If Not Paid within Three Months, 2.00
Subscriptions received for three or six months in the same proportion.

Rates of Advertising.

We announce liberal rates for advertising in the Plaindealer, and endeavor to state here as plainly as they will be readily understood. They are as follows:

1 inch one year 5.00
2 inches one year 10.00
3 inches one year 15.00
4 columns one year 20.00
5 columns one year 25.00
6 columns one year 30.00

One inch means the measurement of one inch down the column, single column width.

Yearly advertisers, at the above rates, have the privilege of changing as often as they choose, without extra charge.

Regular advertisers (meaning those having standing cards) will be entitled to insertion of local notices at the rate of 5 cents per line each week. All others will be charged 10 cents per line the first week, and 5 cents per line for each subsequent week.

Transient advertisements will be charged at the rate of 10 cents per line, (non-particulate copy, same as this is set in) the first issue, and 5 cents per line for subsequent issues. Thus, an inch advertisement will cost $1.00 for one week, $1.50 for two weeks, $2.00 for three weeks, and so on.

The Plaindealer will be liberal in giving editorial notices, but, as a business rule, it will require a suitable fee from everybody seeking the use of its columns for pecuniary gain.

Announce for immediate publication as No. 15 in their

ROSE LIBRARY

SOME CHILDREN OF ADAM.

BY R. M. MANLEY.

A well-developed story, easily winning and retaining the readers attention to the end. It is a vital contribution to the social study of New York society, for it presents a picture of American life that is most captivating to the thoughtful reader. There is an atmosphere of the reality over the anonymous happenings of the novel, the narrative shows such careful study and shrewd observation of metropolitan life, that those who will accept the types, distinct and interesting in their personality, will at once recognize the veracity of the representation. For this reason it will produce a profound impression wherever New York influences are predominant. Thousands, however, who wish to read the book with the expectation to be entertained only by the charm of its language, its intricate plot, its telling incidents and strange coincidences and its vigorous and at times thrilling actions, will find the inner life, pleasure, intellectual parents, as well as the frivolities of the wealthier classes of New York.

Price, Cloth (illustrated), $1.00.

Paper, 50 cents.

Along the Sherman Line.

U. S. Pension Agent Clements, of Chicago, is true blue. He votes the way he shot.

Candidate Altgeld is not very favorable to soldiers' reunions. Yet he claims to have been a soldier for a few days during the war of the rebellion.

Comrades compare the record of President Harrison with that of Grover and Adlai and then take their choice.

The Republican National platform contains the following regarding their interest in and for the ex-Union soldiers:

"Ever mindful of the services and sacrifices of the men who saved the life of the Nation, we pledge anew to the veteran soldiers of the Republic a watchful care and recognition of their just claims upon a grateful people."

From President Harrison's letter of acceptance: There is beauty of expression and pathos of thought in the reference to the soldiers. Here are his words in full on the subject:

"The Union soldiers and sailors are now veterans of time as well as of war. The parallels of age have approached close to the citadels of life, and the end for each of a brave and honorable struggle is not remote. Increasing infirmity and years give the minor tones of sadness and pathos to the mighty appeal of service and suffering. The ear that does not listen with sympathy and the heart that does not respond with generosity, are the ear and the heart of an alien, and not of an American. Now soon again the surviving veterans are to parade up the great avenues of the National capital, and every tribute of love and honor should attend the march. A comrade in the column of the victors' parade of 1865, I am not less a comrade now."

"Besides pledging $500 to the Andersonville fund, the department of Illinois will assist Phil. Sheridan Post, Nashville, Tenn., in decorating the battlefields of Nashville, and Sepe River. Department President Sarah E. Hannah calls upon every corps to contribute its mite in small flags or cash, and says: "Here lies buried the sacred remains of 22,687 heroes, who gave their lives that the nation might live. Of these vast silent cities our own Illinois is credited with the greatest number. Let every corps respond. All contributions from any source should be forwarded to C. H. Smart, post commander, 1508 Larned street, Nashville, Tenn."

"In 1863, after Lafayette, Ga., fell into the hands of the Union forces," says the Messenger of that city. "The Confederates visited it quite seldom. Occasionally one would come in when they knew the coast was clear. One night, when everything was favorable, two troopers who wore the gray rode in. They had the dignity that a fixed purpose gives a man. Hitching their horses, they made their way cautiously to the shed-floors of the drug store, and raising up some of the loose flooring they made a vain search for some treasure that had been left there hid in the remains of a hollow stump. Not finding it, they concluded that some enterprising Yankee had gotten it. Retracing their steps, they rode off to rejoin their command. The sequel came last Friday: Abe Coulter, while excavating some of the surface dirt within the walls of the building, came across the buried treasure—an old black bottle still tightly corked. When turned over to Dr. Faries an investigation committee was called in. Some of the most solid
