MONDAY EVENING, MARCH 30.

FRIGHTFUL RESULTS OF FAMINE.

The Times of Oran has the following:—"The terrible famine has presented to the sorrowed eyes of humanity so horrible a spectacle as that which is at this moment observed among the Arabs. Two days ago a native woman, in the neighborhood of Mesaghin, killed her daughter, a child of 4 years of age, and gave the flesh to her other children and partook of it herself. The legal authorities hearing of the circumstance in question proceeded to the spot, and on entering the hut occupied by them found that the heart, the liver, and the other portions of the corpse were eaten which they could not keep. The mother had begun by salting the flesh, cut up in strips, exactly as is done with pork." The Phoenix Park gives the following picture of the political situation of Finland, "the population is desolated by famine. 'Every day,' writes the clergyman of Kuhmo, 'more than fifty peasants present themselves at my house completely exhausted, and the poor people, who for years have been living on moss, hay, and the back of the fir. This frightful evil is far from being local, as the whole province is suffering under it. The poor creatures are exhausted, and the population has no other alternative than to eat hay and straw or die of starvation."

THE FENIAN EDITORS.

Letters from Dublin, says the London Times, that since the imprisonment of the Fenian editors, a number of persons have been at Richmond Bridewell with the object of paying a visit of sympathy to Messrs. Sullivan and Pigott. In every instance, however, the visitor was informed that the prison regulations forbade the granting the privilege of receiving a visit before the expiration of the three months from the date of their sentence. Mr. Boyd, however, considerately made arrangements by which the cards of visitors would be taken charge of, or the names entered in a book to be kept for the purpose, and duly communicated to the prisoners. During Monday there called at the prison amongst others, Sir John M. P., and Mr Sergeant Barry, M. P. The prisoners are confined in cells in the central range of the prison, in close proximity to the chapel. An unoccupied building that respectively allotted to one of the prisoners is appropriated as a hospital. Shortly after the admission of the prisoners, Dr. Quinlin, physician to the City Prison, examined them. He certified that their condition of health was such that the prison dietary was unsuited to them. A more generous dietary was accordingly allowed.

On Wednesday, in the Court of Bankruptcy, in the case of Pelo, Betts, and Crampton, the bankrupts, for consideration of the claim made on behalf of the Brighton, Chatham, and Dover Railway to expect the estate of the bankrupts the enormous sum of £9,661,941 19s 1d. The investigation involves a very complicated state of facts as well as of figures. Lord Seymour, in his will, left £100,000 to the charities of Paris and London, and Master of the Rolls has defined the "London" to be where there were London houses at the date of the will and, some curious results have occurred. For instance, the Small Pox Hospital at Highgate has been excluded. The Master of the Rolls limited the terms to institutions, and excluded all the others. The Lords Justices, on appeal, held all hospitals in the term "hospice." The claims before the Master of the Rolls only 31 were admitted, and now the number will be greatly increased by the meaning given to the term, so that the fund will be made available to many charities.

Mail from the Cape of Good Hope we learn that news had reached the colony that the Basuto government are determined to place British protection and control over the Basuto people. It was understood that a protectorate would be established by the appointment of a British Resident at the chief's capital, and that the Basutos would be taxed to a sufficient amount to provide the revenue for maintaining the protectorate. Governor Wodehouse required Mr Brand, the President of the Free State, to suspend hostilities against the Basutos until matters could be arranged. Intelligence was received of the death of the intrepid African traveller, Mr Charles Anderson, in the wilds of Ondoga, near Lake Ngami.

A curious discovery has just been made at Versailles. Some little girls coming out of school perceived something glittering in the gutter resembling five-franc pieces. Their cries of surprise attracted other persons to the spot, some of whom found several handfuls of pieces of coined money. On the arrival of the police, a regular search was organized, and a vast number of coins with the effigies of different Sovereigns were gathered up, together with crucibles, other implements used in coining. The coins are in counterfeit silver and of 5 francs, but executed well enough to deceive inexperienced persons. They are said to be the work of a band of coiners who had abandoned their materials on the arrest of one of the artist, about ten days ago, an Italian who had undertaken to utter false money in circumstances the disclosures they feared.

