FEMALE SUFFRAGE AND THE TENDER PASSION.

The Saturday Review has become notorious for its cynical remarks regarding woman. It finds in the proposition now advocated to extend political suffrages to woman the occasion to have yet another fling at the fair. It says:—

To men busy with the work of the world there is no doubt that, however delightful, love takes the form of a mere interruption of their real life. They allow themselves the interval of its indulgence, as they allow themselves any other holiday, simply as something in itself temporary and accidental; as life, indeed, grows more complex there is an increasing desire to reduce the time and attention which men devote to their affections. Already the great philosopher of the age has pronounced that the passion of love plays far too important a part in human existence, and that it is a terrible obstacle to human progress. The general temper of the times echoes the sentence of Mr Mill. The enthusiastic votary who has been pouring his vows at the feet of his mistress consoles himself, as he leaves her, with the thought that engagements cannot last forever, and that he shall soon be able to get back to the real world of business and of life. He presses his beloved one with all the eloquence of passion, to fix an early day for their union, but the eloquence has a very practical bearing. While Corydon is piping to Phyllis, he is anxious about the engagements he is missing, and the distance he is losing in the race of life. But Phyllis remains the nymph of passion and poetry and romance. Time has no meaning for her; she is not neglecting any work; she is only idle, as she is always idle. But love throws a new glory and a new interest round her indolence. The endless little notes with which she worries the post office and her friends become suddenly sacred and mysterious. The silly little prattle bushes into confidential whispers. Every crush through the season becomes a scene of reunion of two hearts which have been parted for the eternity of twenty-four hours. Love, in fact, does not in the least change woman's life, or give it a new earnestness or a fresh direction; but it makes it infinitely more interesting, and it heightens the enjoyment of wasting a day by a new sense of power. For that brief space of triumph Phyllis is able to make Corydon waste this day too. The more he writhes and wriggles under the compulsion, the more lingering looks he casts back on the work he has quitted, the greater her victory.

He cannot decently confess that he is tired of the little comedy in which he takes so romantic a part, and certainly his fellow actress will not help him to the confession. By dint of acting it, indeed, she comes at last to a certain belief in her role. She really imagines herself to be very busy, to have sacrificed her leisure as well as her heart to the object of her devotion. She scolds him for his backwardness in not more thoroughly sacrificing his leisure to her. Work may be very important to him, but it is of less importance to the self-sacrificing being who hasn't had one moment to finish the third volume of the last sensation novel since she plighted her troth to this monster of ingratitude! Of course a man likes to be flattered, and does as much as he can in the way of believing in the little comedy too; in fact it is all amazingly graceful and entertaining on the one side and on the other. Our only doubt is whether the and entertaining mode of interrupting all the serious business of life will not be treated rather mercilessly by enfranchised women. How will the enchantment of passion survive when the object of adoration can only spare us an hour from her medical cases, or defers an interview because she is choked with fresh briefs? One of two results must clearly follow. Either the great Westminster philosopher is right, and love will play a less important part than it has done in human affairs, or else it will concentrate itself into a far more intense and passionate character than it exhibits now. We are quite conceive that the very difficulty of the new relation may give them a new life and vigor, and that the women of the future, looking back on the old months of indolent coquetry, may feel a certain contempt for souls which can fritter away the grandeur of passion as they fritter away the grandeur of life. But even this gain of passion will hardly compensate us for the loss of variety. All this playing with love has a certain pretty independence about it, and leaves a woman's individuality whole and free. Passion must of necessity whirl both beings in the unity of a common desire, into one. And so we get back to the old problem of the monotony of life. But it is just this monotonous ideality to which civilization, politics and society are all visibly tending. Railway will kill all the romance for us; doubtless we will extinguish heroes, and raise mankind to a general level of respectability; woman's enfranchisement will level the social worlds, and leave between sex and sex the difference even if it leaves that—of a bonnet.

THE following remarks on Testimonials of most wonderful and extraordinary cures in Canada by the GREAT INDIAN REMEDY. They are stern, undeniable and incontestable facts, sufficient to convince the most skeptical that the Great Medicinal Compound yearned after for ages is now accessible in the Great

SHOSHONEES REMEDY!

For Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Liver, Digestive Organs, Kidneys, &c., as well as Scrofula, the various Skin Diseases, Humours, and all diseases arising from impurities of the Blood, we boldly state that this great remedy has NEVER BEEN EQUALLED. Where was there ever such a cure as that by the proprietor Wilson Storms, of Brighton, C. W., of Consumption; or that of Peter C. V. Miller, of Ernestown, C. W., of Consumption; or that of Ambrose Wood, of Consecon, C. W., of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint; or that of John Hosey, of Napanee, C. W., of Rheumatism, who had actually been on crutches for years, in spite of all treatment heretofore, and is now well? Scores of such cases might be mentioned had we space.

☞ Call at the Drug Store and get a Circular of unquestionable certificates on the GREAT SHOSHONEES REMEDY and PILLS, and satisfy yourselves.

ANOTHER WONDERFUL CURE OF CONSUMPTION IN CANADA.

MESSRS. YOUNG & CHAMBERLAIN,—Sirs, I feel it a duty I owe to you, as well as to the public, to inform you of the most wonderful cure of Consumption, accomplished in my person, by the use of the Great Shoshonees Remedy and Pills. I coughed a great deal day and night, expectorating large quantities of matter, and had a great pain about my left lung. I had cold chills every day, and severe night sweats every night, and between the racking cough and great sweating, I was almost deprived of sleep; by these miseries as well as the loss of appetite, I was so reduced that I could hardly stand alone. I was under the care of a physician for a length of time, but finding no relief, I tried different recipes, but all without any good effect. Some friends at Bath recommended me to use the Great Shoshonees Remedy; I procured three bottles at once, with the Pills; so soon as I commenced using it, I began to get better, and when I had finished this Compound, the Cough, Expectoration of matter, pain about the lung, chills, sweating, &c., left me; and by continuing its use I became strong and healthy. It is now over two months since I quit the Remedy, and there have been no symptoms of the disease returning, and I have been, and am now, healthier than I have been for many years. I trust you will make this known to the public, that they may be aware of the peculiar virtues of this truly wonderful Indian Remedy.

CAUTION.

THE perfection and cheapness of the Waltham Watches have given them such a wide spread celebrity that unscrupulous dealers for years are imitated its style and pirated its trade marks. Irresponsible dealers are occasionally found who unfairly trade upon the reputation of the American Watch by selling a cheap imitation under the name of the genuine article.

It is simply necessary to state that such watches are not made and cannot be sold when bought for the genuine are substituted, to injure the high reputation which our watches have attained. The general grades of the American watch (except the lowest grade marked Home Watch Co.) are guaranteed by special certificate bearing the number of the watch and the signature of the Treasurer of the Company, E. E. Rossiter. Purchasers should insist in all cases upon our full certificates, which is furnished to all dealers in the genuine watches.

The following are the trade marks on the several grades of our manufacture:—

AMERICAN WATCH CO.
APPLETON, TRACY & CO.
WALTHAM WATCH CO.
P. S. BARTLETT.
WM. ELLERY.
HOME WATCH CO.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD CO.
Office of the General Superintendent,
Altoona, Pa., 15th Dec., 1866.

GENTLEMEN—The watches manufactured by you have been in use on this Railroad for several years by our engine men, to whom we furnish watches as part of our equipment. There are some THREE HUNDRED OF THEM CARRIED ON THE LINE, and we consider them GOOD and RELIABLE TIME-KEEPERS. Indeed I have great satisfaction in saying YOUR WATCHES GIVE US LESS TROUBLE and have worn and do wear much longer without repairs than any watches we have ever had in use on this road. As far as I am aware we generally trusted to those of English manufacture, such as Chronometer gold repeaters, but as a class they never keep time as correctly, nor have they done as good service as yours.

In these statements I am sustained by my predecessor, Mr Lewis, whose experience extended over a series of years.

Respectfully,

EDWARD H. WILLIAMS,
General Superintendent.

American Watch Co., Waltham.

GREAT WESTERN RAILROAD, Canada.
Locomotive Dept. Western Division,
Rochester, Dec. 24, 1866.

GENTLEMEN—Gladly do I testify in saying that I believe the great majority of locomotive engineers have found by experience that WALTHAM WATCHES ARE JUST AS GOOD AS FACTORY watches, and that they RUN WITH THE GREATEST ACCURACY AND RELIABILITY, with the exception of a few cases, and as I have NEVER KNOWN ONE TO STOP ON THE LINE, they must be durable. I hope to see the time when railway companies will generally adopt your watches, and should they do so, all engineers and conductors will be of opinion it would greatly tend to promote safety and safety.

Locomotive Superintendent.

THE ATTEMPTED ASSASSINATION OF PRINCE ALFRED.

The following telegrams which have reached by mail add further particulars to the account already published of the attempted assassination in Australia.

