New York freetraders held a meeting at Steinway Hall, at which the influential merchants, Cornell, Field, and Grinnell took the chair. A fund of $17,355 was subscribed for the expenses of the Association, and it was stated that Lloyd Garrison, the great anti-slavery man, was about to deliver a course against protection.

The New York Times writes: "Now that there are plenty in the city, and terms are far more able to make terms with landlords, we should think we might see a movement and a change in the relation of landlord and tenant in one particular. Houses here are let by the year, and no tenant can leave at the end of the year's expiration. Now in London and other English cities, as well as in Continental cities, a tenant may leave his house any quarter of the year, provided he gives notice in advance to the landlord. This has a great deal to do with keeping down a reasonable price, and it also prevents the tremendous excitement before May, and the tremendous rush of 'moving' on the 1st of May, which are peculiar to the city of New York. The New York system is utterly abominable in all its aspects. If we could have a reasonable single and simple matter of liberty to leave of a house on any quarter day, we should be in good effects in all directions."

The London Independent says: The assassination plot is bringing out many facts which might have remained hid, or at least unobserved. For example, it appears that in the districts there are no fewer than 20,000 priests, which is one to every nine of the population. Since the revolution, too, it is found that the articles of "many millions of gold" have been carried off from the churches by the priests. The valuables found in the Royal at Madrid have been deposited in the Bank of Spain. Among them are 2,000 relics, for which the late Queen, her predecessor, and preceding sovereigns, counted from the beginning of the eighteenth century, at their second count. This costly rubbish, which were palmed off upon the people as shreds of the Saviour's sweat and tears, as drops of His cross, a piece of the cradle in which He was born, with bits of bone, hair, nails, finger and toe nails—all of some departed saints. It is to be hoped they would fetch very little at a Rag Fair.

Some four years ago a gentleman from Toronto went out to select a district for the settlement of a large number of his fellow-countrymen, who had resolved to emigrate. He went back into the country north of Orillia; was delighted with what he saw, reminding him so much, in certain features, of his own land; and, with his mind made up, went down to Quebec, where our red men were then vegetating, to complete the bargain. He met with nothing there but indifference and contempt. Disgusted with the treatment, he set off to Washington, where he was speedily supplied with a Commission to guide him over the unsettled districts. With what effect this was done we gather from the fact that, the year after, there were 1,100 settlers for our lakes with 1,100 settlers for the following year since, and, no doubt, will be every year since, and, no doubt, will be for some time. Comment is needless. These facts have made the very best settlers for Canada on the part of those who are now on the absurd presumption that they might have secured them all for Canada.

TERRIBLE RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

The Bombay papers contain accounts of a terrible accident on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway on the 26th of January, an accident which is described as the least expected and most alarming ever recorded:—The through passenger train from Sholapore left Poona on the night of the 25 th January at 11 o'clock, and reached Lanowlee at one o'clock in the morning of the 26th. Here, as is always done, one of the powerful ghaut engines was attached, as also four ghaut brake vans, that number representing more than the amount of force believed to be necessary to control the speed of the train on the steepest inclines. All went well till Dhandalla was reached; the driver had, however, found the train "somewhat unmanageable," that is to say, he experienced some difficulty in regulating its speed. Before starting again, therefore, additional precautions were adopted, as the section of the Bhore Ghaut between Khandalla and the reversing station is the steepest and most perilous portion of it. Several wheels were "spragged," and a start made. Hardly had the train left the station when its speed began to be accelerated every moment, defying every exertion of driver, guard, and brakesmen combined to stop it. These men foresaw the danger that was unavoidable; unless the speed of the train was arrested, and that instantly, it must dash over the embankment at the end of the reversing station. The driver therefore reversed his engine, putting the handle "hard over;" but to no purpose. Seeing that nothing further they could do would be of any avail the driver and guard jumped off, and the ill-fated train flew into and over the embankment, at the rate, it is said, of 60 miles an hour. Sixteen passengers were killed, all natives, and many dreadfully mangled.—The coroner's jury declared it to have been caused solely by the slippiness of the rails, owing to the heavy dew.

Some boys lately went into an empty house in Harpurhey, and found a lot of very valuable dry goods. They made the matter known, but when some of the officials went to seize them—the goods were gone!

The Joliette Gazette says that Mr Joseph Robillard, aged 79, and his wife, Ursule Clement, aged 76, have celebrated their 60th year of married life. They have had 22 children, of whom 7 only are now living; they have also now 53 grandchildren and 50 great-grandchildren.

The gossips of Vienna have been talking for some time past about a love affair between one of the young Archdukes and a pretty little dressmaker. The Archduke is so infatuated with this girl that he talks about marrying her, which would be another terrible blow to the pride of the Hapsburg dynasty.

The extraordinary prevalence of crime in the State of Indiana ought to lead the authorities there to make something like a serious attempt to enforce the laws. Twenty-one murders in ten days in a State whose population does not exceed that of New York and Brooklyn, is something frightful, and surpasses the experience of any of the Southern States—even Texas itself. In ten of these cases only were the murderers arrested; in five others they were known to the authorities, but escaped, and in six cases the assassins are not known.

The Halifax Express prints the following respecting the precious "patriots," who are working so disinterestedly for the good of their suffering country. "It is now currently rumoured that the present Local Government, upon the requisition of the Repeal League, refunded to that body eight thousand dollars towards defraying the expenses of the first Delegation to England. It is also said that the League offered this $8,000 to Mr Howe, in order to purchase him, we suppose, and he refused to accept it. It is now further stated that $4,000, or one half the sum, balance is now being used to operate in Hants County against Mr Howe.

By intelligence from China we learn that the Hwangho, one of the largest rivers of the empire, has recently changed, or is changing its outlet, and now enters the sea at a point five hundred miles north of its recent mouth. The change is so complete that the Rev. Dr. Martin, one of the professors in the new University at Pekin, has walked dry foot over the spot where Lord Amherst's junks lay, while the natives burned incense to insure a favourable passage. There appears to be reason to believe that in this deviation the river is only returning to a bed on the north side of the highlands of Shantung through which it formerly flowed, and, according to Chinese records, it has repeatedly shifted its channel, sometimes divided by a delta, sometimes entering the sea by a single mouth.

Mr Dilke has libelled Canada and Canadians pretty freely, but from another book of travel, written by Mr Zincke, we obtain a far more friendly notice. The writer says: "In Canada there is the stage and there are the materials for a great nation. Its towns are more solidly built than those of the same size in the States, possibly on account of the greater severity of the climate. The country is generally fertile. It is also very varied, full of lakes and streams, and forests. It abounds in mineral wealth, and in agricultural produce. Notwithstanding its seven months winter (!) it is capable of ripening maize and maturing tobacco; and even, to speak of small things, through the medium of its peas, a crop which can rarely be grown profitably to the south of the lakes, it supplies no inconsiderable part of what is used for coffee among its neighbours. That product, however, of Canada, which most attracts the attention of the traveller, and is likely to make the strongest impression upon him, is the complexion of the Canadian ladies. It gives you more of the idea of transparency, otherwise you might have thought that it was pearl."
