TOWN AND COUNTRY.

SATURDAY EVEN'G, AUG. 31, 1872.

It is raining again. The summer has vanished or is Fall-ing away in other words.

THE Prescott Club talk of coming to Kingston to play in September.

NO PAPER.—Monday being a general holiday, the BRITISH WHIG will not be published again till Tuesday.

WANTED to know, the whereabouts of the English Cricketers.

PRACTICAL JOKE.—The late outrage on a couple of gentlemen in Pittsburg has been repeated on the persons of two Gananoque gentlemen. Shame! shame!

EGGS-TRAORDINARY.—Mr. H. C. Dodge, of Gananoque, shows eight eggs layed by a spring chicken. The eggs are apparently perfect in every way, but very small. Precious youngster!

GRANNY, we suppose, won't believe yet that Reil is canvassing in Manitoba. It would like to mislead people further, but the evidences are now too plain against her. What does the old lady think of her late unblushing falsehoods in this matter?

LARGE MARKET.—To-day, notwithstanding the bad weather, the market was a very large one, the square and surroundings being filled. There should be no complaint of high prices after this. The crops have been very excellent, it is quite evident.

POLICE COURT, Saturday.—Michael Ryan and Elizabeth Ryan, keeping a disorderly house on Ontario street, west end, and Matilda Oliphant, a frequenter, were discharged on promise to pay costs and vamoose the ranche. John Harris settled the little assault case brought on by Mr. James Warrington.

ARRIVAL.—A staff of forty Royal Engineers, and three officers, are expected to arrive at Quebec to-day. They will at once proceed with Captain Cameron early next week to their work, surveying the boundary line between Canada and the United States, from the head of Lake Superior.

NOVEMBER.—We meant no harm, the other day, when we wrote about the heat although we didn't like it, but the Clerk of the Weather has gone and got mad and changed the season from August to November, from linen dusters to overcoats and mits. We suppose there is nothing for it but to shiver and bear it, but yet they call this a free country.

COOL AT LAST.—Yesterday, an agreeable and yet disagreeable change took place in the weather after the previous night's storm. Sleepers who had turned in for the night with nothing but a single sheet over them were glad, when they woke up, to put on an additional covering. There was a fluttering of window-shades such as is seldom heard, and windows were lowered to keep out the wind and the cold. A brisk trade was done in gloves and fall hats. It was chilly in fact. People who had not partaken of any solid food at breakfast since the 1st of July, rallied their flagging appetites, and went in for sirloin steaks and such like delicate viands with a vigor that was encouraging to behold. Everything, animate and inanimate, appeared to feel a sense of the change that had so long been looked for, but it is questionable whether if the warm weather was so very oppressive, the cold of yesterday and last night was not as comfortless.

SINGULAR CALCULATION CONCERNING FLIES.—A curious calculation has been made lately by a savant well known in Paris for his peculiar antipathy to the fly. He collected 3,000 flies in a room measuring two cubic metres. On the floor he spread a pounded loaf of sugar. At the end of four days he went to investigate the result of his experiment. There remained a teaspoonful of sugar. This statistician, therefore, calculates that, sugar being at the rate of thirteen cents a pound, a fly costs the country twenty cents from its birth to its demise, that is, if fed on loaf sugar.

How A Gambler Subscribed For A Church.

The Evangelist says: "The following is related of the Rev. W. K. Beggs, whose death is just announced. Soon after Mr. Beggs arrived at Wichita, Kansas, and while working hard to raise sufficient means to include a small house of worship, he put up at the only hotel in the place. This was a long, low structure, made of cottonwood logs planted in the ground, with the spaces plastered with mud, and covered with a sod roof—a style of architecture not unfrequently encountered in that portion of Kansas at the present time.

One night while sleeping on the floor he was awakened by a gambler coming in at a late hour and searching in the darkness for a place in which to lie down. At length finding a place he around an associate with these words: 'Bill, Bill (I say, I have had good luck to-night; I have won $800 from a man, and I know another that has got $200, and I believe I can win that.' The man had hardly uttered the words before he heard these words from another part of the room: 'Friend, we are trying to build a church in this place, and would like to have you give us a helping hand.' 'Well,' replied the gambler, 'I will give you $25 to build your church. To-morrow morning when we are at breakfast you just mention the matter and I'll make it all right.'

The next morning, when all were assembled, Mr. Beggs spoke in his usual quiet way, at the same time looking in the faces of those sitting around the table. 'I believe a gentleman last night, said he would give twenty-five dollars towards building a church in this place.' No sooner had he spoken than he observed a man near by place his hand in his pocket, count out some money, and hand it over to him, which proved to be the sum he had promised."

Civilization in Japan

Items of news from Japan continue to be of much interest. The people having woke up to the fact that they were behind their neighbors are pursuing with energy the task of remodelling their institutions. A railway from the coast to Shinagawa, in the interior, has just been opened, and and the Japanese conductors, brakesmen and expressmen have adopted the western style of cap and uniform. The question of opening up the whole of Japan to foreign travellers has been discussed, and privilege will be given to any foreigner to travel where he pleases if he has the consular passport. The education department has just selected 6,480 youths from every province of Japan, to be educated by foreign teachers to become teachers in the government schools. Private schools are being established in the province of Mikawa without the assistance of the government, where foreign languages as well, Japanese branches of instruction will be taught. The Mikado has just been making a royal progress through his dominions. He was attired in European dress, that of cavalry general, and rode on horseback. His gentlemen-in-waiting were in black dress suits with any amount of gold lacing. Wherever he went he lodged in houses furnished and conducted after Western style. The most encouraging feature in Japanese improvement is the desire to mould their laws so that their government may be conducted on the most liberal principles. Trials by jury and processes of courts are not far off.

