TOWN AND COUNTRY.

THURSDAY EVEN'G, FEB. 27, 1873.

THE GHOST.—Professor Pepper apologized for not being able to present it at Belleville. His lectures in that town were well attended.

A CHARACTER WORTH SOMETHING.—At Montreal an action to recover $5,000 damages has been instituted by Mr. Fred. Cushing against the Directors of the Victoria Skating Club, for alleged illegal suspension from the Rink.

THE ABINGER TRAGEDY.—And now the Intelligencer comes forward with the information "from the best authority that the reported murder and lynching in one of the Hon. James Skead's shanties, in the township of Abinger, is a canard of the most barefaced description."

DON'T FORGET Prison Friends.—Mason, the whiskey detective, lately released from the Penitentiary here, is circulating a petition, at Toronto, to secure the release of convict Caldwell from the Penitentiary. He is the party who killed Brown, at Riddell's tavern, some time ago.

HOUSES WANTED.—We have at the BRITISH WHIG office the applications of several persons for houses in the city. We shall be glad if owners having them either to sell or to rent will leave their addresses—and they may find it of advantage to do so.

LENTEN SERVICES.—To-morrow (Friday) evening, the opening service of a Lenten season will be held in St. James' Church, at 7.30 p.m. The 5th Commandment will form the subject of the sermon. It is hoped that many will accept the invitation which has been extended to the public.

ORANGE FUNERAL.—This afternoon Bro. Kelley, who met such an untimely death at Tawas City, Michigan, was interred to-day from his father's residence, York street, with honors by his brethren of L.O.L. No. 577 and of the Prentice Boys Lodge. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather, a large number of brethren from the other city lodges also attended. The body was conveyed to Cataraqui Cemetery.

LENT.—This abstentious season continues for forty days, terminating on Holy Saturday, April 12. The rules respecting fasting and abstaining, as laid down by the Roman Catholic church, are as usual. Every day in Lent, except Sunday, is a fast day, that is, but one meal allowed, and that at noon, with a small collation in the evening. The use of flesh meat is allowed once a day on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays. The first four days, and the whole of the last week are days of fast and abstinence. Exceptions are made to some of the above rules in some cases, such as excessive hard work, serious illness, or otherwise, as are set within the regulations.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE, March.—A good number. Among the more instructive articles are: Our Debt to Cadmus, an essay on discoveries, Earth and Air, a paper on atmospheric and electrical phenomena, Life on Board a Man of War; Along the Elbe, all with copious illustrations; and Constitutional Limitations, on an enquiry into the relations of the state and national constitutions of the United States. Besides these there are instalments of serial stories by Miss Thackeray and Charles Reade and Wilkie Collins, and many other items of much interest.

THE ORANGE SOCIAL.—Last evening L. O.L. No. 6 capped the climax. The last social of the season has been the best, both in attendance and pleasure. The Victoria Music Hall was filled to repletion, though it was Ash-Wednesday evening. Those who attended had an excuse for impiety in that the object of the entertainment was a benevolent one. The chair was filled by Bro. Marshall, W.M. No. 6, who opened the social with a short address, after which tea was served, and enjoyed accordingly. Addresses were afterwards delivered by Bros. C. Livingston, C.M., Thos. McMahon, D.M., J. McIntyre, and George Brown, P.C.M., all of which were well appreciated, as they deserved to be. Songs were received from Bros. Cuddiford and Robbs, and Messrs. Shea and Hayward, all worthy of good praise. A Reading by Mr. William Perry, which pleased every one, and an artistic piano solo from Mr. Charles Mee made up a programme rarely excelled in its class. After the Social, at the invitation of the Master, about 100 couples remained for a ball, and tripped it till nearly 5 a.m., to the pleasantest shuffling of the light fantastic toe which it has been the privilege of dancers to witness this season. As a success the Social was a success.

There is one aspect of the vexed question, whether we ought to be thankful or sorry for the late excessive rainfall, which appears not to have struck anybody. The people who have been "saving up for a rainy day"—is it not about time they put their money into circulation again!—Judy.

The London Press.

