Paris May 2—The English press continue Mr Sumner's speech on the Alabama question, which occasions no little comment in official circles.

The general sentiment of reprobation of Mr Sumner's speech, says the Paris papers, will demonstrate to Americans, that English patience has its limits; that the limit has been reached; that England may stand an infinite amount of clamor, but menace—this is a tone she will not tolerate altogether. Menaces, it is proved, are a proof of weakness; but there is every hope that the settlement of our difficulties with the United States will be the easier task after Mr Sumner's speech. We do not infer from this that the Senate was wrong in rejecting the Johnson-Clarendon protocol; we believe it was obscure and deficient in points that have been rectified in regard to the two nations. But the language of the Radical Senator was unusual improper. The diatribe appeared to a trumpet of war rather than a call to peace, in a time of profound tranquillity and among a people anxious to procure it. A fire-ship in mid-ocean would have excited the same effect as the Senator's speech, and be just as useful.

We judge from the excitement prevailing on the other side of the water, says the Paris paper, the Alabama question is on the point of entering into a new phase—that of dispassionate reflection. Nations, like one with the other, with men, are very much in the habit of two men exhausted by the use of vituperative epithets cooling down and gradually begin to reason and interchange their views. A war should never go to war. The nations have thrown stones at us, not unjustly we admit, but as they live in a glass house, we could throw them with much propriety, returned in kind. As we have said we are ready to settle our difficulties with the United States in any way that will not touch the honour and interests of France by means of arbitration or otherwise. In this case the American people will see that they cannot expect, for this or that, a sacrifice of England's dignity or any sacrifices to which we will not consent.

Paris, May 2—The excitement produced here and in the United States by Sumner's speech, induces several French journals to take an alarming view of the affair. The Presse says that the two countries are on a declivity, and that if the Government is not observed they will be soon thrown into a war without wishing their part, to go into it.

The Pays believes, of course, that the present state of things is to the facility with which Demosthenes allowed away by reckless and ignorant all sorts of extravagant ideas.

The Pays believes that the American people in the same temper as the Neapolitan, would be most unfortunate to live out of the sight of the political convulsions, the vicissitudes, are an essential part of life.

The Pays believes that the agitation of the United States is due to the politicians who, having missed their aim in the late war, would be glad to most of the Radicals have made the great rebellion, and become rich. Nearly all the French papers believe that this Alabama affair is what it is generally thought, a casus belli, if proper measures to avoid it.

The opinion of public opinion to be in England and in the United States. A writer in the Public to suggest a mode of settlement the appointment of a commission selected among the friends of the United States in Paris. A commission composed of Michael Chevalier, Augustin, Edward Laboulaye, and a fourth to be formed, and as some of them are known to keep up relations with members of the British cabinet, this commission, it is thought, would have a happiest effect. The United States are morally sure that their interests are in good hands, and England, we think, no objection to raise the question of such men. Mr Reverdy Johnson and Lord Clarendon, on the other would supply the place which the French Commission would decide. This would be better than to put the case in the hands of English and American jurists, it would secure a fairer and more impartial of the whole affair than would result in any other way, even the intervention of Mr Motley, who is looked upon rather as an advocate of Sumner's sentiments than an exponent of the views of the American Government.

Paris, May 3, Evening—A public meeting was held in St. James' Hall to-night, in the Protestant interest, to protest against the disestablishment of the Irish Church. The audience was large, and included peers and members of the House of Commons were present. Resolutions were adopted strongly condemning the Irish Bill and calling on the House of Lords to reject or materially alter it.

London, May 3, midnight.—The House of Commons in Committee to-night resumed the discussion of the Irish Church Bill, concerning the Regium Donum. It was amended as to include provision for compensation, the Presbyterian congregations entitled even to share of the grant. Mr Gladstone said that the compensation was to be the endowments were small too, and the services rendered by the Church in Ireland; and according to the clause of the Bill, the present endowments are the only basis for compensation, providing for compensation to the professors, and for payments to the buildings of Belfast College, carried out in compliance with the wishes of the Presbyterian Synod, and the Government. Mr Gladstone said that other provisions would be made for this college.

