ENGLISH SPARROWS IN THE UNITED STATES.

In the spring of 1866, four pairs of the English sparrow came to the Union Square Park, and there built. Three pairs occupied the trees; one ejected a wren from her little house, the only bird-house then in the square, and took possession; a fifth built in the ivy of Dr Cheever's church, facing the square. The industry of these little fellows in devouring the measuring worm (so great a nuisance that most persons avoided passing through the park, preferring to go around during their occupancy; and so numerous were they that they did not leave a leaf on any tree except the ailanthus) was such that boxes were provided on almost all the trees for them. They are very prolific, those hatched in the spring rearing a brood in the autumn, and the old pair rearing four or five broods. In one year they increased from five pairs to a flock of seventy, and they are now estimated at 600. Last summer a reward of one dollar a head was offered for worms, but the birds had eaten the last one; they also eat moths, grasshoppers, and many other insects. These birds have extended about forty miles in every direction. The estimate that they destroy in Europe one-half million bushels of grain is probably correct; but how much, more or less, would the insects they devour destroy? The question is simply which is the greater evil, worm or bird, and which most readily controlled?—American Cultivator.

THE CHARGE OF CANNIBALISM AGAINST THE IRISH.

Cardinal Cullen has addressed the following letter to the Univers in answer to the extraordinary assertion made by Marshal M'Mahon in the course of his correspondence with the Archbishop of Algiers, to the effect that "though Ireland is a very religious country," the natives, during the last famine, used to eat each other, just as the natives of Algeria during the past winter.—Sir,—Permit me to protest, against an assertion relative to Ireland, contained in a letter by Marshal M'Mahon, Duke de Magenta, to Mgr. Larigerie, Archbishop of Algiers. We deemed it our duty to institute a careful inquiry, and in a very short time we were informed, from sources the most authorised, the most unquestionable, that not a single act of cannibalism had occurred in Ireland during the long years of famine which have recently visited the country. No; notwithstanding its distress, the country never beheld the scenes of violence and murder of which the spectators of the Koran have made so sad a display in Algeria. The famine was, it is true, so long and so severe that it may be said that the sufferings of the poor people were unexampled in the world's annals. But in the midst of these trials the people of Ireland derived from the true religion and divine teachings of the Gospel admirable patience and resignation, and prepared to face the anguish of hunger and death by the pious reception of the sacrament of penitence and the Eucharist. Thus, far from attempting the life of their neighbours, far from trying to save their own by sacrificing that of their neighbours, even that of their own children, as has taken place amongst the Mussulmans of Algeria, the poor Irish Catholics—there have been thousands of instances of this—shared with their fellow sufferers their last morsel of bread; and I might quote a large number of parents who, whilst expiring in the torments of death, abstained from touching what scanty food was left them, in order to save thereby, if possible, the life of their offspring. These facts, we are assured, will rejoice no one more than the gallant warrior who, surely through inadvertence, allowed the assertion to escape his pen, which we have felt it our duty to take up. The name of Marshal M'Mahon, which recals one of the noblest families of the Celtic princes of Ireland, holds a high rank among those of our Catholic chiefs, who, in the bloody contest with Cromwell's fanatic bands, inscribed on their banner this noble motto:—Pro fide patria et Rege. The exalted position occupied just now by the worthy marshal, the well-deserved honours he enjoys, all show how faithfully he has preserved the traditions of valour and devotedness for which his race has ever been conspicuous, to their king and country. But, on the other hand, the Catholics of Ireland are pleased to hope that ruling a distant colony in the name of Catholic France, Catholic France who is not only the mother, magna parens, of the Celtic race, but also the eldest daughter of the Church, he will know how to uphold the sacred rights of our faith, and the freedom of a religion for which so many of his ancestors have shed their blood in this land of suffering and martyrdom. I beg to assure Monsieur of my sincere esteem and deep regard.—(Signed) † PAUL, Cardinal CULLEN, Archbishop of Dublin, Primate of Ireland, &c."

