CO-OPERATION.

"Co-operation" presupposes a [illegible] of persons in an average social [illegible] able to pay at once for all they obtain, and generally using fair average [illegible] of goods. It is simply making [illegible] agreement with ordinary retail and [illegible] dealers to sell for cash, at reduced [illegible] to the persons who may belong to [illegible] association which puts the scheme in [illegible]. The mode of co-operation was [illegible] by a movement which has attracted considerable attention in [illegible] known as the "Civil Service Supply Association." It is eminently adapted [illegible] a city like London, and especially [illegible] wants of the class included under [illegible] title.

[illegible] manner in which this movement [illegible] deserves notice. In the early [illegible] 1865, some employees of the British [illegible], who are the poorest paid and [illegible] worked of the English civil service [illegible], determined to try whether, by [illegible] a large quantity of any needed [illegible] and selling it to themselves, they [illegible] be supplied more cheaply. This [illegible] ordinary germ of all co-operative [illegible]. Of course cash payments were [illegible].

The experiment was commenced [illegible]. A small number of individuals [illegible] together the price of a half-chest [illegible] 50 lbs.), and the purchase was [illegible] made, each lady that received [illegible] more than she had paid for. It [illegible] that by this proceeding the price [illegible] reduced by about one shilling per lb. [illegible] half-chest, and afterwards several [illegible] chests, were obtained on the same [illegible] the number of purchasers increased [illegible]. Other articles were also pur[illegible].

In the course of a month or two [illegible] society was formed, and after much [illegible] deliberation as to whether the ex[illegible] could be met, a small store-room [illegible] the general Post office was engaged [illegible] that such articles might be obtained [illegible] could not be conveniently kept at the [illegible] an arrangement was made with a few [illegible] houses by which the members [illegible] (of course for ready money) at [illegible] reduced prices, subject to the condition that they should [illegible] the wares only on stated days and during [illegible] hours.

[illegible] the idea of buying from certain [illegible] houses grew the idea of [illegible] operation." Under the management [illegible] was adopted, the "Civil Service [illegible] Association was formed. The [illegible] members of the Society go to certain tradesmen, and say "We are 10,000 [illegible] provided we come in considerable [illegible] to your shop, and make purchases [illegible] ready money, will you treat us as [illegible] customers?" Tradesmen who [illegible] do so are set down in a printed [illegible] which is supplied to each member of [illegible] Supply Association, and he, as he has [illegible], calls and makes his purchases [illegible] dealers. In this way each member [illegible] a saving of 25 per cent. and in some [illegible] thirty. He thus becomes a member [illegible] a peripatetic co-operative society, [illegible] stores are situated all over the town. [illegible] money thus saved in purchases is not [illegible] in a co-operative society of the first [illegible], by allowing the profits to accumulate [illegible] future advantage, but the habit of [illegible] ready money and avoiding credit [illegible] formed.

[illegible] Builder Association (for there are now [illegible] established in London) has grown into [illegible] proportions. It embraces nearly all [illegible] Post Office and Custom House employés, the Trinity Board, and, in fact, the [illegible] proportion of the working civil service. The younger society is chiefly [illegible] to the more aristocratic members [illegible] Government service, who mainly reside in the suburban and fashionable [illegible] of the English metropolis.

[illegible] the elder society, however, there are [illegible] classes of co-operators—those who are [illegible] builders, and those who, by the payment [illegible] a membership fee, share both in the [illegible] and stand co-operative stores [illegible] with the movement. The first [illegible] is the controlling one. Out of it [illegible] is the managing directory chosen. [illegible] is again divided into the members [illegible] the civil service and others who [illegible] admitted to the benefits of the plan. [illegible] pay a fee of half a-crown, and the [illegible] fee of five shillings. Both receive [illegible] the production of which, at any [illegible] shilling included in the Association's [illegible] profits the party to the agreed reduction. The business done in this way is very [illegible]. One firm did, in 1866, business to the amount of £10,000, or about $50,000; [illegible] of another show over £12,000, [illegible] 60,000, thus disbursed with them. [illegible] medical men, lawyers, doctors, dentists [illegible] architects, insurance companies, the [illegible] delivery and express companies are [illegible] connected with it, so far as making reductions to its members is concerned.

