HUDSON'S BAY COMPANY.

The adjourned meeting of the Hudson's Bay Company was held April 9. Between twenty and five hundred shareholders assembled. After a long and stormy debate the meeting decided to accept the offered by Lord Granville. As the remarks, imperial interests, great and dwarf the proprietary body, were so involved, Lord Granville to have stood still, rather the efforts of his predecessors have been blamable. "As Minister, he acquiesced in a state which for the sake of a Company property might be bought in for less than 1,300,000*l*., deprives the subjects in Rupert's Land of government, cramps the energy of the constituted Dominion of Canada; embroils the relations of Great Britain the United states." The Times concludes, "that the shareholders have a thoroughly good bargain, but that it is not less creditable to their union, for there was much both to alarm, and mislead their judgment. Nobody likes a peremptory summons and deliver' his property, without consideration, and to the Hudson's shareholders it was specially annoying shares sinking in the market in spite of the open canvass of their position of the peculiar risks attending the fur trade in Rupert's Land, and, idle to take umbrage at the "imperial interference' of the Colonial Office or to raise the cry of official spoliation. Granville had no option but to yield the matter. Equally useless was it to rail against the conduct of Canada. Company has no reason to be jealous of Canada. Commercially, Canada will not make a good purchase. It will be years before she is recouped any part of 300,000*l*. she is to pay; and for a long time simply to make the Settlement habitable and inviting—she will have to expend a large sum, perhaps from twenty to thirty thousand pounds, annually. It is, of course, the political consequences of the purchase that Canada looks. The Fertile Belt is her own, will in the course of a few years add millions to the inhabitants of Canada, and, mistress of Rupert's Land, may entertain the project of a Pacific and Pacific Railway through her own territory, which, if only it can be carried out, will establish within her own borders an emporium of the trade of Europe and Japan."

Lord Northcote's resolution to accept Granville's terms was as follows: "It is expedient to accede to the terms offered and to surrender to her Majesty's Government all this Company's territorial rights in Rupert's Land, and in any other part of British North America, not comprised in Rupert's Land, or British Columbia, and that the Governor and committee be and are hereby authorized to make such surrender, on being assured that the terms have been agreed to by Government and Parliament of Canada, and that the acceptance of the terms by the Government and Parliament of Canada has been signified to them, by her Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies, within a month after the passing of this resolution, for that purpose the governor and committee in all such measures as may be necessary for effecting such surrender, and for giving to the Company the rights and benefits to which, by the terms of the letter of Frederic Rogers, this Company will be entitled."

Carried by an immense majority, amid hisses, one or two shareholders shouting from the gallery their doubts as to the validity of the vote.

At the meeting, Hudson's Bay Company's shares opened ¼ and were quoted at 12¼ to ½.

The New Orleans Crescent says that Mrs Kate Covington, La., committed suicide in that city, in a frightfully cool manner. She placed the muzzle of the pistol against her breast and pulled the trigger, but the weapon did not fire. She applied a lighted candle to the touch hole and the charge exploded, killing her almost instantly.

The paper observes: "The price of Indian goods has advanced since the notorious outlaw Mackenzie made a contract with the authorities of Mexico, to furnish them at $10 per head for Indians caught in Mexican scalps to be presented to him in Mexican scalps at the same price. Col. Buck Barry, of Bosque County, is willing to a gentleman of Corsicana, to pay him one thousand dollars bounty for the scalp of each and every Indian he shall kill in that section."

A ship-load of Marseilles, with six French laborers, has gone to plant an olive grove in Sonora. He carries the seed, and also cuttings carefully sealed in metallic cans. The olive was once tried in Alabama under the patronage of Congress, but without success. Perhaps there was a match between the Sonora, Lake Superior, Anglesea, and Marseilles, to arrive here first. All five sailed on the twenty-fifth of March, within an hour of each other; the first from Glasgow, and the last from Liverpool. The Gleniffer wins the race against the Liverpool race. All are expected except the Anglesea. The Glenifer has not yet been signalled.

The generous relief of the Emperor has been to the southern facade of the new Louvre. It is a mass of white marble, and his Majesty is mounted as a Cæsar on horseback—a moustache a la gendarme. "The Pall Mall Gazette, "is that a gentleman in the saddle has mounted a gingerbread nigger."