The Company of the Commissariat staff corps in Canada has been ordered home to England.

The Eco d'Italia published a list of contributors, ninety and more in number, from the Five Points Italian School to the National Institute for the education of soldiers, children, which strikingly reminds one of the parable of the widow's mite. The school is under the management of the Children's Aid Society, and is composed of the very poorest class of children, bootblacks, newsboys, and the like. Yet, out of their scanty earnings, these noble little fellows have made up, for those who they thought needed it more than themselves, the sum of about $25, in items ranging from $2 down to 25, 10, 5, and even 2 cents! Measured by the means of the givers, this gift is the most munificent, probably, of any made to the object to which it is devoted.—New York Sun.

THE SHAM ELEMENT IN FASHION.—Fortunes are spent every winter on the heartless and, to sensible people, dreary festivities of the ostentatious classes, and many a "Veneering," whose means are more limited than his aspirations, is ruined by his silly attempts to compete in extravagance with his richer neighbours. What a miserable competition is this—a rivalry of cabinet ware, carpets, mirrors, plate, cut-glass, and gewgaws. Theatrical managers and showmen, who get up rival raree-shows to fascinate the public, are in some degree excusable, for trumpery is their stock in trade, and its exhibition their bread-and-butter; but when private families go into this sort of thing merely to gratify personal vanity and out-glitter, if possible, the "dear friends" they invite to their glorification, one cannot help regretting that the money they waste so frivolously has not fallen into the hands of better stewards. Genuine hospitality is the spice of social life; but the formal, show-off fetes given by would-be fashionables during the "gay season," are about the most soul-depressing affairs that ever dampened the spirits of a warm-hearted social being.

RELIGIOUS TEMPERANCE MEETING at the Sons of Temperance Hall, Princess Street, every Sunday afternoon, from 4½ to 5 o'clock.

Only one bid was received for the labour of 250 convicts in the Auburn prison to work in the manufacture of boots and shoes, and the contract was made at forty cents a day for each man.

The Austrian Government have come to an arrangement about the tax on coupons, and a very bad arrangement. No general property tax is to be imposed, but an income tax on national coupons of 16 per cent, that is, in fact, a composition at the rate of 17s. in the pound. The French Government is remonstrating warmly, and it is said the Stock Exchanges will resist; but bonds have gone up. It is a precedent and the measure is dangerous, as it may be copied by Governments less able to plead poverty than the Austrian.

The Marine Exhibition at Havre, officially opened by Prince Napoleon, and which is to be visited by the Imperial Family some time in July, appears to offer a very full and compendious collection of the various classes of objects connected with the different activities of which the world of waters is the field; but will necessarily be attractive to those engaged nearly or remotely in maritime pursuits, rather than to the general public. Great Britain appears to be worthily represented at this gathering, as, indeed, should be the case, considering the proud pre-eminence she has so long enjoyed in regard to all matters connected with the sea.

ALBUMENIZED PAPER.—It appears by the Scotsman that, at Dresden, albumenized paper is now being made in very large quantities, and is considered the best, by reason of the excellent and regular manner by which it is produced. Although scarcely four years ago the trade was unknown here, the city is now manufacturing at the rate of upward of 600 reams per annum, a quantity that would suffice to print more than 120,000,000 of the size known as the carte de visite. The albumen is extracted from the white of the new-laid eggs of fowls, and nearly 2,000,000 eggs are consumed, the yolks of which are used by tanners for preparing the finer kinds of leather.

SEARCHING FOR GOLD.—Travelling through the township of Tudor on one of the hottest days of last week, I came upon an old man of full sixty years of age, sinking a shaft in a hard crystalline diorite (a close grained variety of greenstone), the weather was oppressively hot.

"The angry sun
"From Heaven look'd fiercely red."

