PANORAMA.—Do not forget the Panorama this evening. It has been very highly spoken of. Go and see it.

COL. Jarvis, D. A. G., is in Ottawa, on militia business.

CAVALRY SCHOOL.—This school was closed yesterday. The successful candidates are not known.

TO-DAY the service in St. Mary's Cathedral, on the anniversary of His Lordship Bishop Horan's consecration, was grand, and well attended.

NEW ORLEANS MINSTRELS.—This troupe performed again last night, and brought down the house repeatedly. They bear away the best wishes and compliments of the Kingston public.

IT WILL be seen by the advertisement printed elsewhere that Mr. McMillan the Auctioneer, has removed to the Market Square, with the balance of the old Montreal House Dry Goods stock, where he will dispose of it by private sale.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.—The tenders of Messrs. Cunningham & Massie for the work on the new school-house are accepted, and the work will be pushed forward at once. The building will cost $3,000, of which sum one-half is now secure.

ATTENTION is called to the card of Dr. Dupuis in another column. Dr. Dupuis has been practising in Odessa for a number of years, but recently sold out to Dr. Neish and has come to reside among us, where we wish him a prosperous professional career.

MR. KIRKPATRICK, the well known agent of the popular Gardner Sewing Machines, has removed from his old stand at the head of Princess Street, to the store recently occupied by Mr. Geo. Carruthers, nearly opposite Tandy Bros'. Marble works. Those in want of a really good, easily run and cheap Sewing Machine cannot do better than to give him a call.

POLICE COURT.

BEFORE MR. STRANGE.

TUESDAY.—Dennis Farrel, for being drunk and preocious, paid $2 and costs to gain his liberty. Jones vs. Donoghue—a case of breach of by-law, for turning out on the wrong side of the street, was decided by a fine of $2 and costs. The case of Mr. McCammon, baker, against Armour, a late employee, was closed by the addresses of the counsel, Messrs. Britton and McIntyre. Judgment reserved.

WEDNESDAY.—Bridget Hayden had been drunk. She is not the worst of offenders, and was let off, of course she promised much, but spirits are strong and flesh is weak. At least so Archy Buchanan said when he had to stand up. He made a capital appeal to the court, and was allowed to go the Island. Mrs. Rachel Spence, being insane, was committed to gaol temporarily.

Two residents of Frontenac Ward, were summoned for keeping foul premises, and were given until Saturday to obey the by-law.

Mr. Otto Meves charged a late employee, named Rourk, with leaving his employment. The latter was indentured, but was given work which he refused to do and left. Judgment reserved. Mr. McIntyre for plaintiff; Mr. O'Reilly for defendant.

AN ARCTIC VOYAGE ON LAKE ONTARIO.

A FLEET FIVE DAYS IN THE ICE FLOE.

(Oswego Advertiser.)

Yesterday about two o'clock, the steamers Lawrence, Capt. Reed, and Milwaukee, Capt. Lamphere, of the Northern Transportation line, entered this port and were soon moored to the Company's wharf. The Lawrence had seven or eight passengers for the West, and the Milwaukee also had a number. The former had nine horses on board.

The incident of the passage, the detention in the ice at the lower end of Lake Ontario, and the exciting scenes incident thereto, as related by the passengers, were equal to the descriptions of Capt. Kane of scenes in his Arctic voyage.

The Oswegatchie left Ogdensburg on the 20th; the Brooklyn on the 21st, at daybreak; the Lawrence on the 23rd; the Young America on the 24th; the Empire the same day; the Milwankee on the 25th.

This fleet of steamers collected at Cape Vincent, which point they reached without serious obstructions from ice in the St. Lawrence. The Lawrence left Cape Vincent on Tuesday at two o'clock, and pushed out into Lake Ontario to encounter the ice, and to enter upon a five days struggle to pass the frozen barrier. The others followed the Lawrence one at a time, but did not come up with it until Thursday, when the fleet of thirteen propellers, some of them bound down were in sight, wedged in by the immense field of ice. At one time nine of those propellers were within hailing distance.

The passengers describe the scene presented by this spectacle as beautiful and sublime. The expanse of ice was boundless. Thirteen of these beautiful craft stood out upon the frozen surface, puffing and struggling for progress through the icy mass. This struggle lasted from Tuesday, the 23rd, until Sunday morning, the 28th. The incidents were of the most exciting nature. Sometimes the propellers would push their way rapidly for several miles through the mass of ice; then again would come on a struggle for hours, when the fleet would not progress a rod. Some days a progress of miles would be made and nightfall would close the struggle; when daylight next morning would reveal the discouraging fact that during the darkness the fleet had drifted for several miles backward beyond the point made the day before.

Luckily, the stewards of the several propellers had taken in a good stock of provisions at the Cape, and there was no lack in the bill of fare. The passengers passed away the time pleasantly in games of "euchre," and alternately "taking a hand" with the captains and crews in the contest with the ice.

Unfortunately for the poor horses upon the Lawrence but a limited supply of provender was on board. The oats were all consumed, and for several days the poor brutes were without hay. On Saturday it was discovered that the City of Boston, bound down, had a cargo of corn, and was lying from a half to three quarters of a mile from the Lawrence. A boat was got overboard, and by dragging over the ice when necessary, and pushing it through the water when possible, and by carrying planks to bridge over the chasms in the ice, a supply of corn was transferred to the Lawrence, and temporary relief furnished the famished animals.

On Sunday morning Captain Reed, who was in the advance, found himself several miles below the False Ducks, and discovered that the wind had made an opening in the ice toward the Canada shore, like a canal sufficient for the passage of the Lawrence. This he at once entered, followed by the Milwaukee, and soon discovered another similar opening leading out into clear water in the Lake. This he also followed, feeling his way along carefully by the use of the lead, until he passed out of the ice, after the five days' struggle, the most remarkable and exciting, without doubt, ever experienced upon Lake Ontario.

Captain Reed informed us that for more than thirty years he has navigated the Lakes and has never experienced anything like this before. He represents this ice floe as covering the entire area of the lower end of the lake. A north-east wind, he thinks, is necessary to break it up, and drive it out upon the Lake.

British enterprise is already anticipating the day when the Canadian Pacific Railway will be an accomplished fact. It is stated that a steamship company is being organized, with a capital of £750,000, to run a line of ocean steamships between British Columbia and China. Some day the trade of Asia will pass along the valley of the Saskatchewan.
