The Ried That Wouldn't Sing. Gabrielli, the great prima donna, once "suffered" a twelve days' imprisonment for a whimiscal refusal to sing in her usual first rate style. It was the occasion of a state dinner given by the viceroy at Palermo. Gabrielli had been engaged for the function, but as she did not put in an appearance the dispatched to ascertain the cause of her absence. The messenger was party can nominate but one candidate to promptly informed that Gabrielli was the General Assembly from any one in bed, where she had become so absorbed in a favorite author that she had forgotten the engagement. Resenting the command for her appearance, the lady began by singing her very worst, and when the viceroy urged her to be less foolish she refused to sing at all.

"The viceroy may make me cry," said she. "but he can never make me sing." For this freak Gabrielli was sent to prison, as we have indicated, for twelve days, during which time, having liberty to do as she pleased, she feasted her friends in great style and enjoyed herself in a variety of ways.

The Rev. Samuel Peters was the min who made Connecticut's blue laws famous by their publication in his history of that state. In that interesting volume the following original bit of natural history is to be found: "In the Connecticut river, 200 miles from Long only, formed by two shelving mountains of solid rock, whose tops intercept the clouds. Through this chasm are compelled to pass all the waters which in the time of floods bury the northern country. Here water is consolidated without frost, by pressure, by swiftness, between the pinching, sturdy rocks to such a degree of induration that an iron crow floats smoothly down its current. Here iron, lead and cork have one common weight: here, steady as time and harder than marble, the stream passes, irresistible if not swift as lightning."

Crossed Checks.

"There are no certified checks on the other side," said an English financier. "Any funny business in the shape of check kiting when the wherewithal is not in the bank to make good and you find yourself behind prison bars in short order. But they have 'crossed checks'-that is, two horizontal lines about half an inch apart are drawn across the check, and '& Co.' is written between them. That means when you get a crossed check you cannot at once go to the bank on which it is drawn and demand payment, but must deposit the check in your own bank first and let it take the usual course through the clearing house. This gives the other man a chance to finance his affairs, which just at that time may be very intricate and onerous, and prevents you from jumping at his throat right away."

The Japanese Language. The Japanese language has some fea tures which puzzle beginners in its use In English when one has learned the name for rice that ends it. Not so in Japan. Begin with cooked rice, meshi. irritation-for a while. You take mama. In speaking to another person of eating rice you call it gozen. As a merchant sells it, uncooked, it is kome. and as it grows in the field it is ine. So carpenter's foot, or shaku, is about welve inches, but a tailor's is fifteen. BRAELEY & FOSS, Shakespeare In Parliament.

In July, 1855, a debate was going or in the house of commons respecting Lord John (afterward Earl) Russell's ignominious failure during his mission in Vienna to bring the Crimean war to an end, in consequence of which the opposition indulged in some strong criticism regarding the party in power, At last Lord Palmerston, then prime minister, rose and began to talk in a hectoring way about "this unnecessary and unprovoked attack upon the government" and ended by saying in a loud voice and looking straight at two literary members-Bulwer and Disraeli -who were sitting together on the front opposition bench:

"The gentlemen are making 'Much Ado About Nothing." He sat down amid loud cheers from his own side, but in an instant Bulwer was up and with exquisite grace and sarcasm said: "Mr. Speaker"-then turning to bow slightly toward the treasury bench-"I beg to remind the noble lord that in chronological order 'Much Ado About Nothing' comes after 'A Comedy of

Our First "Star."

"One celebrated Portia," says the author of "Shakespeare's Heroines on the Stage," "came of a noted family, being none other than Mrs. Eliza Whitlock, the sister of Mrs. Siddons and of the Kembles. In England, at the age of twenty-two, she had made her London debut as the heroine of 'Shylock' on the 22d of February, 1783, and, though somewhat masculine in face and figure, yet displayed so animated a countenance and so graceful a bearing as to win a moderate degree of favor. A few years after coming to this land she enjoyed the distinction of playing the first 'star' engagement on the American stage, being engaged for $450 and a benefit, to play at the Boston theater in October, 1796. There she repeated her Portia, contending with the remembrance of Mrs. Powell's impersonation of a previous season. She also had the honor of playing before George Washington in Philadelphia."

Deschapelles.

Deschapelles, the greatest whist player the world has ever seen, had but one hand and was an advanced republican. His manual dexterity was remarkable. and it was very interesting to watch him with his one hand—and that his left-collect the cards, sort them, play them and gather them in tricks. Late in life, when he had developed into ardent republicanism, he was supposed to have been mixed up in some of the attempts at revolution which broke out in the earlier days of the reign of Louis Philippe. His papers were seized, and it was proved that he had drawn up a list of persons to be disposed of. Among them was an elderly acquaintance, so described: "Vatry (Alphie) to be guillotined—Reason—citoyen inutile. Vatry is a bad whist player."

The Work of Oxygen. The oxygen gas of the air is at once the great stimulant and the great destroyer of life. In fermentation. growth, putrefaction, combustion and oxidization, which are merely different names for the same process in different forms, oxygen is doing its universal work. It is no metaphor, but a chemical fact, that our world and everything in it are burning with a greater or less degree of rapidity. It is only when the process becomes very rapid that we can see the flames. So instead of saying that we are in the midst of everlasting fire—a saying which might alarm the timid—the scientific merely say that oxidization in its various forms goes on without cessation.

Wonderful Mechanical Flies. It is not necessary to remark, especially after one reads the following, that it taxes credulity to the utmost to believe some of the old time stories: John de Montroyal presented Emperor Charles V. with an automatic iron fly which escaped, circled around his majesty's head a few times and then alighted upon his sleeve. Virgilius, bishop of Naples, made an iron fly which did not only fly, but kept all other flies out of the city.

Ventilating the Simplon Tunnel. The system of ventilation adopted for the Simplon tunnel necessitates the closing of each end. This is effected by huge canvas screens, which work automatically on the passage of a train. Should the mechanism fail to lift the screen the engine will tear through it like a circus performer through a paper

Think the Earth Is Hollow. According to a queer belief in existence among the Icelanders, all waters which flow toward the north are drawn thitherward by a suction created by the oceans tumbling downward through the hollow which, they firmly believe, penetrates our globe from pole to pole. Their authority for this curious belief is the "Utama Saga," a semisacred work, written early in the fourteenth century.
