

The resignation of the two Senators from the State of New York, of which we spoke last week, has assumed an importance and interest seldom witnessed even in the warmest political campaign. It is not so much the question of endorsing these two Senators as it is whether the great State of New York, to which, together with the personal efforts of its senior Senator, the present administration is so much indebted, is to be openly insulted by a Maine politician to merely gratify a jealous hatred of a man whose shoes he is not fit to unlace.

On Tuesday next the New York Legislature will elect two Senators to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of Messrs. Conkling and Platt, and what their action will be it is now impossible to tell. That the traitor Robertson and his clique will do all in their power to prevent an endorsement of the two late Senators there is no doubt, but we hope and believe that their schemes will fail, and that the Republicans of the State of New York through their representatives at Albany, will endorse their course by re-electing Conkling and Platt as their own successors, and by such action refuse to "play second fiddle to a Maine trickster, whom the people have twice refused to even nominate for the Presidency."

Below we give the opinions of a few leading men of the Fourth District on the situation:

From Aurora.

THE HON. F. L. BARTLETT.
Chairman Senatorial District Committee: "Think of it? I don't want to think of it. It is an outrage. The President undoubtedly thinks he has done some big slushing with a brick. In threatening Senators as he did, he has shown himself worse than Hayes. If a man in his position wants to break up a party he has a grand opportunity to do it."

"Four years from now I had rather be in Conkling's boots than Garfield's."

L. A. CONSTANTINE.

editor of the Evening Post: "It is an effort of the monopolists to kill Conkling off. Gould is in it, and it will yet be shown that Blaine is there too. Conkling is an honest man—has never been charged with any jobs or steals since he has been in office, even by his worst enemies. The monopolists of the State are all against him, because they cannot use him."

DR. GEORGE W. QUEREAU.

Manager Silver Plate Co: "The whole thing is a piece of foolishness. When Garfield promised to consult those Senators in regard to the New York appointments he should have done as he agreed. I think Garfield honestly intended to harmonize the different elements of the party, and I believe that Jim Blaine is at the bottom of this trouble. As a Statesman, Conkling is way above any man who has ever lived in this country. He stands with Bismarck and Gladstone. His political campaign in New York and the West was the most brilliant in history, and but for his efforts Hancock would have been in Garfield's place. No doubt Conkling is imperious, but he is honest, loyal, and brave. Perhaps he ought not to have resigned, but he ought to be re-elected. I wish things could be so shaped as to make him our next candidate for the Presidency."

THE HON. EUGENE CANNFIELD, EX-STATE SENATOR.

"I must confess that my sympathies are with Conkling in this matter, but he resigned simply for the purpose of a re-election he has made a mistake. I, however, he resigned to give place to some other man who will be more sympathetic with a certain class of men in his State, he shows an unselfish devotion to principle which ought to raise him in the estimation of every Republican in the country. It is an unfortunate thing and will undoubtedly defeat Garfield for a second term."

"I am surprised at the position Charles B. Farwell takes on this question. He has the common sense of the matter, and shows more capacity than I had given him credit for."

THE NEW NORTHWESTERN DEPOT.

The new and handsome depot of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad, at the corner of Wells and Kinzie Streets, was opened yesterday morning—that is the new and handsome waiting-rooms and ticket offices were occupied for the first time. The trains of the Galena and Iowa Divisions have all along been running to and from the new depot, even when it was in the course of construction. The trains of the Wisconsin Division will continue to use the old depot at the west end of Kinzie Street Bridge, a week or two longer, after which they will also come to the new depot. A description of this new and magnificent depot has heretofore been given. Next to the new West Side Union Depot, it is the finest and most commodious in the Western country. The main building fronting Wells Street is a fine specimen of architecture and highly ornamented with a high tower in the center, the smaller ones at the corners. The sheds back of the buildings badly correspond with the surroundings and some disappointment is felt on account of their lack of ornamentation. Still they are commodious and convenient, and answer all purposes.—Tribune.