A letter dated Lake City, Florida, April 1st says: "We have had strangely cold weather since this month came in, and I believe we shall have frost to injure cotton. The crop was badly hurt ten days ago; it may be said of cotton that was up. We have been told by a number of residents of the country, who are here attending court, that much of the cotton that was in bloom is dead, and heaps dying. A feeling prevails through the country.

A New Orleans woman had her eloping daughter and unwelcome son-in-law before the recorder for separation. She informed that it couldn't be done. They surveyed the happy couple for a while and then, shaking her head disapprovingly, said, "Judge, that girl ain't fit married; she has spells!" "Has she?" inquired the Judge. "Why, you don't know!" but before the lady could proceed her daughter sprang to her feet and exclaimed, "There ain't no use in saying I'm married, and if I ain't fit I'd like to know who is!"

VOLUNTEER DISCIPLINE.

The subject of volunteer discipline, though carried on for months in the London press, is not yet exhausted. "An American" now comes forward to state his views in the columns of the London Daily Telegraph. He says:—"Take 50,000 active, intelligent, young Anglo-Saxons—mind, I do not say Celts—whose brains have been exercised by pursuing some civil handicraft, and turn them at a moment's notice into soldiers, with the best of arms in their hands, and with experienced officers to lead and instruct them, and within three months they will be a match for any 50,000 men in the world." Spite of this panegyric on British capabilities, he adds that no brigade of English soldiers, fresh to war and armed with muzzle loaders, could have had a chance against a brigade of American troops in the fourth year of the war, so perfect in the art of fighting had they become. "Every soldier was his own engineer," and could not be induced to lie down at night and leave his front, flank, or rear unprotected. The writer concludes by saying that the volunteer army, if "marched," "camped," and "trained" for "not many weeks," could approach the perfection required of them to protect their homes and make them formidable to any enemy.

THE CAREER OF A SWELL CLERK. Mr Benjamin Higgs, the swell clerk of the Central Gas Company, who recently disappeared from his fine villas at Twickenham, seems to have been a most extraordinary man. His salary at the time of his appearance was under £400 per annum. His establishment at Teddington, however, was of almost princely character. Mr Higgs's habits were luxuriant and extravagant to the extreme. The Twickenham Observer says:—

"The house, which contained about thirty rooms, was fitted and furnished in the most sumptuous style. A large pleasure ground ran down to the river Thames, where he had built a massive river wall. He had also a large kitchen garden, and a model farm. He was building extensive stabling, fitted with all modern appliances, kept two pair of carriages, nine horses, and several ponies, and his family carriage and brougham were the most substantial and elegant in the neighbourhood. He had eight female servants, five gardeners, one groom, a coachman and under coachman, the household expenses requiring not less than two thousand a year. The furniture, the sale of which has just taken place, was of remarkable style and quality, as may be judged from the fact that a pianoforte sold for 155 guineas Mr Higgs's personal tastes and habits were not less extravagant; his gold watch and diamond ring were the envy of the connoisseur. He was musical, too, and his weekly musical parties were graced by the presence of our most celebrated artistes, who were sumptuously entertained and sent to London by special train. Mr Higgs's benevolent instincts were also large. On three occasions he gave concerts at the Clarence Hotel, Teddington, the most celebrated professional singers were engaged, the programmes were marvels of artistic beauty, the expenses were paid by Mr Higgs, and the entire proceeds were devoted to the building of new schools. On one occasion an insolvent received a cheque for £180, with which he effected a composition with his creditors. On another occasion an unfortunate man who was seriously injured by an explosion of the kitchen boiler while at his house, was established in business with £200. The Free Church of England at Teddington received a new organ at a cost of £300, and the same congregation, now meeting in an iron church, recently rejoiced in the promise of £2,000 towards a new and more substantial structure, which promise, however, has vanished with Mr Higgs. On the morning of his 'departure' there were eighty men employed upon a new mansion which was in course of erection upon land he was to have purchased at a cost of £600 per acre; the purchase, however, never completed, although the buildings were in progress. The mansion was estimated to cost £50,000. The freeholder was informed on the Tuesday before Mr Higgs's departure that there would be some difficulty and delay in the purchase and completion of the freehold, in consequence of Higgs's wife's trustees having failed to meet their engagements. It would be observed that he accounted to his wife and friends for this extraordinary expenditure by saying that he had received a legacy of £90,000 from a relative. For several days before leaving he was making preparations for his departure. On Friday afternoon, the 5th of March, he entered the Waterloo train as usual; but instead of alighting at Twickenham, proceeded on to Reading, thence to Liverpool, and that night went on board a steamer for America. There is one side to this extraordinary story which is indescribably painful. Mr Higgs has left behind him a wife and eight children, who until now were ignorant of the source whence all the comforts and luxuries of their home were derived, and are rendered absolutely destitute and dependent upon others.

