Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy.

The great success of this preparation in the relief and cure of bowel complaints has brought it into almost universal use. It never fails, and when reduced with water and sweetened is pleasant to take. It is equally valuable for children and adults. For sale by all druggists.

In that laughable comic opera, "The Beggar Prince," perhaps the most interesting characters are the Beggar Prince, "The Man of Misfortune," his grand chamberlain, Rocco, and Betty, who also has trouble of her own in the shape of a lover whom the Beggar Prince cordially hates. With the aid of Rocco, he succeeds in separating the two, and Betty, thinking her lover has deserted her finally promises to become the wife of the Beggar Prince who has long been scheming for her hand. Rocco, however, has the same end in view and succeeds in making havoc for all concerned. Misunderstandings and complications follow in delightful fashion. One could not have the heart to see the mercy characters in this entertaining play come to a sad ending, so the finale rounds out to as pleasing and delicious a comic opera as one could desire. Supplemented with catchy musical numbers, costumes and elegant scenery.
"The Beggar Prince" will appear at Central opera house on Thursday evening, March 9, 1905.

A Safe Cough Remedy for Children.
In buying a cough remedy for children never be afraid to buy Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. There is no danger from it and relief is always sure to follow. It is especially valuable for colds, croup and whooping cough. For sale by all druggists.

The stage of the Central opera house will swarm the night of March 9 with pretty girls, funny comedians and all the necessary characters that figure in the cast of "The Beggar Prince," a comic opera which, according to things told of it in other cities, has become a great success judging from a musical standpoint. The play is excellently staged and presented by a company that has won the admiration and applause of the theatre goers for 14 consecutive seasons. This fact combined with the beautiful costumes, pretty music and the bright and clever dialogue should make the coming presentation an altogether notable event.

Incredible Brutality.
It would have been incredible brutality if Chas. F. Lemberger, of Syracuse, N. Y., had not done the best he could for his suffering son. "My boy," he says, "cut a fearful gash over his eye, so I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve, which quickly healed it and saved his eye." Good for burns and ulcers, too.

tion and Biliousness." 25c at N. H.

TO MAKE TESTS. Health Board is Preparing to Make Series of Investigations.

The state board of health is preparing to make an elaborate series of investigations on aerial disinfection by formaldehyde to ascertain definitely the value of a process which has recently been recommended by the state board of health of Maine.

This process is exceedingly simple, and offers the advantages of requiring no complicated or expensive apparatus and no lamp or other heat which might be a source of danger from fire. Infact, the method consists simply of the pouring of the formaldehyde solution or permanganate of potash, any open vessel serving satisfactorily as a container, and the only requirement being that the formaldehyde solution be of good and reliable quality and used in proper proportion to the permanganate of potash. The Maine board reported excellent results from its experiments.

The state board of health has never fully commended disinfection with formaldehyde, for, while this method offered many advantages over sulphur, it was found from investigations that the results were most variable, and that formaldehyde frequently failed to destroy disease producing germs even when used under what were regarded the most favorable conditions.

Formaldehyde was not used for disinfection until 1890, and as early as 1896 Secretary James A. Egan, then a medical officer in the Chicago health department, undertook a series of investigations of the disinfectant power of gas, using practically all of the much lauded generators and apparatus then offered on the market. With none of these were the results satisfactory.
Since that time practically all have disappeared from the market, although they were then highly praised not only by their makers but by many physicians and health officers.

In 1898, 1899 and 1900 the state board of health tested many devices placed on the market which promised to do away with the objectionable features of older methods and which were advertised as most certain and unvarying in their action. Among the methods subjected to tests was the sheet method used by the health department of the city of Chicago and many health officers: A process consisting of spraying formaldehyde solution on sheets in the rooms to be disinfected.

In the tests this method proved ineffective and its adoption was advised against.
Another method which was pronounced entirely unsatisfactory was the use of an apparatus generating formaldehyde gas under pressure and passing the gas into the room through a keyhole, a method still used by the health department of the city of Springfield and by many other cities throughout the state.

The results of formaldehyde disinfection have not been invariably bad. In fact, at times, under conditions which seemed most favorable, disinfection was complete and satisfactory, but on the other hand, failure to destroy disease germs was noted in many instances where every condition seemed most auspicious. During some tests, germs exposed to the gas on plates of nutrient gelatine grew as rapidly as did those which were kept in another room away from the action of the gas.

The state boards of health of Maine and of Illinois have done more in the investigation of disinfection by formaldehyde than any other state boards in the country, and both boards have sought for a means of utilizing the gas which would be inexpensive, simple, but more important than all, absolutely and invariably reliable.

Up to this time the Illinois board has been compelled to recommend the use of sulphur as the most reliable disinfectant, and while it has spoken favorably of one method of formaldehyde disinfection, known as the Bresslau method, which consists in the evaporation of a solution of formaldehyde by means of heat in a specially devised kettle, it has constantly modified its recommendations by warnings of possible failure to secure results. The Bresslau method has been used extensively by the city of St. Louis and has proven the best of various processes so far advocated.

According to the results obtained by the investigators of the Maine board, the generation of formaldehyde gas from the combination of formaldehyde solution and permanganate of potash is thoroughly reliable and the apparatus required is available in any home.

In very few cases did bacteria continue to live after the disinfection and those which did were of a comparatively harmless character. One explanation of the superior germicidal power of this method is that the combination of the solution and permanganate results in the total amount of gas, the full strength being directed in a very short time as a disinfecting agent.

In the more complicated generators the gas is liberated slowly with the result that it does not have the opportunity to act in concentrated form.
This would seem to verify the belief held by many that formaldehyde is an effective disinfectant and that only the methods of the past have failed.
The object of the state board of health in making these investigations is to secure from the cities and villages of the state a reliable and inexpensive method of disinfection which will permit health officers to secure satisfactory results without the expenditure of considerable sums for complicated apparatus and without the destructive effects of sulphur disinfection.

A Chicago Alderman Oves His Election to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"I can heartily and conscientiously recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for affections of the throat and lungs," says Hon. John Shenick, 220 So.
Peoria St., Chicago. "Two years ago during a political campaign, I caught cold after being overheated, which irritated my throat and I was finally compelled to stop, as I could not speak aloud. In my extremity a friend advised me to use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I took two doses that afternoon and could not believe my senses when I found the next morning the inflammation had largely subsided. I took several doses that day, kept right on talking through the campaign, and I thank this medicine that I won my seat in the Council." This remedy is for sale by all druggists.

On Thursday, March 9, at Central opera house, the Beggar Prince opera company will present their greatest success, "The Beggar Prince," a comic opera in three long laughing acts and we can safely say nothing in the way of comic opera in recent years has created such a furor in theatrical circles. The company is an unusually strong one headed by the inimitable comedienne, Miss Etta Merris who has been connected with this organization for several seasons and it is to her excellent work their present success is largely due.
This is their fourteenth consecutive season and the management has spared no expense to make it as in the past the most satisfactory musical organization in the west.

Champion Liniment for Rheumatism.

Chas. Drake, a mail carrier at Chapinville, Conn., says: "Chamberlain's Pain Balm is the champion of all liniments.
The past year I was troubled a great deal with rheumatism in my shoulder. After trying several cures the storekeeper here recommended this remedy and it completely cured me." There is no use of anyone suffering from that painful ailment when this liniment can be obtained for a small sum. One application gives prompt relief and its continued use for a short time will produce a permanent cure.
For sale by all druggists.
