SATURDAY EVEN'G, AUG. 10, 1872.

NORTH WELLINGTON.

The carefully laid gerrymandering scheme of Sir John Macdonald has scarcely worked satisfactorily, for the indignation excited against him for his petty trickery has more than set off any advantage that might have been gained by swamping counties which had hitherto returned Reform members by adding Tory townships to them. North Wellington was one of the counties so attempted to be treated, but the tricky Sir John has been foiled, the Reform candidate, Mr. Higginbotham, securing his election by a majority of 70. This, with South Grey, makes a gain of two seats by the Reformers during the past two days, or, on a division, a gain of four votes. The ball is rolling bravely.

NORTH LANARK.

We understand that Mr. William Caldwell will be the standard bearer of Reform during the coming election for the Local House and will be opposed by Dr. Mostyn as the Tory candidate. Both gentlemen are well known in Kingston. The former is a graduate of Queen's College, Reeve of his Township and a gentleman of enterprise and public spirit, well qualified to represent the Reformers of North Lanark at Toronto. Dr. Mostyn is also a graduate of Queen's College and a very popular gentleman in the County, in which he has a large medical practice. After the late expression of the will of the people of the North Lanark in the election of Mr. Galbraith, and the reception of the Tory candidate, there is little question that Mr. Caldwell, if chosen as the Reform nominee, will carry the Riding by a large majority.

MR. MACKENZIE'S SPEECH AT PICTON.

Owing to our going to press, as usual on Saturdays, at one o'clock, we are unable to lay before our readers to-day a report of the Hon. Mr. Mackenzie's great speech at the Reform demonstration in Picton yesterday afternoon, but will do so in our next issue. The speech which occupied three and a half hours in delivery, was a very able effort and fully equalled the expectations of those who anticipated a rare intellectual treat in listening to an exposition of the public questions now dividing the country by the Leader of Her Majesty's opposition. Unlike his great opponent, avoiding intemperate language, saying harsh words of no man, dealing in no invective, but employing sober sense and reason and relying on argument to carry conviction to the minds of his hearers, Mr. Mackenzie's oration was in refreshing contrast to the windy harangues with which Sir John is wont to bore the crowds assembled in expectation of hearing an effort worthy of a so-called statesman.

Mr. Mackenzie, we are glad to observe is in the enjoyment of excellent health and notwithstanding the hard work he has gone through of late, speaks with a freshness and force that are surprising. To-day he addresses, we understand, a Stratford audience at three o'clock, and another at Brantford at half-past eight. Truly this is working, with a vengeance scarcely excelled by Brougham when he canvassed Yorkshire.

FREE TRADE AND REFORM.

There are not a few Canadians who believe that the Tory Party are favorable to Protection, and that the accession of the Reformers to office would be the prelude to an introduction of an absolute free trade policy. To all such we commend the perusal of the following extracts from the Hamilton speech of Sir John and the London speech of Mr. Mackenzie. Referring to Protection the Premier said that he "had no hesitation in saying that he was in favour of incidental protection to home industry. It was absolutely necessary, in consequence of the great works now in progress, of the railways and local improvements that were contemplated, the revenue of the country should be increased, and that could best be done by customs' duties on articles imported into this country. The policy of the Dominion Government is to give incidental protection to home industry."

Referring to a similar declaration on the point of Sir Francis Hincks, the Leader of the Opposition said at London,

"Sir Francis Hincks says he is in favor of "incidental" protection. He might as well say he is in favor of sun-light in daytime. Mr. McKenzie showed that it is a general rule in raising revenue to meet the expenses of Government, to impose a tax upon the introduction of manufactured goods, and admit raw material required by our manufacturers free. That was incidental protection, and no one opposed."

Let our readers compare and reflect upon these statements and they will find that the Reformers are not the absolute free traders which their enemies endeavor to make them out, but are in favor of a revenue tariff such as is now in force, or a higher one if the exigencies of the country should in future point out its necessity, and that Tory squints at Protection are mere election bosh, Sir John and Sir Francis being as pronounced Free Traders as Mr. Mackenzie or Mr. Holton.

It 1872 can produce warmer days than the last two they will be roasters.

THE REFORM EXCURSION

A PLEASANT TRIP.

THE REFORM DEMONSTRATION AT PICTON.