Dublin, May 3.—A mass meeting of the citizens here, on Saturday night, adopted a most speech of the Mayor, which was enthusiastically received; and resolutions expressing sympathy with and support of the Revolutionary.

Madrid May 3.—In the Constituent Cortes the debate on the new Constitution has ended. All the amendments proposed have been rejected.

The Cortes has voted an amnesty for all persons who took part in the insurrection at Cadiz, Malaga and Xeres. Deputy Castella moved that the amnesty be extended to Carlists implicated in insurrectionary movements, but the motion was not agreed to.

A serious disturbance at Saragossa is apprehended. It is reported that the troops there are in a state of discontent and partial insubordination.

St. Petersburgh, May 3.—The recall of Mr Edward De Stoeckl, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from the Russian Empire to the United States, is officially announced.

New York Press Despatches.

New York, May 4.—The Tribune's Washington special says notwithstanding the confidence expressed by the Spanish authorities of their ability to speedily suppress the Cuban rebellion, the government is constantly in receipt of intelligence which shows that the insurgents have not brought into action all their available strength, and it is expected that the next two or three months will indicate something definite respecting the struggle on either side. In the meantime it is not the intention of the government to interfere so long as every demand made upon the Spanish authorities when our interests are interfered with is promptly acceded to.

The World's Washington special says:—The departure of Mr Motley to New York, whence he is to sail on the 19th inst. for England, and his departure too without the specific instructions which he was anxious to carry, and Mr Sumner anxious to write for him, constitute a victory of Mr Fish over not only the Minister and the Senator from Massachusets, but over all the opposition which has beset him since he succeeded to the Secretaryship of State. The event is hailed here to-night as the final shaking off by President Grant of the counsellors to violence who have surrounded him. Secretary Fish's influence with the executive is now paramount, and is believed to be permanent. As the Alabama business now stands, Mr Motley is not to move a finger until further instructed by Mr Fish. Mr Sumner laboured hard to have Mr Motley carry out a set of instructions, but gave it up in the middle of last week; and since then both himself and Mr Motley have been delivering themselves in the most voluble manner as being entirely en rapport with Mr Fish, whom they sought to supplant, while he was absent in New York. Mr Fish now having the affair in his own hands will certainly labour to bring all new measures to Washington for a settlement. This may be relied upon.

SPECIAL NOTICE.
Important to Farmers!

WESTERN CANADA has been, and is now noted for its fine breeds of horses, cattle, &c., and not until recently has Central Canada shown that these things called for special attention; but we are glad to know that a spirit of emulation has taken hold of the people in this section, which must result advantageously. It is true the County of Prince Edward has turned out a large number of noble animals, of the horse kind especially, but have the proper efforts been put forth to infuse new blood, and in that way keep up the superiority of our stock? We are afraid not, although it must be confessed that our breeds still to a large degree retain those qualities for which they have become somewhat noted. The introduction of Grey Hawk here, three years ago, was hailed with pleasure by quite a number of our farmers, and now they can see the result, which goes to show most decidedly the importance of blooded stock. We are told that Grey Hawk's colts, at two years, range in price from $100 to $150; and that as a general thing their carriage is all that could be desired, and their action faultless. It is a pleasure to speak of the advantages that are being derived from the introduction of Grey Hawk here, and we consider the thanks of the farmers and others are due to J. H. Allan for having, at a large expense and risk, refused to allow this valuable imported horse to leave the country.

☞ This Horse will be at each stand as below:—

THE FUNNY THINGS.

WHY, MORRISON, said a friend to-day, I am proud to hear that you received an order from His Excellency the Governor General for some of your XXX PASTRY FLOUR and SUGAR-CURED HAMS; but I supposed he could have got them at Ottawa. Well, said I, if that's not the funniest thing of all the funny things. Were you aware that my Flour and Hams and Kiln-Dried Oatmeal are constantly used in many of the best families at Ottawa? Did you suppose but the Governor General knew where to get good things as well as humbler folks? 100 barrels Thistle Mill Flour expected Monday. 200 bags best Family Flour do. 25 barrels Kiln-Dried Oatmeal on hand.

Everybody deals at MORRISON'S, and Morrison thanks everybody.
