FEMALE SAILOR.—A rather romantic incident has occurred on board the Flying Cloud, now in the harbour of Bombay. The captain shipped a young lad on board at Liverpool, under the name of Thomas Bates, as a seaman, and after serving for a considerable time on board the ship, it was yesterday discovered that he was a woman. She stated that she left her home in Aberdeen at fourteen years of age through the ill-treatment of a stepmother, having procured boy's clothing went to sea. She contrived to preserve the secret of her sex for five years, and performed the duty of a seaman remarkably well, taking her turn at the wheel, going aloft to the royals, and was quite an adept in the minute details of the profession. The captain (Litter), on becoming acquainted with the fact of his having a woman on board, was perforce compelled to part with her, and accordingly he took her to the acting magistrate, on December 13, at the Police-Court, to ask his evidence. At the suggestion of his worship, with the consent of Mr Bickers, the city missionary, she was handed over to that gentleman, who offered to look after her until she could be provided with passage home, or some employment suitted to her sex should be obtained. The captain seemed rather loath to part with the daughter of Neptune. He gave her an excellent character, and said that she was of a quiet, retiring disposition, and at the same time was one of the smartest lads in the ship. The poor girl was very much chagrined at the discovery of her sex, and seemed very much abashed when questioned as to her past history. It is proposed to make a heroine of the young woman, but, overlooking the peculiar eccentricity which has brought her before the public, it is undeniable that she has exhibited great pluck, spirit, endurance, independence, self-denial, and self-restraint for a long period of time, and under very trying circumstances. On this account, and seeing that she is far from home and friends, it is proposed to find her a moderate wardrobe, and such a purse as will give her the chance of a new career in honour, having regard to her capabilities and station in life.—Times of India, December 29.

The Great Secret of selling goods cheap is to buy them cheap and charge a small profit. We don't repeat the old cry of Selling off at Cost Price, Sacrificing the Stock, &c. We come out boldly before the public, and quote the price of our goods, and show them at the door with the prices marked in large figures. Or to save ladies from the annoyance now so common of being rudely forced to buy, we will send samples on application, postpaid, to any address.