The excursion of Reformers to Picton yesterday was one of the most successful and pleasurable gatherings which we have had the pleasure of attending. Notwithstanding the very short notice given, and the consequent hurry in making the preparations, nothing occurred to mar the pleasures of the trip. It was only on Thursday, at 3 o'clock, that Mr. Carruthers learned that the Hon. Mr. Mackenzie was to address a Picton audience yesterday, and he determined to invite his friends and supporters to accompany him to Picton to join in the Reform demonstration there. Any doubts that the excursion would fail to be a success, for these reasons, were set at rest by the gathering of a large crowd of citizens with their wives and daughters on Carruthers' wharf ready to embark on the Watertown, which had been chartered by Mr. Carruthers at his own expense to convey his friends to Picton. The ladies, strongly as they mustered, would have appeared in larger force had it not been understood that the invitation did not extend to them—a determination altered late on the previous evening. Many who could not get out of the city appeared on the dock and wished the lucky ones all manner of pleasant experiences on the trip. About 11 o'clock the steamer with about four hundred aboard, left the dock, and during her passage along the wharves was greeted with hearty cheers from the mechanics who were unable to participate in the holiday, but were none the less pleased to see so many gathered to do honor to the standard-bearer of Reform in Kingston. At the shipyard the Watertown was saluted by running up with hearty cheers the Union Jack and other flags. The day, though warm on land, was exceedingly pleasant on the water, the cool breeze tempering the sun's rays. The beautiful scenery of the Bay route was thoroughly enjoyed by the company gathered under the deck awning, protected from the sun's heat. The boat was but well on its way when dancing was commenced and kept up with spirit to the music of an excellent band until dinner was announced, which the fresh, pure breezes of the Bay put the excursionists in excellent trim for doing justice to. After this pleasing part of the day's programme was concluded, dancing was resumed by the younger portion of the gathering until the ancient village of Bath was sighted. Here the steamer stopped, and was reinforced by many of Bath's folk, who eagerly availed themselves of the opportunity to listen to a speech from Mr. Mackenzie. These on board the steamer headed for Picton, at which place she arrived at 4 p.m. Headed by the brass band which accompanied the excursion, the party proceeded to the Grove, in which Mr. Mackenzie was to address the people of Prince Edward. Arrived there, where Mr. Mackenzie had already been speaking for a few minutes, Mr. Carruthers and some of his friends were, amid enthusiastic demonstrations o hearty welcome, conducted to the platform, on which besides the speaker of the day we observed Colonel Walter Ross, ex-M.P., for Prince Edward, Mr. Gideon Striker, Mr. Spragge and Mr. W. H. R. Allison, the last named gentleman occupying the chair. After referring in felicitous terms to the gallant fight made by Mr. Carruthers, and the moral victory gained in what was hitherto considered the stronghold of Toryism, Mr. Mackenzie resumed his speech, which occupied three hours and a half in delivery. In calm, forcible and statesmanlike language he preferred his indictment against Sir John's government, and substantiated his charges with proof so damnatory and convincing that made Sir John's recent rambling egotistical speech in Picton of little weight. Cheer after cheer greeted the speaker as he passed from point to point pinning charges on Sir John which, supported by the clearest documentary proof, could not be shaken off, and when Mr. Mackenzie sat down long continued applause rewarded him for the rich intellectual treat he had given the yeomen of Prince Edward.

Addresses were delivered subsequently by Mr. Robinson, M.P.P., Mr. B. M. Britton, Mr. Carruthers and Col. Ross, all of whom were enthusiastically received and applauded. The gathering was a very very large one, not less than two thousand people having left their harvest fields at great personal sacrifice to listen to one who is so justly respected and admired as Mr. Mackenzie. The gathering in its strength and enthusiasm foreshadowed the success which will inevitably attend Col. Ross's candidature. After cheers were were given for the Queen, for Mr. Mackenzie, for Mr. Carruthers, Mr. Robinson, Col. Ross and the Kingston party the excursionists returned to the steamer when, all aboard, it left for Kingston shortly after eight o'clock. Tea was in readiness, which was eagerly partaken of, as Mr. Mackenzie seemed to have sharpened the appetites as well as the wits of the excursionists. Tea over, dancing was commenced on the upper deck. The evening was a delightful one. The water was as smooth as glass and the moon lit her lamp in honor of the occasion. Every one on board enjoyed themselves to the top of their bent, and as home was neared pronounced the excursion one of the most enjoyable affairs known to Kingstonians, and reflected great credit upon Mr. Carruthers, who with boundless hospitality, spared no expense in making his guests feel at home and with Mrs. Carruthers spared no trouble in endeavoring to make the affair a perfect success. When the Bath people parted company with their Kingston friends. Dr. Ashton conveyed to Mr. Carruthers their thanks for the rare enjoyment which the excursion had afforded them. As Kingston lights came in sight Mr. Harty tendered to Mr. Carruthers, in a few well chosen sentences, the warm thanks of the Reformers of Kingston for the pleasure which, by his liberal thoughtfulness, they had that day enjoyed. He characterized the trip as a perfect success in every respect, and contrasted it with one to Picton a short time ago, which was given out as free, but, when the passengers were snared on board, they found that the the trip and meals had to be paid for. Yesterday was a free excursion in every sense, and did not cost an excursionist one farthing, as Mr. Carruthers liberally assumed the burden and treated his guests with gentlemanly hospitality. Mr. Harty proposed three cheers for Mr. and Mrs. Carruthers, and family, and we need hardly add that they were given in true British fashion, and were acknowledged by Mr. Carruthers, who expressed the gratification which he had in the company of his friends that day. Three cheers were given for the Queen and Mr. Robinson, and then the party parted at Kinghorn's wharf. Forming in line, and headed by the band playing stirring airs, escorted Mr. and Mrs. Carruthers to their residence in Earl Street, where cheer after cheer was given them.

