MADE TO ORDER.

It will be remembered that the Grand Lodge of Western Ontario, at their meeting in February last, adopted a resolution condemning the action of the Ontario Ministry in offering a reward of $5,000 for the apprehension and arrest of the murderers of Thomas Scott. They went out of their way to do this, as the Orange Order is not a political organization, and rarely lends itself to political intrigue. However, to give some color of fair dealing to their condemnatory resolution they decided to take legal opinion as to what tribunal had power to try the murderers, and as to Ontario's authority in the premises. The lawyers to whom the reference was made are the leaders of the clique which is trying to divert the Order from its proper functions into a political engine to do Sir John's work. The legal quartette was made up of Mr. John Hillyard Cameron who defended the Rebel emissaries—Scott and Richot; Mr. D'Arcy Boulton, Mr. D'Alton McCarthy, and Mr. Herbert S. Macdonald, the latter of whom, though an American, and holding nothing in common with Orangemen, has mounted into Parliament on their shoulders, and does his little best to suppress the expression of that loyalty for which they have always been noted in denouncing the atrocious murder of a fellow-Orangeman for his devotion to law and order. Any opinion that these gentlemen might frame as to the action of the Ontario Government must of course be worthless to impartial minds, as it would necessarily be made to order. It looks rather like a broad joke for the four to pass a resolution, and then refer to themselves the question of the legality of their conduct. It is not unnatural to expect that they would manufacture an orthodox opinion bristling with statutes, references and precedents to prove that they were correct in the view which they were kind enough to take in reference to the offering of the Reward.

Valueless, however, as the opinion is, an examination of it will show that with all their ingenuity the precious Four were unable to prove what is necessary to make a case against the Ministry—that they were insincere and that the offering of the Reward has been productive of no good result. The quartette tell us as the result of their three month's investigation of the law that the murderers of Scott could only have been arrested by the proper officers under the authority of the governing powers of Rupert's Land, and been tried there or in this province up to the 14th of April, 1871, since which date the Courts of the Province of Manitoba have had exclusive jurisdiction. This latter is the gravamen of the charge—that at the time the Reward was offered Ontario had no jurisdiction in the premises and in the words of a Ministerial organ "neither authority to arrest nor power to punish the murderers of Thomas Scott." We are not aware that such powers were ever claimed. The object of offering a Reward was that Ontario should enter a solemn protest against the perpetrators of a cold-blooded murder being allowed to go unpunished by the connivance of the Ottawa authorities, and to supplement that protest by an offer of a money incentive to bring the ruffians to justice. The Ministry did not claim that Ontario process could arrest or Ontario courts try the murderers. Their desire was by offering a reward to endeavor to bring Riel and his brother assassins before a court of competent jurisdiction in Manitoba. The offer of the Reward did not bring about the desirable result, but it has had the effect of ridding British soil of the notorious banditti. In the face of this result what foundation is there to the charge that the Ministry knew that their Proclamation was worthless. It may suit the super-loyal Tory to say that Riel's forced departure from British territory is nothing, but to those who are not content with mouthing their loyalty but desire to act loyally, the banishment of Scott's murderers is an indication that through French machinations they are to be unwhipt of justice the people of Ontario are not so spiritless and craven hearted as to allow them to shelter themselves under the flag.

Notwithstanding the weak efforts of an Orange clique and the cries of opposition circulated by the Tory press, the fact stands out prominently before the loyal people of Ontario that the Ottawa Cabinet committed a fatal blunder by their disloyal conduct in the North West, and by holding out a premium for rebellious treason. With a reckless disregard for decency Sir John Macdonald had the effrontery to say from his place in parliament the other day that poor Scott was "shot" not murdered, and wagged his head pleasantly in making the distinction. Sir John and his colleagues will find during the next elections in Ontario that the people of this province entertain a widely different opinion from them on the subject and will bring them to task for their disloyal sheltering of the murdering crew. Scott was murdered, was murdered for his loyalty—his murderers have been sheltered by those whose duty it was to punish, and coveyed safely out of the country and are now living at the public expense. These facts are well known and will not soon be forgotten by the public of Ontario as the coming campaign will demonstrate.

Our City Volunteers.

