DR. J. ROLPH MALCOLM ON THE TREATMENT OF CONSUMPTION.

LETTER NO. XIII.

TO THE EDITOR OF DAILY NEWS.

Sir, — Before describing the treatment of the disease, it will be advisable that we enquire by what processes tubercles are removed from the lungs.

There are two ways in which this may be accomplished; one by absorption; the other by expectoration of the tubercles and cicatrization of the cavity.

A familiar example of the process of absorption is seen when a boil swells up until it appears on the eve of breaking and then gradually disappears without having done so: — the matter is taken up by the absorbent vessels and removed from the body with excrementitious substances. Goitre, or "thick neck" is removed in the same manner. This is the way in which consumption is cured in the first stage, or early part of the second one; but when it has passed beyond that it is generally removed by the second process.

Suppuration and cicatrization are frequently seen in cases of abscesses, boils, wounds, burns, etc. In the first two instances the matter is formed in the abscess, comes to a head, breaks, and the matter is discharged; new substance, known to medical men as "granulations," is poured out in the cavity, which unites the sides of it, and the abscess heals, leaving a scar or cicatrix. The same process is seen in the case of wounds and burns, except in these the matter or pus is not often collected in a cavity, but is secreted by, and discharged from the abraded surface.

These are similar to what takes place in the lungs: the tubercles soften or suppurate and are expectorated, and if properly and successfully treated, new substance is poured out in the cavity which unites the surfaces, leaving a cicatrix; but when left to run its own course, the ulcer, when once formed, gradually enlarges its borders, corroding deeper and deeper into the surrounding tissues of the lung, until so much of them is disorganized that worn-out nature yields to its destroying influence.

It will be observed that when lung tissue is once broken down and expectorated new lung tissue is never reproduced; the cavity is partially filled with another substance and contracts into a cicatrix; but that portion of the lung is lost forever, as the cicatrix is useless for the purposes of respiration. When the ulcer is healed no more matter is secreted, and in the case of the lungs, purulent expectoration ceases, because no more matter is formed to be removed by expectoration.

Now that we have seen the process of cure, let us review the different methods of medication in use to assist nature in these processes.

There are three channels by which medicines are introduced into the system: — 1. by the stomach, — 2. through the skin, — and 3. through the mucous membrane of the lungs, by inhalation. We will examine the results of each of these seperately.

Treatment by the Stomach.

Treatment of consumption by medicines administered through the stomach has been used since the earliest foundation of medical science, and almost every remedy in the whole catalogue of the Materia Medica has, at one time or another, been vaunted as a "specific" for its cure.

Physicians appear to have no established principles of practice. — One believes it to be a disease of depression of the vital powers, and administers stimulants and tonics to raise the strength and tone of the system; while another of equal ability and reputation declares it to be inflammatory, and pursues the opposite plan of lowering the strength by administering depleting remedies. With so many conflicting opinions regarding the nature of the disease, it is not at all to be wondered at that every new medicine discovered has been lauded to the skies as a specific, and the physician who prescribed anything else during the time of its popularity pronounced a quack, fool or old fogy. To give merely a synopsis of the various methods of treatment adopted, and the remedies used, would require much more space than the limits of this letter would admit. Suffice it to say that each was soon found useless and thrown aside, to be replaced by its successor, which, in a short time has shared a similar fate and fallen into disuse.

Such cannot fail to be the results when medicines are administered by the stomach for the removal of disease in the lungs, inasmuch as the remedy has to traverse with the blood, and acts on other parts of the system with equal power to that which it exerts on the lungs. The ulcers are in the lungs, and why should the remedies be applied to the stomach?

In my next letter I shall notice the results of treatment through the skin, and the effects of climate.

Your obedient servant,
J. ROLPH MALCOLM M. D.

PAIN KILLER!
THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE OF THE AGE.
THE UNIVERSAL REMEDY FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL COMPLAINTS!
OUR FIRST PHYSICIANS USE AND RECOMMEND ITS USE.
IT ENJOYS THE LARGEST SALE OF ANY PROPRIETARY MEDICINE IN THE WORLD.
THE PAIN KILLER
Has been favourably known for more than thirty years, during which time we HAVE RECEIVED THOUSANDS OF TESTIMONIALS, showing this Medicine to be an almost NEVER FAILING REMEDY for diseases caused by or attendant upon—Sudden Colds, Coughs, Fever and Ague, Headache, Bilious Fever, Pains in the Side, Back and Loins, as well as in the Joints and Limbs; Neuralgic and Rheumatic Pains in any part of the System, Toothache and Pains in the Head and Face.
AS A BLOOD PURIFIER AND TONIC FOR THE STOMACH,
It seldom fails to cure Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Liver Complaint, Acid Stomach, Heartburn, Kidney Complaints, Sick Headache, Piles, Asthma or Phthisic, Ringworms, Boils, Felons, Whitflows, Old Sores, Swelled Joints, and General Debility of the System.
IT IS ALSO A PROMPT AND SURE REMEDY
For Cramp or Pain in the Stomach, Painters' Colic, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Summer Complaint, Cholera Morbus, Cholera Infantum, Scalds, Burns, Sprains, Bruises, Frost Bites, Chilblains, as well as the Stings of Insects, and the Bites of Poisonous Insects and Venomous Reptiles.
Directions accompany each bottle.
It has been tested in every variety of climate, and by almost every nation known to civilization. It is the almost constant companion and inestimable friend of the Missionary, and no traveller should be without it. Like every other good thing, the Pain Killer has been extensively counterfeited; which, (while it is an acknowledgment on the part of the counterfeiters of its real worth) is a serious hindrance to its usefulness as the deceived purchaser estimates the value of the Pain Killer by the base compound he has purchased for the genuine article.
Purchasers should be careful and not allow the dealer to sell them worthless imitations, on which they realize a larger profit, but take only the Pain Killer and see that it is the genuine, bearing the signature of Perry Davis and Son upon the label.
The Pain Killer is sold at wholesale by Druggists and Medicine Dealers, and Commission Merchants in the principal cities, and retailed by Apothecaries, Grocers, and at Variety Shops generally throughout the world.