At 2 a.m. the party dispersed to their homes well pleased with their holiday making. And thus ended the most enjoyable and successful gathering ever met in Kingston, not a single incident having occurred to throw a cloud on the day's pleasuring.

FIRE ALARMS.

TWO NARROW ESCAPES—LITTLE INJURY—INCENDIARISM.

Yesterday afternoon the roof of the British American Hotel caught a fire from a spark, and for a time there was danger of a conflagration. But some gentlemen at hand quickly scaled the ladders and passed water up to the roof, until they had quenched the last sign of fire. As amateur firemen they were a success, and saved a fine block of buildings.

Last night about twelve o'clock the roof of the house on Gore Street, occupied by the well known Mrs. Lowry, was also discovered in flames; a cabman was driving past at the time, and he galloped his horses to the Police Station, where the alarm was given on the City Bell; and then to No. 1 Engine Station. The engine was dragged up to the scene, arriving within five minutes of the first alarm. Already, though, was the fire put out by the neighbors, by prompt and energetic actions and a serious conflagration spared. The fire was undoubtedly the act of an incendiary, like two or three preceding ones this year. Mrs. Lowry was away from home, attending the Reform Excursion, and the design was undoubtedly to deprive her of her home and property. Mr. Jas. McKay's residence near by would have been burned had the fire gained headway. He also was absent at the Excursion, and doubtless this fact was known too. Men are accustomed to prowl around in that quarter. They had better be cautious in future in their visits.

TORONTO

NOMINATION—DISGRACEFUL OUTRAGE

TORONTO, 9th.—The nomination of candidates for East Toronto took place at one o'clock to-day, before the City Hall. James Crowther was the returning officer. There was a large attendance of electors. Mr. Beaty was nominated by Ald. Coatsworth, seconded by James Foster; Mr. O'Donohoe, by S. J. James, seconded by Thos. Gordon; Wm. McDougall, Kenneth McKenzie, A. H. Dymond, editor of the Globe, and Andrew Scott were nominated for the purpose of speaking. The candidates are now speaking.

Sir John A. Macdonald is stopping at the Queen's Hotel.

On Wednesday evening between 9 and and 10 o'clock while a young man and woman were quietly sitting on a door step on the upper end of Sherbourn street, one of a gang of rowdies who infest the neighborhood, advanced towards the couple and struck the man a blow on the head, knocking him senseless. The ruffians then made an outrageous assault upon the young lady, but her screams aroused the neighbors and they came to her assistance. The scoundrels then ran away and managed to escape capture.

FROM QUEBEC

THE RIOTS—FEELING KEPT UP—HEAVY STORM.

QUEBEC, Aug 9.—The Governor-General arrived last night on the steamer Union, and took up his quarters in the Citadel.

The elections have left a bad crop of disorder behind them. Last night an attempt was made from St. Rochs to mob the Upper Town Club House. The attacking crowd, about 200 strong, were beaten back by a few gentlemen.

The jury on Gaudle's case returned a verdict at 9 o'clock last night of "wilful murder by Jean Lord and others unknown." The jury call for a strict Government investigation.

Diamond Harbor people were prepared for an attack from St. Rochs last night. Cannon were planted to sweep the streets. A heavy rain and lightning storm alone prevented a bloody collision.

The withdrawal of the British regular troops from here is now being recognized as a desertion of a British Ministry to the necessary duty of protection to civil authorities.

A heavy thunder storm prevailed last night. A schooner was struck by the lightning and damaged. The church of St. Michael was also struck and burned to the ground. The S. S. Vicksburg, from London, went ashore on Basque Island during the storm. Tug-boats have been sent to her assistance.

About midnight a large party of the residents of Diamond harbor came down to the Chronicle office and gave three cheers for the Chronicle, Mr. Foote, and the gentlemen of the staff—quite a salute was fired. The party after paying these compliments went back to their homes, singing lively choruses.

The Bedford Murder.

