The Bachelor's Lament.

Tell me not that I am lucky,
Or, that it is better so;
Had I only been more plucky,
I had married years ago.
Even now, though young no longer,
And my hair is dash'd with grey,
Every week my penchend's stronger
For that girl across the way.

Thompson has a cosy dinner,
With his wife and bairns, at seven;
Ah, for me, poor lonely sinner,
That would be a glimpse of heaven.
But old Todger's state of refection,
Every day at half-past one,
Has no claim on my affection,
And I'm glad when it is done!

Oh, how sick of mutton!
(Thompson's wife makes such a sew!)
Half my shirts can't boast a button!
(Thompson's look as good as new.)
Mrs. Mangles prigs my linen,
And the pot-boy drinks my port,
While my stock of gin's beginning,
Somehow, to get very short.

Ah! I see that some one's needed
To look after me and mine,
Or my kit will soon be wedded,
And that boy'll drink all my wine.
Come what will—(I've been a noodle!)
At her feet my heart I'll lay;
Yes, I'll make her Mrs. Doodle—
That sweet girl across the way.

The RR Meeting at Newburg.

(Napanee Beaver.)

A good attendance of the committee and others. E. Perry, Esq., Warden in the chair. A number of communications, giving estimates of cost per mile &c., were read, and opinions of eminent railway men quoted on the subject, when it was moved by R. Finkle, seconded by P. D. Booth, and resolved, that the committee be augmented the following names being added.

For Newburgh.—D. Y. Pringle, James Thompson, Thomas Scott, W. H. Hope.

South Fredericksburgh.—Ira Ham, Geo. D. Hawley, George B Sills, D. Sills.

Barry.—C. M. Kenyon, Thomas Tappin, Robert Scott.

Sheffield.—Harvey Smith, Robt. McD. Smith, James Burns, Jas. Aylsworth, Peter Carscallen, John Sherman, D. Gilmour.

Moved by P. D. Booth, that this meeting, feeling the great lack of facilities to place in the market cereals, lumber, railroad ties, cedar, marble and ores of different kinds, with which our county abounds in profusion, are of opinion that a Railway is what is needed to make our county especially marked by progress, and believe the same would be a paying investment. Carried.

Moved by Thomas Scott, that at any regular called meeting ten members of the committee shall be a quorum to transact business. Carried.—Adjourned.

The leading factories and shops, as well as the builders and carpenters in Guelph, have commenced to pay their employees by the hour. The arrangement is reported to give satisfaction both to the employer and employee, and the best understanding exists.

The House and the Vote.

Unusual excitement prevailed in the House of Commons last night up to and during the taking of the division on the Washington Treaty. The galleries remained well filled to the close. During Dr. Grant's speech members were very restive and impatient and they would scarcely hear him. When Mr. Holmes arose he was greeted with yells and cries of "question," "question" and his remarks were completely drowned in the uproar, when at length the Speaker directed that the members should be called in, the order was received with hearty cheers.

Visit to Napoleon.

The Queen's visit to the ex-Emperor of the French may not improbably have a certain amount of political importance. Thiers's protectionist views are evidently alike odious to the English Government and the English people, and it is not impossible that the attentions paid the Emperor are a description of royal "bottle holding," to borrow Palmerston's phrase, intended as an indirect rebuke and discouragement to the French protectionists and their equally stubborn and adroit though aged chief.

Captain Sanger, of the 17th U. S. Infantry, has undergone a trial by court-martial at Fort Sully for felony, besides conspiring to imprison a brother officer on false allegation of insanity. The finding of the Court has not yet been promulgated.

Perhaps.

The Minister of War for the Dominion, in his speech on the subject of the Fenian claims, said, "the honorable member for West Durham had become quite sentimental, speaking of widows and of young men who had lost their lives, and asked whether an Imperial guarantee would compensate such cases as these." We would ask if Sir George had been captured during the rebellion of 1837 and 1838, and hung on the branch of the 'first tree' for attempting to uproot British power from Lower Canada at that time, would his wife or children become sentimental, or would they have been satisfied with the Imperial guarantee in such a case viz., hanging Sir George and thus preventing him from troubling this Dominion any more? Perhaps they would have been satisfied with the guarantee.—Hamilton Times.