Kingston has always been proud of its volunteer force, and she has had good reason to be so. When the first Fenian trouble took place, none obeyed the bugle call to arms with more alacrity than the members of the 14th Battalion. When the second crossing was made, the same regiment was ready to take the field; and during the Red River rebellion nearly all the officers and many of the men volunteered their services to the Government. In January last many of the men completed their three years term of service, some of whom will remain, while others will seek the discharge to which they are entitled under the militia act. Some time ago a general order was issued at Ottawa, requiring commanding officers to have the ranks filled which were vacated by discharged men. What progress has been in this respect in Kingston we are not in a position to say. We are afraid, however, that it is not satisfactory. The officers, captains of companies especially, complain of the difficulty of getting men. We are aware that there are many difficulties in the way; but we think the officers should not be discouraged. A thorough canvass would be worth a trial, and if performed in a right manner, we have little fear as to the result. There are a large number of vacancies in the 14th at present, which should be filled up by promotions and appointments. It is our opinion that those officers who are now serving in Red River should be asked to resign. They contribute nothing to the Battalion Fund, and stand in the way of the promotion of deserving officers, which has created no small amount of dissatisfaction. We hope to hear of these vacancies being filled up at an early day, and that the ranks of the 14th are full again. As long as a volunteer force is kept in the country we will be anxious that Kingston shall sustain a regiment of which her citizens may feel proud.

The City Council.

Last night's was indeed a quiet meeting, and there was an improvement in the temper of the Council. Earnest, useful business took the place of invective and pique against the Board of Trade.

The petition against the erection of wooden houses within the fire limits is opportune, and will be productive, it is hoped, of more substantial and less inflammable structures, to the improvement and safety of the city.

The call from the Hon. A. McKellar for a return of the demand for working people is an earnest of the interest taken by the Ontario Government in emigration, and it will be for the advantage of our citizens to report at once their wants, and have them attended to.

The careful report on encouragement to manufactures, (in another column,) is a practical and pleasing result of the investigations and memorial of the Board of Trade. It is not quite so liberal as the Board prayed the Council to enact, as it excludes the payment of bonuses, but it offers freedom from taxation and other benefits proportionate to abilities at the present time of liberal public expenditure for improvements.

The Auditor's Report will be found an interesting document when published. It reports the City Clerk's, Chamberlain's and Collector's books and accounts scrupulously exact and correct; the Sinking Fund very sound; the City Real Estate large in value, and its assets in a promising proportion to its debts. The report is creditable to Messrs. Callaghan and McAthur.

A MISTAKE CORRECTED.—The Toronto Telegraph of Saturday last referred to the New York Herald's report of the Rev. Luke H. Wiseman's speech at the Methodist Conference in Brooklyn. The Telegraph should know that Mr. Wiseman is not an American but an Englishman, who is one of the representatives of the British to the American Conference. The Herald must have misreported Mr. Wiseman, when it made him speak of the "disestablished Church of England," which would be a foolish thing for an educated Englishman to say. Mr. Wiseman was speaking of the education question, and referred to the pleasing fact that Methodists and other dissenters could now participate in the honors of Oxford and Cambridge. Before the passing of the University Tests Act, unless they subscribed to the thirty-nine articles of the Church of England, no dissenter could take a degree at Oxford, and not higher than B.A. at Cambridge. London University has been the alma mater of the majority of dissenting ministers in England. Now, however, by the abolition of the act mentioned, the fellowships of Oxford and Cambridge are open to all, and Methodist and other dissenting students are becoming more numerous at the ancient universities of England. It was to this that Mr. Wiseman referred in his speech.

The Band.

We are informed by an officer, that the parade of the Band on Sunday was not the cause of the termination of the engagement with Prof. Smith, the instructor. There were other reasons. It is not probable, that another band will be raised, if this present one is now disbanded.

Keating, a merchant, a two-story stone building; and Mr. Blackburn, merchant, store and store-house, containing a large quantity of grain; H. Holmes, druggist; Dominion Telegraph Office; Mr. Benjan's grocery, and Montreal Telegraph Office; P. & J. Quin's blacksmith shop; D. Boyd's grocery; W. Cochrane's saddler shop; S. Martin's photograph gallery and dwelling; J. Fitzsimmon's grocery; D Boyce's store; D. McLoven's grocery; Miss Courtney, milliner store; J Christie, tailor; G. Noland, grocery and several dwelling houses. The fire spread so rapidly that very little was saved; loss very heavy. At 4 a.m. the fire was checked from spreading. The operator says there is so much excitement he can't find out anything reliable about the loss or insurance for some time.

The Alabama Claims.

MR. GLADSTONE made his promised explanations in the House of Commons last evening, respecting the present state of the negotiations with the American Government relative to the claim for indirect damages; and he made the gratifying announcement that he hoped a settlement honorable alike to both countries would be effected within a few days. Earl Granville made a similar statement in the House of Lords. The remark of Mr. Gladstone were received with loud cheering from all parts of the House; and Mr. Disraeli expressed his pleasure at the probability of a happy and honorable settlement of the question at issue.

