CKSS students dish out international meals with a little help from ActiveChefs

Something good is cooking at Craig Kielburger Secondary School. Earlier this month, Grade 11 and 12 students in the fitness leadership and recreation class took part in a community cooking and dinner night with ActiveChefs, a registered Canadian charity that aims to promote children's health and well-being.

International dishes

Participants were presented with recipes for four international dishes. "The goal of the event was to share an evening of fun with our CKSS families while promoting healthy lifestyles through improved nutrition," said teacher Laura Holms. The evening of food and fun was "a great success," said Holms, adding plans are in the works to possibly host future ActiveChefs events at the Ferguson Drive school.
