NO. 4.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. Aug. 9th, 1876.

Last Monday there was the jolliest and most uproarious scene in the House that has been witnessed for many months. A stranger, not knowing where he was, would have sworn that he was in a lunatic asylum or that an unexpected treat had suddenly been conferred upon a lot of overgrown school boys, and that it had set them all wild. The Democrats introduced a motion to allow the Investigating Committees to report at any time they saw fit, and the Republicans knowing that nearly every Committee would have a majority and minority report, and fearing that the majority reports would be more or less of a partisan character, were unwilling that the reports should be made unless both majority and minority reports were prepared at the same time, so as to go before the country together. Not being able to carry their point, the Republicans began to filibuster, and then left the House without a quorum. For the first time this session, a "Call of the House" was resorted to, the doors were