Yesterday the secret correspondence on the subject was submitted to the Senate by President Grant and it is said that there is every probability of the acceptance of the additional clause to the treaty, by which an amicable settlement will be arrived at. The contradictory statements, which came over the wires on Saturday, and Sunday have proved that speculators must have been at work to influence the stocks by publishing sensational stories on the subject.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

MONDAY, May 13th.—The discussion on the Treaty was resumed by Mr. Bodwell, who contrasted the conduct of the British Commissioners, in regard to the Alabama claims, with that of the Americans in respect to the Fenian raid claims, and remarked he had been shocked at the scoffing manner of the Secretary for the Provinces, when alluding to the sufferings of Canadian subjects from the raids. Then, turning his attention to Mr. McDougall, he charged him with having first betrayed his party, and then, when cast off by his new allies, with desiring to be received again into the Reform ranks. Being very properly repulsed, he was now losing no opportunity of assailing the Liberal leaders. He then went on to show that Sir John was directly responsible to Canada for his proceedings in relation to the Treaty; to point out that he had known from the first that the interests of Canada would have to be sacrificed; and to argue that the proferred bribe of the loan guarantee was little less than an insult to the House and country, to the effect that having regard to existing circumstances, it was inexpedient to proceed further at present with the Bill.

Sir John A. Macdonald thereupon got upon a little piece of acting, declaring that Mr. Blake was afraid to put his amendment to the House, and had induced Mr. Ladwell to move a fresh amendment postponing a direct vote. This he declared was unfair; and will much affected indignation denounced the movement. Mr. Mackenzie pointed out that circumstances had altered since Mr. Blake's amendment had been moved; and declared the amendment was only adapted to those altered circumstances. He and his friends, however, would not shrink for the position they had assumed, and were prepared to stand by their first resolution.

Sir Francis Hincks then arose. Sir Francis is known to have been the most vehement opponent to the Treaty; but, as in the case of his celebrated national policy surrender, he has turned his back on himself; and yesterday, during a speech of an hour and a half, limped and blundered in a slow and embarrassed fashion through quotations from speeches delivered in the House of Lords and other scraps of comfort he could find to justify his own tergiversation.

Mr. J. H. Cameron deprecated Mr. Howe's offensive allusions of Mr. Blake's profession, and the singularly inapt illustration accompanying it. His remarks were in the style of an hen-at-law mauling a tombstone, accompanied with the zeal of a criminal lawyer pleading for mitigation of sentence on the ground of previous good character. Mr. Connell followed, being the first New Brunswick member who has spoken in the course of this debate. He argued very ably in opposition to the Treaty. Mr. Power, (Halifax), supported the Treaty. Mr. Magill opposed the Treaty, as being a sacrifice of our rights without affording adequate compensation. Mr. Oliver argued we had two advantages the Americans did not possess—the navigation of the St. Lawrence and the valuable fisheries—and those we proposed to relinquish without an equivalent. Mr. Ross (Victoria, Nova Scotia) opposed the Treaty. Mr. O'Connor then moved the adjournment of the debate, and the House rose at half past eleven o'clock.

LAST NIGHT'S NEWS.

Washington House, May 13.—Among the numerous bills introduced and referred under the call of the States, was one by W. R. Roberts, directing the President to intercede with the Canadian authorities for the discharge of the Fenian prisoners.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 13.—The lead works of Fahnestock, Harlett & Shwartz took fire yesterday, and were entirely destroyed, together with the dwelling adjoining. Messrs. Fahnestock, Harlett & Shwartz will probably lose half a million of dollars. They are insured for $60,000.

PIGEON MATCH.—The pigeon match took place yesterday between Mr. H. Stratford and Mr. J. Potter for the sum of $200. A large crowd were present, and first rate sport (as was expected) was seen. The following is the score:

Mr. Stratford..1 1 1 0 1 1 1—6
Mr. Potter....1 1 1 1 1 0 0—5

Mr. Stratford's fourth bird fell dead outside the boundary, as also did Mr. Potter's seventh. Therefore, only one of Mr. Potter's birds escaped untouched, and none of Mr. Stratford's. Mr. J. Abrams and Mr. Cooper acted as Judges, and Mr. H. Perkins as trapper. Other matches are likely to result from this one, and the sport is established here.

The shooting was on the commons known as the old race course. The day was all that could be desired in regard to weather. The contestants were perfectly cool and collected, and acted in a very gentlemanly manner throughout. Considerable interest was felt by the friends of both parties; the best of order prevailed, and a fair show for the championship was the motto. At half-past three o'clock the gentlemen appeared before the trap. Mr. Stratford, having the first shot, brought down the first bird, with Mr. Potter following suit. The sport progressed in this way until Mr. Stratford's fourth bird fell out of the boundary, and Mr. Potter missed the sixth. At six birds each they were ties. This being the number to be shot by each contestant it was decided by the Judges the tie to be shot off with three birds each. Mr. Stratford, having the first shot, killed his bird. Mr. Potter's first bird on the tie fell two feet out of bounds, and Mr. Stratford was declared the winner. The rules of shooting were strictly complied with—21 yards rise, and 80 yards boundary.