The cotton manufacturers of England are urging upon the British government the policy of increasing its efforts to make India a permanent and extensive cotton-growing country. An enormous sum has been expended on this object already. Two hundred and fifty millions have been spent there by the mother country upon railroads alone, to facilitate the transportation of cotton to the seaboard.

Accounts from Kerry, Tipperary, Limerick and Waterford, state that the people leaving those districts are all of the young and healthy farming and labouring classes. The people are beginning to look upon emigration as a matter of course. Instead of shrieks of sorrow that formerly rent the air as the tenders with their living freight left our shores, now are to be heard vociferous cheers between those left-behind and those departing.

The Zulus are at liberty to marry as many wives as they like, and until the other day could bargain for these any wives with their fathers, irrespective of likes or dislikes which the girls themselves might have. This form of woman-slavery which had long been denounced in the colony as incompatible with the freedom of British subjects, was last year subjected to certain counteracting checks by the enactment of laws, requiring that all marriages be registered, that fees be payable on such registration, and that a certain fixed number of cows shall be a legal offer on the part of a wed. Hitherto it has too often been the case that wealthy old men have outbid their younger rivals, and that girls have been forced into marriage with patriarchal Bluebeards directly against their wishes and their will.

VERY NATURAL.—When a person has proved an article and found it good, and answering the purpose for which it is intended, he will not readily abandon it for one of doubtful reputation, or concerning which he knows nothing. We are led to make these remarks owing to the course always pursued by those who have used that celebrated and truly valuable horse medicine known as "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy." All are so well pleased with it that they will not use any other; many have waited several weeks until the agent could obtain a new supply. There is nothing equal to it as a condition medicine, or for any complaint affecting the wind of horses. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

Philosophy of Marriage.

A new Course of Lectures, as delivered at the New York Museum of Anatomy embracing the subjects:—How to live and what to live for; Youth, Maturity, and old Age; Manhood generally reviewed; The cause of indigestion; Flatulence and Nervous Diseases accounted for; Marriage philosophically considered, &c., &c. Pocket volumes containing these Lectures, will be forwarded post-paid, on receipt of 25 cents, by addressing "SECRETARY, New York Museum of Anatomy and Science, 618 Broadway, New York."

TWO QUESTIONS EASILY ANSWERED.—Why should men wear beards? Because they are a great protection to the throat and lungs, and add much to their personal appearance. Why should we use "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers?" Because when used for coughs, colds, tickling in the throat, hoarseness, &c., they act like a charm. Ministers and lawyers use them, physicians recommend them, and singers and public speakers say they are the very best medicine in existence for the cure of such complaints. Sold by all medicine dealers at 25 cts per box.

THROAT, NOSE, EYES, EYELIDS, SCALP, and SKIN,

Which so disfigure the appearance, PURGING the evil effects of mercury, and removing all taints, the remnants of DISEASES, hereditary or otherwise, and is taken by ADULTS and CHILDREN with perfect SAFETY.

TWO TABLESPOONFULS of the Extract of Sarsaparilla, added to a pint of water, is equal to the Lisbon Diet Drink, and one bottle is equal to a gallon of the Syrup of Sarsaparilla, or the decoctions as usually made.

AN INTERESTING LETTER is published in the Medico-Chirurgical Review, on the subject of the Extract of Sarsaparilla in certain affections by Benjamin Travers, F.R.S., &c. Speaking of those diseases, and diseases arising from the excess of mercury, he states that no remedy is equal to the Extract of Sarsaparilla; its power is extraordinary, more so than any other drug I am acquainted with. It is, in the strictest sense, a tonic, with this invaluable attribute, that it is applicable to a state of the system so sunken, and yet so irritable, as renders other substances of the tonic class unavailable or injurious.