The Perth Courier gives us further particulars of the crime in the Township of Bedford, for which James Scott lies in gaol here, awaiting his trial. After the awful deed—the murder of the father—had been accomplished, the now crazed man attacked a sister present, with the utmost ferocity, and would certainly have killed her on the spot, had she not escaped him and fled to the woods, where she managed to elude his pursuit. As it was she barely got off with her life, having, in the fearful struggle, received very severe injuries, among others a broken arm. She then gave the alarm to the neighbors, four strong men coming to the rescue of the remainder of the family, all of whom the maniac had determined to kill. It required the strength of four men to conquer and bind the man. After he was rendered harmless, he plead in the most beseeching tones that he should be unloosed that he might kill the remaining members of the family. On searching him a butcher's knife and a razor were found secreted on his person, thus proving that he meditated murderous deeds before he made the attacks above related. When the particulars of these awful crimes became known among the neighbors, a shudder of horror ran through the whole settlement.

MR. HENRY ABBOTT, of Brockville, is still lying very ill.

The Contest in Addington.

So far, everything has progressed as favorably for Mr. Shibley, in the County of Addington, as could well be desired. All the rear townships especially have been canvassed, in every one of which an almost unanimous vote will be polled for Mr. Shibley. Sheffield, Loughborough and Portland, will furnish a large majority, and in Camden and Newburgh Mr. Lapum will have to be on the qui vive, if he obtains a very small majority vote over his more popular opponent. From what source Mr. Lapum is to obtain a sufficient support to carry his election, is at present unknown. * * Mr. Shibley is head and shoulders in advance of Mr. Lapum in all the requisites necessary to make a successful representative in Parliament. We are therefore expressing our honest convictions, and what we know to be for the best interest of the people of Addington, when we ask them to give their unanimous support to Mr. Shibley.—Napanee Beaver.

A Victim of Dime Novels.

Augustus C. Tart, a boy, ran away from New York, May 28, and after making a trip to St. Louis, came to Pittsburg upon a boat, and afterwards made several trips on the river. For some months past he had been working in Temperanceville, and rather "down" in a financial way, but still light-hearted. His mother ascertained that he was here, wrote that she was nearly distracted by his running off, and asked the Chief of Police to have him sent back. Seth Wilmot found the lad last week, who seemed very intelligent, and took him in custody until his parents send on a person to take him back to Brooklyn. His parents are in good circumstances, and, according to the lad's own statement, he was influenced to run away simply through the excitement of dime novel reading and ambition to figure as a hero in travelling through the West.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

On an Old Harpsichord.

Its varnish cracked, its paintings scarred,
Its ivory gilding sadly marred,
And tarried to dingy umber,
It stands forlorn, a waif or stray
Of glories long since passed away,
An ancient piece of lumber.

What mora! And yet how rich it is,
This harpsichord, in memories
And quaint associations.
Recalling that far time, when still
High birth and title had their will,
And kings were more than nations.

When gallants were the true grand air—
And wigs, by half a morning's care
Made wondrous smooth and sheeny
And, while the perfumed pincs they took,
Lisped languid rhapsodies on Gluck,
Or, maybe, on Piccini.

I touch the keys—the startled chord
Can scarce a weak respond afford
That wake a low vibration
Among the slackened, palsied strings
A feeble spell, and yet it brings
A magic transformation.

An antique aspect veils the place,
A weird, oppressive, ghostly grace
That almost makes one tremble
A mystic light pervades the air,
Faint footfalls gather on the stair—
The belles and beaux assemble.

The belles and beaux! Alas, the ghosts!
Thin shadows of once reigning toasts,
And heroes of the duel.
They smile, they chatter, they parade,
They rustle in superb brocade,
They shine with many a jewel.

They flirt their fans with pretty airs,
They tap their precious tabbatieres,
They smooth their ruffles grandly;
While here and there an exquisite
Let fall his studied stroke of wit,
And waits for plaudits blandly.

The harpsichord is quav'ring soon
A minute's slow triplet tune,
A courtly powdered couple,
All formal graces, bend and slide,
With court'sies marvellously wide,
And bows politely supple.

The tune is changed, with graceful ease,
Fair spirit-fingers sweep the keys,
A spirit voice is trilling;
The passionate Che foro strain
Comes, like a half-heard cry of pain
From some far distant thrilling.

The lights go out; the voices die;
Among the strings strange tremors fly,
That slowly sink to slumber;
The harpsichord remains alone,
A monument of glories done,
An ancient piece of lumber.

BETTS'S CAPSULE PATENTS!

TO PREVENT INFRINGEMENTS, notice is hereby given, that Betts's name is on every Capsule he makes for the principal Merchants in England and France, thus enabling vendor, purchaser, and consumer not only to identify the genuineness of the Capsule, but likewise the contents of the vessel to which it is applied.

The LORD CHANCELLOR, in his judgment, said that the Capsules are not used merely for the purpose of the ornament, but that they are serviceable in protecting the wine from injury, and insuring its genuineness.