[illegible] are now about 300 firms and stores [illegible] business through the membership of [illegible] association. "The Civil Service [illegible] Co-operative Society" give the names [illegible] of the hundred firms who make reductions on their announced prices to its [illegible]. The reduction ranges from 2½ [illegible] per cent. In some few cases, as with [illegible] in pianofortes and music, the per[illegible] is even greater. In the list of the [illegible] society, twenty two firms sell [illegible] members at wholesale rates. Its [illegible] are at the West End, in Ar[illegible] Street, back of the Hay Market. It [illegible] among its directory quite a number [illegible] "Honorables" and several titled [illegible]. Besides its own class, it adds [illegible] the clergy of the Establishment [illegible] and officers of the army and navy [illegible] in its members. The name of Tom [illegible] Hood and critic is found [illegible] the managing Board. The outlay [illegible] five shillings as a membership [illegible] have 80 shareholders, owing [illegible] shares. The price of these is £5, or [illegible] twenty five dollars in gold as equal [illegible] a sovereign.

[illegible] annual report of its Directory, [illegible] January 31, 1867, states that the Society [illegible] business in April, 1869. Stock [illegible] on the 20th of October, and it [illegible] appeared that 627 shares had been [illegible], on which one pound per share had [illegible] paid in, and a paid-in capital of [illegible] 7, or $3,963, was in hand. The goods [illegible] during the first six months were [illegible] at £4,701, or $23,505; while the [illegible] £4,661, or $20,495. The gross profits [illegible] that same period, on sales, members' [illegible], &c., amounted to £621 12s. 6d., [illegible] which, after paying off all expenses, [illegible] was a margin of £68 3s. 9d. Since that date, the business has more than quadrupled. The amount done in December, 1866, was at the rate of $100,000 per annum. In January, 1867, it was equal to $120,000.

This Society has actually established the "cost limit of price" principle, and charges only an advance of five per cent, upon net cost. This is not the case with other co-operative stores, and the reason is apparent. They would soon be bankrupted by the competition that would ensue. They, however, reach the same equitable result to customers by returning the profits made through selling at the ruling rates in the shape of dividends. The reason why this association can adopt the policy indicated is seen at once in the relations it bears to a class interest, which gives stability to their custom.

The older organization has a membership of about 12,000 and a shareholding list of about 4,000. It did a business during 1866, at its principal depot in the city of London, of over £50,000, or $250,000. Up to the present date of service of its directors and managing officers have been given gratuitously. All profit over five per cent. (which is divided among the shareholders) is devoted to extending the business and lowering the price of goods or improving their quality.

The central store is situated in Monkwell street, Falcon square, in the very heart of the old city. The premises are well arranged for the purposes. The lower rooms are used for a store or shop. The first floor is let off to a firm which sells stationery to the members at wholesale prices, and on the second and third floors the members can obtain all kinds of hosiery on similar terms. There can be purchased almost every article of food not of a perishable character, as well as most things required in housekeeping. At the present time upwards of £20,000 a year (or about $100,000) is taken over the counter. Lovers of statistics will be interested in the following figures; Of tea, about 50,000 lbs. a year is sold; of coffee, nearly 20,000 lbs.; of moist sugar, 100,000 lbs.; of loaf sugar, 80,000 lbs., and of soap, 120,000 lbs. Members may buy in any quantity so long as they pay in ready money, for not an hour's credit is given even to the most influential. The prices at the store are about 20 per cent. lower than the usual rates.

The establishment is kept open from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., and the manager and assistants are kept very busy during these hours. The goods purchased are usually taken home by the vehicles belonging to the Penny Parcels Delivery Company, with which the Association have an arrangement reducing the cost at least one-third. This Company supplies a want felt in every large city, at very cheap rates. There are several other stores belonging to the association, one of which, near the Strand, is very conveniently located for the great Government offices in Somerset House, Admiralty, Horse Guards, &c. There the same activity prevails. Every article is of the best quality, and packed in convenient quantities. The cash principle greatly simplifies operations. The officers declare the business is constantly increasing. The secretary is a custom-house officer, the president is in the Treasury, all occupy positions of trust.—N. Y. Sun.