Letters from Paris describe the carnival season as having been unusually gay this year. The most popular place of performance in the Victor Hugo Hall, the whole of which was fitted up as an open-air theatre for the occasion, the pit alone containing some 3,000 persons. On the stage, which occupied the whole of the eastern side of this immense square, the largest in Europe, represent the birth and career of the Turin harlequin, in the following tableaux, a Neapolitan tragicomi fantasia, a Venetian comedietta, a Florentine romance, a Roman Axione. The palatial building the square were richly hung with all sorts of decorations and with banners, and the windows, balconies, and roofs were covered with spectators. The principal parts were taken by the principal and financial celebrities of the day, and upwards of 400 appeared on the stage. The proceeds of this monster performance are to be devoted to the relief of the poor.

AN ANTEDILUVIAN LUNATIC.

Dr. Skae, of the Morningside Asylum in Edinburgh, says in his annual report that among the patients who died last year was one who had been in the Asylum for twenty-nine years, and was a thorough gentleman. He possessed considerable humor, was an excellent player at bowls and billiards and whist. He displayed the most singular delusion of any man he (Dr. Skae) ever met. He asserted that he was upwards of twenty thousand years of age, and described the pre-historic period of the earth, during which he had witnessed three floods greater than Noah's. Noah he knew very well, and described him as a nice lad when he knew him first, but as having latterly fallen into dissipated habits. He had commanded numerous large armies at various periods, and for the last three or four thousand years was Augustus J. Cæsar (his usual signature) commander-in-chief of the Roman armies. His anecdotes and imagination were inexhaustible, and a large book might be readily filled with the history he gave of himself and his time during his long, imaginary and eventful life.

DISTURBANCES AT TOULOUSE.

Paris, Thursday.—The Moniteur says:—"The Special Councils of Revision appointed for the formation of the regimental lists of the National Guard Mobile commenced their operations on the 9th inst. Throughout France most satisfactory reports have been received respecting this first application of the law of the 1st of Feb., 1868. The operations have been everywhere conducted with calm and regularity. In all quarters the young men have come eagerly forward, animated by an excellent spirit. Only a very small number have pleaded causes for exemption. The country confides in the solicitude of the Emperor to provide for and watch over its interests. It frankly admits the benefits of the law in like manner as it resolutely accepts its obligations. One single deplorable exception has taken place at Toulouse, where some tumultuous demonstrations occurred in the evening of the 10th inst., but were soon terminated by the energetic attitude assumed by the authorities. The presence in these gatherings of well-known agitators and strangers to the operation of revision sufficiently attests that the operations were simply made as a pretext for disturbance. The necessary measures have been taken to prevent and, if necessary, suppress any further attempts at agitation."

The incognito of the Prince Napoleon at Berlin is very imperfectly maintained. His receptions and interviews have really been of an official character, and to day he is to be entertained at a grand banquet by the English Minister, Lord Loftus. Continental gossips will scarcely reconcile this state of things with the statement that the Prince has no political mission.—Berlin Letter.

Her Majesty the Queen, knowing that there are still great numbers of people in the Principality of Wales whose ordinary speech is that of the ancient Cymry, has desired that her lately published "Journal" should be translated into that tongue. Sir T. M. Biddulph has, by her command, requested Rev. J. Jones, rector of Llandissilo, near New Quay, Cardiganshire, and who is known as an eminent Welsh scholar, to undertake the work of translation.

A youngster, who was taken into a toy-bazaar the other day by his doting mamma, had a number of articles exhibited, in the hope of effecting a sale, but without effect. At last a papier-mache representation of a mouse was produced, and after being wound up by a key, was set down upon the floor, where it ran about in the most mouse-like manner imaginable. The youngster's attention was enlisted at once; but the result was not as his mother or the salesman expected, for he shouted out, "Oh mamma, I don't want that, we've got lots of them at home, and don't have to wind'em up, either."

The elevation of "a gentleman of the press" to be Prime Minister of England is a subject of general discussion. In the opening of his career, young Disraeli, then studying for the legal profession, assisted Mr John Murray, of Albemarle-street, who had started a daily paper called The Representative. Soon after its discontinuance, Mr Disraeli began to amuse himself with novel writing, and for several years he divided the public attention with Sir Lytton Bulwer. A little later than this, or about '40, he wrote articles in The Times. And ten years later than this, in a weekly journal. That a gentlemen of the press should be placed at the head of the Government may be, in England, a new thing, but it is not so in other countries. Looking only across the Channel, we find M. Guizot, the editor of a Paris newspaper in one year, and in the next year we find him Prime Minister of France. Of M. Thiers nearly the same thing may be said.

