coquetted with their bread a little. The boys clattered and cawed in their stomachic anxiety, and surreptitious licks on the fingers were freely indulged in. One lad, with lean face and bright famishing eyes, made a false start, but was "brought up to the post" again by his immediate neighbours. Another, keeping "on the windy side o' the law," might be seen salting his slices delicately, and turning them over and over in rapt animal ecstacy of doubt as to which ought to be eaten first. Others buried their happy noises in the private fumes of their own tin plates; and others again gazed with knife and fork erect at the good Secretary, waiting desperately for that "grace before meat" which had to come before anything could be done. Like pupils at a private academy, each guest was bound to provide his or her knife and fork. Such a collection of heterogeneous cutlery was never seen. Lots of the forks had no handles but the tang, and some of them only one prong; the knives were occasionally shoemaker's drawing-tools, and here and there old clasp-knives or even penknives. One tiny hen-raven had forgotten her "plate" and was accommodated with a carving-knife and fork. But fingers were the great reliance, with the keen little white teeth; and, as "everything comes to those who know how to wait," by-and-by grace was given out and sung in a chorus, sharp and clear, with chronic famishment.

Then they began—shade of Ugolino! how they did begin! Five hundred sets of the keen little white teeth went at it and no mistake. The lad with the lean face and tiger eyes pounced upon his prey! the meditative boy forgot which slice he meant to eat first, and laid his knife down to make shorter work of it. So did the little one with the carving knife and fork; and all the talking was now changed into rattling of plates and utensils. Boys with rosy cheeks, to whom beef was not such a novelty, went up and down the rows of pale faces with fresh armsful of those Titanic cuts of white bread; while here and there a raven forgotten in the distribution cawed demonstratively till his crop was provided for. Some of them—to take the good cheer at better advantage, and to get to the end of their knives and forks—stood up to it. A tiny, pallid, pretty lad, whith his head bound up where, he said, a monkey had kicked it, was "going shares" in one knife with his two brothers. Others also had "limited liability" interests in forks; but somehow or other the viands disappeared with the most marvellous rapidity. If ever the "finger of Providence" was visible in anything it was in that repast. Dozens of the young ravens ought, by every rule of deglutition, by every anatomical law of the larynx, to have been choked. But in the worst cases a little convulsive bolt seemed to settle everything comfortably. "Their manners had not that repose," of course, "which stamps the caste of Verde de Verde." Knife-blades did duty for spoons to an alarming extent, and nobody "passed anything" to anybody. The water-mugs were joint stock property, like some of the cutlery, and it was strange to see how the life of poverty sharpens the sense of "No. 1" in such small hearts. The pallid, pretty boy got hold of the mug, and clung placidly but doggedly to it, as if he were in the Black Hole of Calcutta, or upon the
