AG announces plans for new Halton courthouse

By Marta Marychuk

Halton's desperately needed courthouse is finally a reality. The province announced yesterday (June 21) that it is building a new courthouse in Oakville to replace the out-of-date facility on Steeles Avenue in Milton.

Ontario Attorney General Yasir Naqvi announced at a press conference the new courthouse would be located on provincially-owned land, at the intersection of William Halton Parkway and Third Line, northwest of the new Oakville Trafalgar Memorial Hospital.

"This has been a long time in coming," said Naqvi. The new 21-courtroom facility will offer a range of justice, family, social and victim services, bringing the Superior Court of Justice and the Ontario Court of Justice operations in Milton and Burlington together under one roof.

Naqvi said the building will feature new technologies, including video conferencing from remote locations and a secure room through closed-circuit television. All courtrooms will have state-of-the-art audio.

The missing link

A soldier, a bracelet and the man who uncovered the missing link.

This special report, featured on page 47, tells the story of archeologist Denis Renaud, who came upon a soldier's service bracelet buried in the battlefields of France and began digging for clues to identify its owner — Milton's Harry Fox.

Cool customers

Phil Boim and his two-year-old son Ryker enjoy ice cream during the annual Food Truck Festival at Springridge Farm this past Father's Day weekend, which saw approximately a dozen food trucks dish out tasty eats to hungry guests at the Bell School Line farm. Graham Paine / Metroland West Media Group
