THE LETTER FROM DR. LIVINGSTONE.

Cape of India) have been favoured with the following extract from a private letter from Dr. Livingstone to a gentleman in Bombay. It is dated March 2, 1868, and was written at Bemba. . . "I have not had a chance to send anything to the coast since I left off now, and have heard nothing of events on our progress further, but I think we are on the watershed between the Congo and Zambesi, which flows, as report says, into Lake Tanganyika. I have heard of a following, but hope to get rid of it and do what I have undertaken. We have had plenty of meat; I can easily supply the pot with my rifle, but meal-nothing could be procured. We had to go on as best we could. It is the rainy season, and we had a long march through dripping forests, with the ground sloppy the feet were constantly wet. This was made worse by the want of a little coffee dishes, but or even a spoonful. The people could not sell their provisions, which are very good as catsup, and we have come to a land where food is cheap, and we mean to rest a little. I hope to get to Tanganyika Lake we hope to turn, and to find a second supply of goods. I shall write to you from thence. . . . This big dog turned out a famous watch; I was never so sorry for any animal when we lately lost him. He had been worth fifty country goats, and as he was a pet I put in a village he kept it free of all cars, and never stole himself. He was as much an attraction as the white man himself. He took charge of the baggage of march, and was so spirited he would attack anything. This is how we lost him—we had to wade a marsh a mile wide and waist deep—a peaty bottom with holes made by buffaloes feet, which made him flounder. I went first and forgot poor doggie. He must have swum after the boys, each one minding himself lest he was drowned; no one noticed him in the marsh towards to Dr. Wilson, though might have done so, but the slave trader will give me more time. I consumed Mrs. Cox's extract of meat from real gnawing hunger, and found it excellent. I have lost all my medicines—the sorest loss of goods I ever sustained. You will excuse my brevity. The slavery party leaves, and I must write several letters. Blessings from the Highest bless you all, my dear friends. —Dr. Livingstone.

THE AVENGER OF NELSON.

Another of the veterans of Trafalgar has been taken from us. Commander John Pollard, R.N., died on the 23d ult., after a long and severe illness, at his residence in Greenwich Hospital. Our readers will like to hear something of the service of this interesting, though neglected old officer, who was born on the 27th of July, 1782, and entered the navy on the 1st of December, 1797, as first class volunteer on board the Harfleur, 16, in which sloop, after being chased a large convoy and three armed vessels, under the batteries of St. Malo, and fought for some time warmly engaged with the enemy, he was wrecked on the 6th of Nov. 1800, in St. Aubin's Bay, Jersey. He next served in the Cambridge, 74; Hercules, 74; Culloden, 75; and Canopus, 84, and thence was transferred to the Victory, 100, bearing the flag of Lord Nelson. On the return of the fleet from pursuit of the combined fleets to the West Indies, Mr Pollard was afforded, as signal boy, an opportunity of participating in the action of Cape Trafalgar. On that occasion, while standing on the poop, he was struck by a splinter on the right knee, and chanced to be the first officer who was there hit. A musket ball next passed through the shell of his spy-glass above his hand, and a second one shattered the watch in his pocket. Some time after the Victory had been in action with the French 74 gunship Redoubtable, the officers and men around him beginning to fall fast, the attention of Mr Pollard was attracted by a number of riflemen crowding in the tops of the Redoubtable, and kept resting a destructive fire on the poop and quarterdeck of the Victory. He immediately leaped a musket, and being supported by the regular quartermaster with ammunition left by the Marines (who from being picked off so fearfully were ordered by Nelson himself from the poop to the starboard gangway), continued firing at the men in the enemy's tops till not one was to be seen. In consequence of handing the last parcel of ball cartridges the quartermaster was killed in the act, leaving Mr Pollard when the action terminated the only officer alive of those who had been originally stationed on the poop, and thus originated the belief that it was he who gave the fatal blow to the man who shot Lord Nelson, and this fact was shortly after the action confirmed by his captain, Sir Thomas Hardy, who sent for him into the ward-room, and, in the presence of the officers, congratulated him upon having avenged the death of their immortal chief. On leaving the Victory the young midshipman he served successively in the Queen, 98; Dreadnought, 98, and Malta, 110, bearing the respective flags of Lords Collingwood, Northwick, and St. Vincent, and was made Lieutenant November 16th, 1806, and continued serving, with only an intermission of 16 months, until 1814, during which time he saw much hard service, and was engaged in many cutting-out expeditions, until September of that year, when he had to return home sick, and, notwithstanding such distinguished services as we have narrated, Mr Pollard was allowed to remain unrewarded, and retired on half-pay till 1828, when he was promoted for three years, still a Lieutenant to the Ordinary, at Sheerness. From 1838 to 1853 he served in the Coastguard, when he retired, as a tardy recognition of his services both in war and peace, was made a Lieutenant, appointed to Greenwich Hospital. It is hard to conceive how an officer who stood such a murderous fire on the poop of the Victory at Trafalgar, and who, if the event had happened in days, would have been thought worthy of the Victoria Cross, or, at least, rapid advancement till he attained his flag, should have been permitted to pine away in the same rank which he held the year after the action, with the exception of the mere nominal title of "retired commander." Our readers will agree with us, that this gallant officer, now passed to his rest, was not ruined by promotion."

Special Notices.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

℞ For the rapid cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Croup, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, and for the relief of Consumptive Patients in advanced stages of the disease.

So wide is the field of its usefulness and so numerous are its cures, that in almost every section of country are persons publicly known, who have been restored by it from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs. When once tried, its superiority over every other expectorant is too apparent to escape observation, and where its virtues are known, the public no longer hesitate what antidote to employ for the distressing and dangerous affections of the pulmonary organs incident to our climate.

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass., and sold by all Druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere.

The Florence Nightingale of the Nursery.

The following is an extract from a letter written by the Rev. C. Z. Weizer, to the German Reformed Messenger, at Chambersburg, Penn.:

A Benefactress.

Just open the door for her and Mrs Winslow will prove the American Florence Nightingale of the Nursery. Of this we are sure, that we will teach our "Susy" to say "A Blessing on Mrs Winslow," for helping her to survive and escape the griping, colicking, and teething siege. We confirm every word set forth in the Prospectus. It performs precisely what it professes to perform every part of it—nothing less. Away with your "Cordial" "Paregoric" "Drops" "Laudanum," and every other "Narcotic," by which the babe is dragged into stupidity and rendered dull and idiotic for life.

We have never seen Mrs Winslow—know her only through the preparation of her "Soothing Syrup for children teething." If we had the power, we would make her, as she is, a physical saviour to the Infant Race. 25 cents a bottle. Sold by all druggists.

Be sure and call for

"Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup,"

Having the fac-simile of "Curtis & Perkins" on the outside wrapper. All others are base imitations.