According to the London Directors for 1873, there are in that city 282 newspapers, 853 magazines and serial publications, 928 newsvenders, 124 advertisement agents, 830 booksellers, 377 publishers, 1,030 marters printers, 27 type founders, and 27 stereotypes. There are 81 copper-plate engraver, 87 music printers, 63 map makers and map sellers, 322 wholesale stationers, 1,469 retail stationers, and 10,000 bookbinders, 81 lithographers, and 128 wood engravers. The journeymen working for the employers in the above trades are not given, but the number must be very large.

LION AND LAMB.—The time has not yet come when the lion can lie down by the lamb with perfect safety to the wooled youngling, nor have men been content to shape the sword and spear into anything more nearly resembling an agricultural implement than the breech-loading musket and rifled cannon wherewith they 'descend to the harvest of death.' And yet we find one fact which is encouraging and significant. A number of iron-clad ships were sunk during the seige of Charleston, S.C., during the recent unpleasantness, and these have been raised and the iron converted into railway bars.

A WHOLE FAMILY BURNED TO DEATH.—A terrible calamity took place the other day in Lichfield, England. Fire broke out in the premises of a Mr. Corfield, a watchmaker. The house was gutted, and under the mistaken impression that the inmates had effected their escape no effort was made by the firemen to save them. After the the searchers were horrified to find amongst the ruins the dead bodies of seven persons. Mr. Corfield, his wife, Mrs. Corfield, his mother, and four children, the oldest of whom was six years of age and the youngest one month. From the appearance of the bodies it was evident that the unfortunate victims had made frantic efforts to leave the building, but this was unpossible, as the stair was on fire, and there was no back way out.

THE STOKES' CASE.—Nothing will be done with respect to Stokes for months to come. It is said that new and important evidence in favor of the latter has been discovered. A person has returned to New York, and discovered the woman who picked up the pistol alleged to have belonged to Fisk upon the landing of the ladies' entrance at the Grand Central Hotel. It is said Judge Davis was aware of this, and other important facts when he granted a stay of execution. Counsel for Stokes claim that there is no doubt that a new trial will be granted, and are very hopeful of an ultimate acquittal of their client. Many persons have always entertained a doubt whether Fisk did not really draw a pistol on Stokes.—Citizen.

THE NEAPOLITAN BABY FARMERS.—Rose Farro and Margarite Coraldi, the baby farmers of Naples, who perpetrated atrocious murders of infants committed to their care, have expiated their crimes on the block. Farro made a confession of her crimes of the most heart-quaking nature, and the subsequent avowals of Margarite Coraldi were no less terrible. Coraldi goes even so far as to state that it was she who conceived the fiendish design of poisoning the infants or starving them to death, and despatching the little corpses beneath the tiles of the floors, the earth of the cellar, or within the walling of the very rooms in which they sat, played music, sang, eat and slept. The removal of the papering of these walls has since revealed the ghastly truth. After a hasty trial the crimnals were condemned to be beheaded.

THE STORY OF A VACANT HOUSE.—There is near the Boston & Lowell Railroad, in Somerville, a handsome brick house, just discernible from the cars as they enter a cut on the road-bed, which has a romantic history. It was built by a rising young lawyer of Boston, who was engaged to be married. He had fully furnished the house, in anticipation of soon making it his home, with his young wife, when the engagement was broken off, for reasons which, if they could be related, would greatly add to the romance of the story. The disappointed lover shut up his new house, just as it was, declaring it should not be opened as long as the would-have-been bride should live. That was nearly twenty years ago; and the furnished but untenanted house still stands closed, just as it was prepared to welcome its expected mistress.

MR. FROUDE.—The Cincinnati Commercial says that Mr. Froude, who returned home under much anxiety for the health of his daughter, Miss Rose Froude, has now the satisfaction of knowing that she may recover, and has returned from Ramsgate, where he at first went, to mingle again with his friends. He expresses the greatest delight in his recent visit to America, and has a hundred charming anecdotes and experiences with which he sets "the table in a roar." He says—some what to the surprise of many a listener—that he likes the Americans far better than he expected when he went, and that he did not meet a single vulgar person in the country. He uses "vulgar" in the sense it bears in England generally—that of snobbery and affectation.