DEFEAT OF THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT ON THE PRESS BILL.—The Paris correspondent of the Express, writing on Saturday, says:—The Government yesterday suffered an important Parliamentary defeat, resulting in the definitive rejection of one of the most objectionable clauses of the amended press bill. You may remember that the original proposal to enable the police tribunals by way of supplementary punishment to deprive a convicted journalist of his civil rights was shown by the opposition to be an insidious device for qualifying prominent writers for a seat in the Chamber. In order to soften down a little this monstrous consequence Government consisted to an amendment, making this disqualification only applicable to second offence (recidive). But yesterday, on the report of the amendment, M.M. Carnot, Pelletan, Picard, and Berryer made a terrible onslaught on the clause altogether. They scorned the guarantee affected to be given by limiting the disenfranchisement to a second offence. A journalist who was consistent in his opinions could not help being a recidiviste within a very short time, and it was greatly to be apprehended that after a dissolution prosecutions would be rapidly instituted for no other purpose than to keep distinguished opposition members out of the Chamber. Cato, said M. M. Carnot, was a hardened offender, for he was tried fifty times for the same thing, and a correctional tribunal of the present day would certainly have no mercy upon him. The majority seemed to have a prophetic instinct that the clause which they were now asked to vote against their adversaries might some day be used against themselves, and in spite of the utmost efforts of the Ministers Baroche and Pinard, and M. Nogent-Saint-Laurens, the reporter, it was rejected by 194 votes to 72.

Opposition to Mr Gladstone's resolutions on church reform in Ireland, is already manifesting itself in the shape of petitions to the House of Commons against them.

The Silesian Gazette states that the establishment of a Nuncio in Prussia would create in Russia a very unfavourable impression as regards the House of Hohenzollern.

The recently published postal orders say that the stamps now in use will be received in the usual way for their present value, for a reasonable time after the first of April.

It is said that when the Prince of Wales visits Ireland, which he will do immediately after Easter, for the purpose of being installed Knight of St. Patrick, the proceedings will be conducted with unprecedented splendour.

The Daily Telegraph says that the Prince of Wales will visit Ireland during the Easter holidays, and will remain about ten days in Ireland. He will be accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge, and will be the guest of the Lord-Lieutenant.

The latest device in the way of clothing is a hat made of paper, by a process of electrotyping, which furnishes an exact copy of a straw hat, the straw being used as a model. The paper hat is light, ornamental, and perfectly waterproof.

The news from Rome speaks of continued activity in all military departments. The enrolment of soldiers still goes on, and the fortifications are proceeded with as for some months past. At the same time it is stated that desertions continue both in the foreign legion and in the Pontifical army. Eight companies of Zouaves have been sent to the frontiers of the Campagna with the object of suppressing brigandage. It is denied that M. Sartiges has demanded the removal of the ex-Royal family of Naples and Rome.

All the Russian Generals, Governors of provinces, and others in Volhynia, Podolia, the Ukraine, Lithuania, White Russia, and the Kingdom of Poland, have been summoned to St. Petersburgh in order to be present at the anniversary of the coronation of the Czar. This proceeding has given rise to some suppositions. Some say that the object is to give instructions relative to the Governing of the former Polish provinces; others alleged that these Generals are furnished with detailed directions in case of a war in the East.

TESTIMONIAL
From Sig. Carlo Mora, Professor of Music, Kingston:
HAVING had ample opportunity of testing Mr Reyner & Son's Tuning and Repairing of Pianofortes, &c., since I have been in Kingston, I heartily recommend them to all those having Instruments to tune or repair, and would further advise those that have Instruments that are not in good order, to give them a call at once, as delay will only occasion more work and money when it is done.
SIG. CARLO MORA,
Professor of Music,

FROM MR RIDDELL.
MR REYNER has recently re-covered the Hammers of the Pianoforte used in my family with the new improved patent leather, and otherwise repaired it. He has also tuned it, and it is altogether much improved, the quality of the tone being greatly better than before the Instrument was put into his hands. I shall certainly continue to keep the piano under his charge for the future.
