THE QUEEN AND ROYAL FAMILY.

The following pleasant paragraph relating to the Queen and Royal family at Balmoral is from the Daily News —

We see the Queen and Prince of Wales walking together when anything moved the march, in hearty abandonment, into the regular semper which society approves, to see the young Highlander, Prince Leopold, and Princess Beatrice, throwing out men and things to their nurse, like any child, to see the Queen when the day was borne out of the ranks faint with the heat, stand up with motherly concern, turn her back upon the review, and be evident until informed if it was not serious accident, to see the Queen, Prince and Princess, in turn bringing a blush into Prince Arthur's face by probable reference to his new polonies, were little instances that came unsought before many on Saturday, indicating the substratum of personal interest and admiration on which English loyalty is built.

A citizen of Columbus, Ohio, reported an income of over $100,000 last year. Thirty years ago he was a peddling waggon through Madison county, selling surrups and other useful articles.

The Kladderadatsch, of Berlin, gives the following caricature — Scene—The races at Longchamps, Paris, and two horses passing the winning post in front of the Emperor's box; the foremost horse is marked Abyssinia, and the second Mexico. The Emperor remarked, "Even the French horses allow the English to beat them."

The Minnesota papers say that Sauk Valley is filling up rapidly with immigrants. Every day has passed for the last three or four weeks but the streets have been literally filled with immigrants. They are coming from all parts of Minnesota, as well as from the States, and most of them are driving large numbers of cattle and sheep. Large parties of emigrants from Norway and Sweden are also arriving in the town. It often happens that a certain region of country becomes amazingly populated with emigrants, and advances to wealth and prosperity by rapid strides.

The New York Times says the English are naturally very enthusiastic in their praise of Prince Alfred, and that his conduct after O'Farrell's attempt upon his life was such "as to do him great credit." We repeat the wherefore are thus explained in our contemporary:—"He had to pay, it must be remembered, to the uttermost the execution of the sentence under which O'Farrell was sentenced to death, or to hinder the passage of the Treason-felony law which the Fenians, in their wild irritation, sought to place in their statute book. But he did actually interposed to prevent a great injustice being done to an innocent and honorable man. A movement, it appears, was set on foot to socially ostracise Mr Aspinall, the counsel who defended O'Farrell. Prince Alfred, however, not only twice invited Mr Aspinall on board the 'Galatea' during his convalescence, but specially received his presence at the farewell banquet given by the Governor of New South Wales."

At the meeting on Thursday of the General Council of Medical Education, there came under consideration the case of Dr. Wm. Campbell, of Glasgow, charged with trafficking in foreign medical degrees. An attempt was made to exclude the Press during the discussion of the case, but the motion failed for the purpose by Mr Hargrave and seconded by Dr. Ramsay, received only four votes in its favour. The charges against Dr. Macdonald were entered into at length. They were three in number, viz.—1. That he offered for fee or reward to confer the degree of Doctor of Medicine of the University of Pennsylvania. 2. That he offered for fee or reward to obtain the degree of Doctor of Medicine of the University of Giessen. 3. That he falsely pretended to hold a commission from the University of Giessen for inviting young men, for medical degrees, to the University. A motion was proposed by Mr Ramsay, declaring Dr. Macdonald to have been guilty of "infamous conduct in a professional respect." To this an amendment was moved by Sir D. Corrigan, to the effect that the subject was one which should be taken up by the public bodies of the country rather than by the Medical Council. On a division, the amendment was lost, and the original motion was carried by the casting vote of the president. Dr. Macdonald's name was ordered to be expunged from the register.—Glasgow Mail.

The English politicians are now "considering their own safety," as the phrase is, in the light of the approach of the elections in Ireland, and great problems of government have given way to a secondary interest for the time being. The Lords debate on the Irish Church Bill, insured as their decision is sure not to be final, owed more of its interest to its probable effect on the Lords themselves than on the Irish Church. The strong feeling on Ritualism has reported; there is a powerful dissenting minority, which derives it of much of its weight, if, indeed, it had any weight to lose. Its important conclusion is, that it is expedient to restrain, in the public services of the Church, "all variations from the established usage, in respect of lighted candles and incense," having previously stated the established usage was not to allow lighted candles and incense. The majority hold that they should not be prohibited unless the parishioners dislike them, and that usage ought not to be allowed to settle the matter completely, as "the voice of the Church," in their opinion, should be regulated by living authority." Mr Stanley and Mr Coleridge occupy a position of their own; and, in order to satisfy the wants of the two classes of minds which have always existed in the Church, make room in it both for ritualism and anti-ritualism, a proposal which, like all compromises, has a sensible look, but which, if we examine the differences which make the two classes of minds, becomes absurd. The difference between the two goes far deeper than ceremonial, and affects the character of the clergyman. Those who look on him as a priest, with sacramental gifts and powers, and people who look on him as simply a properly appointed teacher, can hardly long continue to worship together; no matter how tolerant they may be in the matter of candles and

Who is Mrs. Winslow?

As this question is frequently asked, we will simply say that she is a lady who, for upwards of thirty years, has untiringly devoted her time and talents as a female Physician and nurse, principally among children. She has especially studied the constitution and wants of this numerous class, and as a result of this effort, and practical knowledge, obtained in a lifetime spent as nurse and physician, she has compounded a Soothing Syrup for children teething. It operates like magic—giving rest and health, and is, moreover, sure to regulate the bowels. In consequence of this article, Mrs Winslow is becoming world-renowned as a benefactor of her race; children certainly do RISE UP and bless her; especially is this the case in this city. Vast quantities of the Soothing Syrup are daily sold and used here. We think Mrs Winslow has immortalized her name by this invaluable article, and we sincerely believe thousands of children have been saved from an early grave by its timely use, and that millions yet unborn will share its benefits, and unite in calling her blessed. No MOTHER has discharged her duty to her suffering little one, in our opinion, until she has given it the benefit of Mrs Winslow's Soothing Syrup. Try it mothers—TRY IT NOW.—Ladies' Visitor, New York City.
