

Projects by Halton students on display at Bay Area Science Fair

More than $200,000 in prizes and scholarships up for grabs

Projects by Halton's future innovators will be on display at the upcoming Bay Area Science and Engineering Fair (BASEF).

The fair runs from March 30 to April 1 at Mohawk College, with a public viewing set for Saturday, April 1 from 9 a.m. to noon in the college's David Bradley Athletic and Recreation Centre. There is no cost to attend.

The BASEF, according to the volunteer-run event's website, is a competition that is open to Grade 7 to Grade 12 students from Halton, Hamilton, Haldimand, Norfolk and Brant counties and Six Nations.

More than 540 students will compete for over $200,000 in prizes and scholarships.

There will be more than 390 projects on display. Topics include laptop coolers, body armour, music, mud, ALS disease, electrostatic levitation, self-inflating balloons, cannabinoids and cancer, piezoelectricity, plastics, water conservation, wind turbines and wearable technology.

Student projects are judged. The winners will be announced at an awards ceremony on Tuesday, April 4 at Mohawk College.

The winners move on to represent the region at the Intel International Science and Engineering Fair in Los Angeles, California and the Canada-Wide Science Fair in Regina, Saskatchewan. Both fairs are slated for May.

Mohawk College is located at 135 Fennell Ave. W. in Hamilton.

BASEF aims to inspire youth to do great things in science, technology, engineering, and math with the help of the fair's title sponsor, ArcelorMittal Dofasco and the support of many community sponsors.