All nature except the gold hunter seemed to be overpowered. The crows were sitting on the fences lolling out their tongues, and their wings drooping; even the grasshoppers had crept under the shade of the leaves, unable to raise a chirp from sheer languor. I asked the old man what he was doing there? He replied, "Sinking for gold." I shook my head. "Did you ever see gold in a rock like this?" said he. "Never," said I. "I have," said he; "lots of it." "But where is your vein," said I. "Oh," said he, "I shall come upon that in depth." I told him that in a rock like that, if there was a vein at all, it would show itself at the surface. But he had been to California; he knew it all. I could not advise him, so I left poor "old sixty to go to his death."—W. H. Pathner.

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD LIVER OIL.
DR. DE JONGH'S Oil is convincingly proved by an overwhelming weight of medical testimony, and by the practical test of successful experience for twenty years in all parts of the world, to be, beyond all question, the purest, the most efficacious, the most palatable, and, from its rapid curative effects, the most economical of all kinds.
Hence the universal celebrity of Dr. de Jongh's Oil, and the unparalleled demand for this unrivalled preparation.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.
SIR HENRY MARSH, BART., M.D.,
Physician in Ordinary to the Queen in Ireland.
"I have frequently prescribed Dr. de Jongh's Light-Brown Cod Liver Oil. I consider it to be a very pure oil, not likely to create disgust, and a therapeutic agent of great value."

DR. EDWARD SMITH, F.R.S.,
Medical Officer to the Poor Law Board of Great Britain.
"We think it a great advantage that there is one kind of Cod Liver Oil which is universally admitted to be genuine—the Light-Brown Oil supplied by Dr. de Jongh. It has long been our practice, when prescribing the oil, to recommend this kind, since, amidst a much variety and uncertainty, we have confidence in its genuineness."—(Extract from "Consumption: its Early and Remediable Stages.")

DR. LANKESTER, F.R.S.,
Coroner for Central Middlesex.
"I consider that the purity of this oil is secured in its preparation, by the personal attention of so good a chemist and intelligent a physician as Dr. de Jongh, who has also written the best medical treatise on the oil with which I am acquainted. Hence, I deem the Cod Liver Oil sold under his guarantee to be preferable to any other kind as regards genuineness and medical efficacy."

DR. LETHEBY,
Medical Officer of Health, and Chief Analyst to the City of London.
"In all cases I have found Dr. de Jongh's Light-Brown Cod Liver Oil possessing the same set of properties, among which the presence of cholaic compounds, and of iodine in a state of organic combination, are the most remarkable. It is, I believe, universally acknowledged that this oil has great therapeutic power; and from my investigations, I have no doubt of its being a pure and unadulterated article."

DR. BARLOW, F.R.S.,
Senior Physician to Guy's Hospital.
"I have frequently recommended persons consulting me to make use of Dr. de Jongh's Cod Liver Oil. I have been well satisfied with its effects, and believe it to be a very pure oil, well fitted for those cases in which the use of that substance is indicated."

DR. GRANVILLE, F.R.S.,
Author of the "Spas of Germany."
"Dr. Granville has found that Dr. de Jongh's Light-Brown Cod Liver Oil produces the desired effect in a shorter time than other kinds, and that it does not cause the nausea and indigestion too often consequent on the administration of the pale oil."

EDWIN CANTON, ESQ., F.R.C.S.,
Surgeon to Charing-cross Hospital.
"For several years past I have been in the habit of prescribing Dr. de Jongh's Light-Brown Cod Liver Oil, and find it to be much more efficacious than other varieties of the same medicine which I have also employed with a view to test their relative superiority."

THE COAL MINES & POTTERIES AT NEW GLASGOW, NOVA SCOTIA.

New Glasgow in rainy weather is not a place except for ducks. Its mud is unmeasurable, and its sidewalks are of a somewhat erratic and eccentric tendency, even in the dark, slightly puzzles the benighted traveller. But we must forget mud and its sleepy road commissioners and look at its financial and industrial attractions, as the centre of what is in all doubt destined to be the black country of the New Dominion.