It is not easy to say why the country was two years ago in the depths of financial depression; why stocks of all kinds were down to a price so low that it seemed as if they could scarcely be sold at any price; why produce of all varieties were dull of sale; why the world seemed overstocked with every kind of manufactured goods; why there seemed to be a surplus even of humanity itself, and why there was no work for the toiling millions, and the land was full of tramps. But so it was. And now it is almost as difficult to explain why we have gone to the other extreme; why we have reached the height of financial prosperity; why stocks have doubled in value, and risen so high as to make the fortunes of all heavy stockholders; why produce is up to high prices; why nearly every variety of goods is in such demand that it is hard to supply them; why labor is bringing the highest rates, and why the toiling millions are masters of the situation, and are striking for higher wages. There seems to be no sufficient cause for it, but so it is.

The gold of Europe is pouring into our country in such quantities as to cause all European nations to look on with alarm. Over fifteen millions of specie was received in New York in April alone, and twenty-eight millions since January, which is nine times as much as was received in the corresponding months of 1880. This is due to the excess of exports over imports, and the surprising thing about it is that the imports of European merchandise continue to decrease. We imported ten million dollars less of European goods in April 1881, than in April, 1880. This promises still larger imports of specie in the near future; but it is not easy to see whence the specie is to come. It is this which causes the bankers of London, Paris and Frankfurt to look on with alarm; and wonder from whence the specie is to come, and the bankers of America to wonder what shall be the outcome of this plethora of money in this favored land.—Ex.

RINGWOOD.

EDITOR PLAINDEALER:—Mr. C. M. Prickett, of this place, started last week to take up a summer job of surveying western lands. He goes first to Minneapolis and thence to Yankton, where he will meet the Surveyor General and after drawing up a contract of the work will go on to Leadville to begin.

Miss Killey, of Richmond, has organized a class in music here and good work is expected as she is well and favorably known as a successful instructor. A liberal share of patronage should be given her. Thus by encouraging able teachers might the musical talents of the young be developed, and in the future scholars in this place will range with those of other towns in this part of the country.

Miss Sarah Thompson, who taught the Primary Department of our School last Winter, is now teaching the school North of here known as the Lawson district. The fact that she taught the same school before speaks well for Sarah.

Great bargains in clothing at J. W. Cristy's. Working clothes at cost and this proved by the fact that on last Saturday evening it took three hands to do up goods and then folks were obliged to wait for their turn.

James Carr spent Sunday in this place. Those who may be in need of a good job of house painting should notice work done by Ben Rainthorpe. It is well known by farmers that wind mills out houses, barns and dwelling houses should be well painted or they soon become weather beaten and decayed, and while having a job done it pays to have it well done. Ben uses either Lead or Rubber paint and in every case guarantees satisfaction.

We're getting that colt broke almost good enough for anything and when we do get him thoroughly tamed we'll show you the boss Sunday street parade.

Mr. Dwelly has had lumber shipped to build a barn on his farm near this village. The building is to be a large structure and will be finished before haying time and ready to receive the crop this season, but it ought to be warmed in a formal manner.

We are sorry to have to announce the death of Mrs. Elma Stevenson, to whom a memoir can be found in another column, who died at her father's house, in this village, on Friday morning, May 20th, at half past four o'clock, after a long and tedious illness. The deceased was a daughter of Wesley Ladd and had formed a large circle of friends and acquaintances who tender to the mourning family their heartfelt sympathy in their bereavement.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Carter, of Jefferson, Iowa, are staying here at present, having come to attend the funeral of their sister.

The Choir from McHenry furnished the singing at the funeral on Sunday, and have the thanks of the friends and all present for so doing.

The Rev. Balch, of Elgin, delivered the funeral sermon on Sunday last to a large gathering of appreciative listeners, whom we believe were much pleased by his genial manners and off-hand discourse.

MRS. SEARLES

Has opened her new Store and is now prepared, with a fine stock of Summer Millinery, to wait upon customers and give them decided bargains in Millinery and Fancy Goods. Her stock is complete, and she is constantly receiving new invoices of the latest styles from the city, and is prepared to wait upon all who may call. Call and examine goods and learn prices before purchasing. Remember the place, new store, next to my dwelling.