Fenian Convention.

The Fenian Brotherhood held its eleventh annual convention at Military Hall, No. 193 Bowery, New York city, during the past week. Its sessions were commenced on Tuesday and its labors were concluded at a late hour on Saturday night. A scrutiny on finance, military affairs and home organization. The greater part of Friday and all of Saturday was devoted to the reception of the report of the committee on the present condition and future prospects of the Fenian Brotherhood, and to the adoption of measures for its future direction and development. During the session of Saturday, a committee was appointed for nominating the governing body of the Fenian Brotherhood for the coming year. The committee presented the names of gentlemen for officers, and they were unanimously elected. The name of Col. John O'Mahony of New York, the original head-centre of the brotherhood, was presented for Chief Secretary and he was elected by acclamation by his old fellow workers amid a scene of intense enthusiasm.

Lawlessness in Berlin.

The accounts received on all hands from Berlin point to a terrible state of disorganization in the capital of Germany. Rents have doubled, and whenever a family is evicted the populace take sides with it, attack the police, and very often win the battle. As it is the official theory that the soldiers must always win if called out, at any loss of life, and as a Berlin mob is composed of soldiers who do not like to fly, the Government is most reluctant to appeal to the military, and the police are often very hardly treated. Crime is rapidly on the increase. Berlin is full of swashbucklers who get into wilful quarrels with civilians; and the sanitary condition of the city is the worst in Europe. There is no scientific drainage whatever, the death rate is double that of London, and if the cholera effects a lodgment it may become endemic.

SEVERE PUNISHMENTS.—A Paducah, K., Judge has made himself notorious by ordering women, convicted of disorder or drunkenness, to be put in the chain-gang, side by side with masculine criminals, and set to work in the streets. It is claimed that this piece of brutality has been of service in scaring offenders into righteousness. Very likely it will act in that way for a little while, but it will soon get to be an old story; and the women, thus exposed to public scorn, will sink to lower depths of degradation. This policy of frightening criminals is a vain one. The unimaginable terrors of hell, as depicted in the orthodox creeds, have proved powerless to evangelize even nominally Christian nations.

Blackburn and Carlisle, have witnessed municipal elections under the new Ballot Act. At the first-named place the proceedings were remarkable for their orderliness and sobriety—an experience by the way, also realized, in the case of another somewhat unruly constituency at Bathgate, in Scotland. Politics mingled with the contest, and out of a thousand voters the Conservative candidate for municipal honors won by only seventeen. At Carlisle the proceeding were tranquil even to tameness; eight voters came under the illiterate clause, permitting the returning officer to fill up the papers and eight papers were rejected for informality.

SUDDEN DEATH.—Mr. Asa Foster, one of the oldest residents of the Township of Sophiasburgh, died very suddenly at the residance of his son, on Monday last. All the members of the family were temporarily absent, and left him sitting in his chair, in his usual state of health; but on their return—being absent only a few moments—he was quite dead. This sudden visitation of death, it is presumed, was caused by heart disease. Deceased was 73 years of age.—Picton Gazette.

DEAR CHARLES.—This note, picked up in a path at Chatham, was circulated the other day:

DARLING.—Plank walk, farther end, ten Wednesday evening. Don't fail.

Your devotee, CHARLES.

Some thirty or forty unsympathetic wicked ones gathered to the rendezvous, and saw a sable youth join a sable damsel and promenade with her. They gave three cheers for Charles.

Reading Speeches.

In the House of Commons the practice of reading speeches, which has been greatly on the increase of late, received a check near the end of the late session of Parliament, the Speaker ruling that reading a speech from manuscript was contrary to the rules of the House. Mr. John Martin, an Irish member, was the victim selected to receive the reproof of the Speaker, although many other members have followed the same practice for several sessions past. It is urged by those holding the Speaker's views that if the custom had been allowed to go unchecked the debates in the House of Commons would have entirely changed in their character, and that, instead of discussions in which arguments are met with counter-arguments on the spot, the proceedings would have grown into the form of long-winded essays or disquisitions more suited to the meetings of a mutual improvement society than the deliberations of a representative assembly.

A FINANCIAL PHILOSOPHER.—On one occasion a sma' laird was waited on by a neighbor to request his name as an accommodation to a bit bill for £20, at three months, which led to the following characteristic colloquy: "Na, na, I canna do that." "Why for no, laird? ye hae done the sane thing for others." "Aye, aye, Tammas, but there's wheels within wheels ye ken nae thing about; I canna do't." "It's a sma' again to refuse me, laird!" "Weel, ye see Tammas, if I was to put my name till't ye wad get the siller frae the bank, and when the time cum round ye wadna be ready, and I wad hae to pay't, an then you and me wud quarrel; sae we may just as well quarrel noo as lang as the siller's in my pouch."

DARING ESCAPE.—A soldier named Irvine, belonging to the 93rd Highlanders, made a daring escape from Edinburgh Castle. He had been sentenced to fifty-six days imprisonment in Greenlaw prison for desertion, and was placed in the main guardhouse of the castle, pending his removal. As the guard was being changed Irvine, who was in a small court at the back of the guardhouse overlooking West Prince-street Garden, got upon the parapet, leaped to the top of a ledge covered with grass about thirty feet below, and alighting apparently unhurt, he proceeded to scramble down the rocks, was soon lost sight of among the bushwood and trees, and managed to get clear off.
