THE STEAMER GOLDEN FLEECE.—Intelligence has been received by the Cape of Good Hope mail of the escape of the splendid screw steamer Golden Fleece, bound to London from Calcutta and Madras, with a large number of passengers, and the melancholy fate of Capt. Western, R.N., the highly respected commander of the ship. The East India and London Shipping Company have received the following particulars of the disaster:—"It appears that on the 10th of July the screw was found to be out of gear, and on the 18th, there being light winds and the sea having gone down, the crew were employed in rigging purchases to raise the screw, which weighed about seven tons, and had to be raised 11 feet to enable the engineer to make the necessary repairs.—In the afternoon the attempt was made; at first with every prospect of success; but at 5 30 p.m., when less than a foot more was required to raise it to a proper height, the chain parted letting the screw slide down into its old position amid a perfect flame of fire, caused by the chain rushing through the iron block.—Although several of the crew and passengers were standing round assisting and witnessing the operation, no one fell a victim to this mishap but the commander, Captain Western, who was struck in the chest with the chain, which broke, and he expired at about half-past 11, from the effects of the severe injuries which he had received. A piece of chain (nearly half a link) was extracted from his back, having entered his chest, breaking his breastbone and seven ribs. When the purchase parted, the screw came down with a terrific crash, and for a short time it was feared that some serious injury had been done to the stern post; on sounding the well by order of Captain Western, who to the last thought of his vessel and passengers, it was found that nothing was to be apprehended. On being raised from the deck, Captain Western at once inquired if any one had been hurt, and being answered in the negative, exclaimed, 'Thank God, it's only me,' and then walked to his cabin, supported by two of the bystanders. On the 19th the remains of the captain were committed to the deep.

LOSS OF THE SHIP GENEVA OF QUEBEC.

Captain Boyd, of the British bark St. Michael, arrived at New York, reports falling in with the ship Geneva, timber laden, from Quebec for London, abandoned at sea, as follows:

September 23, lat. 44 50, at 10 a. m., saw a vessel ahead apparently in a disabled state, having no sail but the maintopsail set; kept off and passed close to her; not seeing any person on board, got out a boat and sent the first officer and four hands on board of her; he sounded her pumps and found eight feet of water in her, everything below all right; she appeared to have been knocked down in a heavy squall; the spare spars; water casks, and every moveable thing were on the starboard side; there being only one pump rigged she could not have been abandoned on account of her leaking; to all appearance she must have been tight, as she had a shute made to take the water from the pump overboard. They had been painting the ship lately, as there was a quantity of green paint mixed. Lay by the ship all day and examined her minutely; discovered a leak under the port main chain, which we stopped. Threw all the spars and water casks overboard. Found two and a half casks of water. Sent tea, coffee, and other stores on board. Also put on board the chief officer and four men to take her to Great Britain. She was the British ship Geneva, of London, Captain Gilchrist, from Quebec for London, with a cargo of timber. She was of 600 tons burthen.

Oswego Harbor.—There is a large fleet of lake craft in our harbor this morning, which, together with a large number of canal boats, imparts a business appearance to the port, in striking contrast in its appearance for a few days past.—Oswego Times.

The tug Lady Franklin has returned from Sodus, where the schooner A. Stowell was wrecked in the late gale, and reports her a total loss. The Stowell was laden with 4,000 bushels wheat, from Youngstown for this port some 3,000 bushels of which were secured and brought down by a lighter. The vessel was valued at 3,000, and was insured for $1,800.—Cargo insured in the North Western.—Ib.

SCHOONER CAPSIZED—TWO LIVES LOST.

Boston, Oct. 21.

The schooner E. L. Berry, from Boston for Philadelphia, capsized yesterday off Handker. chief shoal. The captain and steward were drowned.

BOILER EXPLOSION—LOSS OF LIFE.