The coal formation is in the shape of a long trough or basin of from two to three miles in breadth, one edge being at New Glasgow and the other two miles farther west. The same seams appear or cross both sides of the basin. Cut an onion in half and you can find (if your tears will allow you) a good illustration in one half of the section of a coal basin, so far as the successive layers, strata or seams of coal and sandstone occur—the cut face of the onion representing the surface of the ground. At New Glasgow the strata dips southerly towards the centre of the basin, while at the Albion mines which are on the Southern side of the basin, the strata dip in the reverse direction.

The lower seams are of immense size, being the largest bituminous seams in the world. The main seam is not less than 40 feet in vertical thickness. These large seams are overlaid by a great thickness of strata, some of which are highly bituminous, some holding a seam on the marsh on the "George McKay" area four feet of which yields 40 gallons of oil to the ton, while a four feet yields as much as 60 gallons, and is used for lighthouses, lubricating machinery, &c., and commands a good price. The seam in question has not yet been worked to account.

The seams or those overlaying shales we have some smaller upper seams which are of valuable quality, in this respect excelling the lower seams. They average from four feet to seven feet. They are very near the surface, and can be worked more easily than the lower seams. I paid a visit yesterday to a slope within three quarters of a mile from the town, which is being sunk by Mr Lawson, on an estate belonging to the Montreal and New York Coal Company. The slope is only to a depth of 50 or 60 feet, and is working without a steam engine, and not more than $1,000 has been spent. Yet it is working coal, and likely to pay well. The coal, being near "the crop," is a little dusty, but is a capital steam coal. In looking at the incipient works, I had to wade through a huge oven blazing away, and found myself at the Crown Brick and Pottery Company's Works. These have been commenced by an English gentleman, Captain Dawson, who, with a few hands, has become the pioneer in what is bound to be the most important branch of manufactures in the New Dominion. The remarkable excellence of the underlying clays of the Picton coal field, near New Glasgow, having attracted the attention of a gentleman in Staffordshire, where they have to compare with the New Glasgow clays, he was induced to embark in this undertaking, and has brought out some first rate artizans. I was shown by his moulder, a very intelligent Shropshire man, some "ware," as it is called before it is burned. These showed the natural tints of the clay, a very beautiful pale rose colour, with a delicate buff coloured clay being very attractive. The Company intend to turn out a superior class of breakfast and other ware. They are also manufacturing bricks, &c.

I conversed upon one of the proprietors the subject of their turning their attention to the export of their fireclay to Montreal and Toronto, where it would command a good price, paying more per ton than even the gold quartz of the Province, after paying the expense of working, &c. It appears that these deposits of clay are not the quality of the same seams in other localities being defective by the presence of iron, and other causes. The Company in question have some hundreds of acres underlaid by their seam, sufficient to supply pottery for the whole of America, for a century to come. In their Works I was shown a seam of fireclays which they have to make their fuel and raw material from the same pit, and which extends hundreds yards of the railway of a shipping place. Mr Oaler, of Toronto, accompanied me in my visit to the works. He suggested to Captain Dawson the propriety of his sending specimens of the ware and of his clays to Toronto and Montreal, with the probability that any orders he might be required to execute in behalf of the Company would be promptly and readily there, as in Toronto.

If these manufactures be in Canada West, it would certainly be more advantageous to have Canadian capital invested in these works. Already orders enough to keep the works busy for some years to come have been offered—and the day is not far distant when English pottery will be driven out of Canada by our own manufacturers.

The large amount of breakage and the expenses for insurance, freight, &c., in the Nova Scotian potteries, should even enable inferior goods to compete with English ware; and if the proprietors of these works employ men whom I saw at New Glasgow, and work with the best imported articles, they will be able to compete with the best imported articles.