London, April 25.—The following telegram has been received from Earl Belmore, Governor, by the Secretary of State, at the Colonial Office:

On the 12th March a person named O'Farrell deliberately shot the Duke of Edinburgh in the back at a pic-nic given by the officers of the Sailor's Home at Clontarf, Port Jackson Harbour. Providentially the wound was not fatal, and he was able to go on board his ship, and shortly to resume his duties. The ball was easily removed on Saturday, the 23rd March, by Drs. Watson and Young, Her Majesty's ships Challenger and Clio.

O'Farrell fired another shot the moment he was seized, which severely wounded a gentleman named Thorne, in the foot. The ball has been extracted, and he is doing well.

The assassin, who avowed himself to be a fenian, was arrested on the spot. In consequence of the report of a medical board, Commodore Lambert has ordered Royal Highness to return to England as soon as he is sufficiently recovered. It will be probably next week.

The Colonial Office has received a telegram describing the nature of the wound. The ball entered the back half-an-inch to the spine, struck the ninth rib; followed round the course of the rib, and at five inches from the umbilicus, four inches and a quarter beneath the nipple, having traversed a distance of six inches and a quarter. It is alleged that the assassin was insane.

Immediately on the news of the attempted assassination of the Duke of Edinburgh reaching the Colonial Office, the Duke of Buckingham proceeded to Osborne to inform her Majesty.

The Duke of Buckingham, Secretary for the Colonies, has received another Australian telegram, dated Sydney, March 31, which reports that the Duke of Edinburgh is progressing favourably.

Colonial Office, April 27.—By a telegram, dated Sidney, March 31, information has been received from Earl Belmore that the prisoner O'Farrell was arraigned on the 30th March before the Supreme Court on the capital charge of wounding with intent to kill. The prisoner applied for a postponement of his trial, which was granted. He has since been tried and found guilty, and sentenced to be hanged.

Further telegrams intimate that the attempt of his Royal Highness was attempted, by O'Farrell in pursuance of orders sent from conspirators in this country which ordered the Prince's death. It is understood that O'Farrell was selected to perpetrate the crime, and that the lot would have been made when the deed landed in state, but that an opportunity of doing so without risk of injury to himself did not occur. The New South Wales Government have offered $1,000 reward for the apprehension of each accomplice and one arrest, considered to be imminent, has been made in Victoria.

Sydney, April 1.—The attempt on the life of the Duke of Edinburgh has caused a burst of horror and indignation throughout the colonies. Enormous demonstrations have taken place, and numerous address have been signed. Prayers and thanksgivings have been offered up in the churches. His Royal Highness has recovered from his wound, and sails for Sydney on the 4th of April.

THE PRINCE'S WOUND.—If the telegraphic information respecting the character of the wound received by his Royal Highness the Duke of Edinburgh can be depended on the nation has to be thankful that the life of the Prince has been saved by one of the most extraordinary escapes which has been recorded in the history of gunshot wounds. If the ball which, we are informed, entered the back half an inch from the spine, and in a downward direction, followed the course which in nine-hundred and ninety-nine cases out of every one would have taken, it could not have failed to pierce the heart and great vessels, the lungs, diaphragm, and intestines, and an injury to any of these should be almost certainly fatal. That the ball has traversed a distance of six inches and a half inches on the outside of the abdomen, without even touching the skin of the peritoneum, is all but incredible, and the fact, if true, will add another to the extraordinary cases in which balls have glanced from their natural direction and taken a totally unexpected course. Cases have occurred in which ball, entering the hip, came out at the navel, where it entered, or over the bones of the temple and head had passed from side to side of the opposite side. Mr Lawson relates a case in which a grain of shot, entering the eye, passed from side to side of the conjunctiva, and a case was communicated to the Surgical Society of Paris about a year ago, in which a bullet, removed from the heart of a man who died in the battle of Salamanca years previously.—Medical Circular.

... says:—"The ball in all probability fired somewhat obliquely, and has lost its course around the chest. It is, perhaps, fortunate also for the Prince that his cowardly assailant was behind, since the tissues of the back would offer more resistance than those in front. It may be remembered that the unfortunate handaman, who was a victim to Fenian hatred, last autumn, was fired at directly in front, and the ball passed between the ribs, and traversed the lung, finding an exit behind. The last accounts pronounce the Prince out of the chest-wall are not without hope of the important organs in the body, the good health and youth of the patient, combined with the solicitous care he has received, will have fully restored him to health before he reaches these shores.