REPORTS OF ENGLISH ARTIZANS ON THE PARIS EXHIBITION.

A number of intelligent workmen were sent to the Paris Exhibition, to report thereon in their several crafts, and the following are some of their conclusions:

The great failing of French manufacturing industry consists in the fact that considerable artistic taste is often allied to defective workmanship. England is still in advance of France, Belgium and Germany, for the highest excellence, in the perfection of models, and of a cutting edge in saws and tools, without regard to price. The French painted glass work, when compared with the English, shows a greater diversity of design in construction, and more freedom and grace in the drawing of the ornament; but in excellence of colour and pleasing harmony, the English glass is much superior. Setting aside the famous dove-taining machine from America, England retains her pre-eminence in the construction of wood cutting machinery, that of her closet rivals, France and America, being generally formed of combinations of wood and metal, which may do for a time, but will not survive much of the hard usage to which it is liable in a busy workship. In making good plain ribbons, England has nothing to fear from the construction of the looms or the ability of foreign workmen.

In common pottery, the English potteries having nothing to fear. Their superior style of work, the beauty and simplicity of their designs, the excellent ornamentation, the richness of colour, fastness of glaze, and other excellencies were obvious to all. England also keeps the lead in the manufacture of encaustic tiles, and in the finer qualities of terra cotta. She also excels in coach-making, in the quality of lightness combined with solidity of construction; but in some departments of the coach-maker's art their is room for improvement. In gold and silver work, England is rapidly creeping up to the side of France, and the same may be said of hammered iron; the chief inferiority in the latter, and in ornamental iron generally, being deficiency of taste, while in excellency of workmanship they were unapproachable. The English watch and chronometer maker still stands at the head of his profession, as does the English worker in leather and the makers of machinery for textile fabrics. In many articles in metal work, such as gas-fittings, England stands foremost in quality, and France in taste; but the progress made in this direction by France, Belgium and Germany seems to have surprised and startled the English artizans considerably.

Prof. Richardson, of the Rochester University, died in that city on Monday.

There are now about 12,000 miles of railway open to travel in France. Every line is remunerative, some paying original stockholders from 20 to 25 per cent., and it is claimed that passengers are conveyed by them with more regularity, safety, and comfort than elsewhere in Europe. Within eighty years at the farthest all of these lines will have reverted to the Government, and become practically public property.

The Ohio river is in a bad way. It is now full of pools and sand bars, which obstruct navigation; and if these should be removed a uniform shallowness of water would result which would practically destroy navigation. It has been proposed to fill Lake Erie to supply it with water; but there is the trifling objection that Pittsburgh is one hundred and twenty feet higher than the surface of the lake.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANE OF A LAKE IN MICHIGAN.

A correspondent of the Coldwater (Mich.) Gazette gives some particulars connected with the disappearance of the water from Ottawa Lake, in Monroe County, Mich.:

"For some days past Ottawa Lake has presented a very exciting scene. The occasion was this. Those living near the lake observed for some days previous that the ice on the lake was falling. Soon they discovered the fish were crowding the holes in the ice where they watered their cattle. They increased their numbers, large and small, the former having their mouths wide open, and so exhausted that the people caught them with their hands. As many teams daily visited the lake, hauling stones from its shores, for building purposes, the news soon spread to a distance all around. The work of quarrying and hauling was soon abandoned, and in a short time scores of teams and hundreds of men might be seen on and around the lake. The men with hand-pikes, crowbars, and axes, were busily engaged in cutting and raising huge pieces of ice, and then stooping down and lifting the fish, some of which were dead, some alive, and some frozen fast in the ice, for the water having departed from the lake by some subterraneous passage, the vast sheet of ice lay on the bottom. For three days immense quantities of fish were carried away, principally pickerel and bass, while vast quantities of whitefish are left to rot on the ice and mud, for mud and ice are all that are left of the Ottawa Lake, numerous pieces of ice being left standing on the edge, like so many grave stones. The lake, or rather its bed or graveyard presents a novel scene. Some say the water will soon return by the same source by which it departed, bringing a fresh supply of fish with it, for Lake Erie is supposed to be its headquarters. It will be well if it does, otherwise sickness may be feared in the vicinity of the burying ground of Ottawa Lake. In the meantime the farmers in the vicinity will greatly feel the loss of the departed waters.

"About seven years ago, I am told, this lake departed in the same way, and old men say it departs and returns periodically."

Photography has been turned to fresh account in France, as enhancing the attractiveness of play bills and advertising the theatre. These programmes contain in the centre a photograph of some remarkable scene in the drama which is being played. The Vaudeville, the Opera Comique, and the Ambigu are the hopses wherein at present they may be obtained.

A curious medal was recently offered for sale in Paris. The lead of which it is composed was a portion of that used to rivet the chains of the prisoners of the Bastille. On one side is a representation of the taking of the Bastille, and the date, 14th July, 1789. On the obverse, the inscription:—"This lead sealed chains which chained the victims of despotism, and recalls the period of liberty conquered in the year 1."

CAUTION.

THE perfection and cheapness of the American (Waltham) watch have given it such a wide-world celebrity that unscrupulous dealers years ago imitated its style and pirated its trade marks. Irresponsible dealers are occasionally found who furtively trade upon the popularity of the American watch by selling a base imitation under the name of the genuine article.

It is hardly necessary to state that such watches are worthless as time-keepers, and when bought for the genuine are calculated to injure the high reputation which our watches have attained. The several grades of the American watch (except the lowest grade marked Home Watch Co.) are guaranteed by special certificate bearing the number of the watch and the signature of the Treasurer of the Company, R. E. Robbins. The purchaser should in all cases require one of these certificates, which is furnished to all dealers in the genuine watches.

The following are the trade marks on the several grades of our manufacture:—

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD CO.

Office of the General Superintendent, Altona, Pa., 15th Dec., 1866.

GENTLEMEN—The watches manufactured by you have been in use on this Railroad for several years by our engine men, to whom we furnish watches as part of our equipment. There are some THREE HUNDRED OF THEM CARRIED ON OUR LINE, and we consider them GOOD and RELIABLE TIME-KEEPERS. Indeed I have great satisfaction in saying YOUR WATCHES GIVE US LESS TROUBLE and have worn and do wear much longer without repairs than any watches we have ever had in use on this road. As you are aware we formerly trusted to those of English manufacture, of acknowledged good reputation, but as a class they never keep time as correctly, nor have they done as good service as yours.

In these statements I am sustained by my predecessor, Mr Lewis, whose experience extended over a series of years.

Respectfully,
EDWARD H. WILLIAMS,
General Superintendent.

NEW YORK CENTRAL RAILROAD.

Locomotive Dep't Western Division, Rochester, Dec. 24, 1866.

GENTLEMEN—I have no hesitation in saying that I believe the great majority of locomotive engineers have found by experience that WALTHAM WATCHES ARE THE MOST SATISFACTORY of any for their uses. They RUN WITH THE GREATEST ACCURACY AND STEADINESS, notwithstanding the roughriding of an engine; and as I have NEVER KNOWN ONE TO WEAR OUT, they must be durable. I hope to see the time when railway companies will generally adopt your watches, and furnish them to all engineers and conductors. In my opinion it would greatly tend to promote regularity and safety.

Yours respectfully,
CHARLES WILSON,
C. Chief Engineer,
Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

B. A. Com. College, Toronto.

Dear Sirs,—We can eminently recommend your establishment to the business public, from which to select their Book-keepers. The young man in our employ bears testimony to the efficient system taught in your College, and the accurate habits derived therefrom, and though different houses pursue different methods, yet the general principles, rules, and varieties of commerce are so thoroughly inculcated by your system of tuition as to render the knowledge applicable to each new feature in each peculiar system.

Your efforts are worthy of every appreciation in founding a sound Commercial Emporium of the intelligent youth of Canada, and though occasionally students fail to become proficient, it can only be attributed to lack of ability on the student's part, and not the incapacity of the tutor. We shall ever give and advise preference to your pupils for an office, and feel glad to thus attest our experience of the same.
