THE STRANGER.
(A PARODY.)
Once upon a cold and dreary afternoon, as sad and weary,
I was waiting for the office clock to strike the hour of four,
As I there sat, nearly napping, suddenly there came a tapping,
As of some one loudly rapping, rapping at my office door,
"'Tis the messenger," I muttered, "rapping at my office door;
Only this and nothing more."

Ah! distinctly I remember, it was in the bleak December,
And those Bills, of last September twelve-month, had begun to pour
By the dozen in upon me, and the duns began to dun me,
Dun me as a poor unhappy wretch had ne'er ben dunned before,
Surely, though they might have known 'twas useless 'cause they'd tried before
Useless now and evermore.

So I sat and much I wondered, who it was who stood and thundered,
(For this time there came an awful pounding at my office door.)
When the door turned on its hinges, and with many bitter twinges
Of my conscience, there I saw a man I'd often seen before,
Bill in hand—my heart grew faint, and then a wicked oath I swore,
Nameless here for evermore.

Presently my heart grew stronger, hesitating then no longer,
"Sir," said I, "I'm sorry, but your kind indulgence I implore;
Really I confess with sorrow I've no money, but to-morrow
If you call I'll try to borrow from my friends to pay the score,
If you'll only call to-morrow I'll most surely pay the score."
Quoth the stranger, 'Nevermore.'

"Very well," I answered, laughing, thinking that a little chaffing
Might, perhaps, assist in ridding me of this infernal bore,
"Glad I am to hear you say so, and I hope that you'll not pay so
Many visits to my office as you used to pay before;
Prithee leave me, then, and get you gone into your dirty store."
Quoth the stranger, 'Nevermore.'

"Creature," said I, "man or devil, if you can't learn to be civil,
Care not I what tradesman sends thee dunning to my office door.
Listen to me, then—by Jove, sir, if at once you do not move, sir,
Sure as there's a heaven above, sir, I will turn you from the door;
Leave me then, then, I say, this instant, leave me, sir—you see the door."
Quoth the stranger, 'Nevermore.'

Then I sat and sat divining, with my weary head reclining
On the cushion's leather lining, while I pondered o'er and o'er—
Thinking over every promise that can be extorted from us,
When a creditor or "bum" is waiting at one's office door;
"He'll soon go," at length, I muttered; "other duns have gone before."
Quoth the stranger, 'Nevermore.'

And the stranger still is waiting, while I'm sitting and debating
Whether to leave by the window or to bolt out through the door;
Vain are all my old excuses, and I don't know what the deuce is
To be done—old wiles and ruses now will serve, alas! no more;
There's the stern relentless stranger sitting as he sat before—
Perhaps to leave, oh! nevermore.

A SMART STEAMER.—The SS. "Chickamauga," which has been fitting up and repairing at New York, has left that port. A great deal of speculation has been indulged in regarding this vessel, as, though she is ostensibly bought by a Havana merchant, it is said to be no secret that she is to be turned over to the Spanish Government, in order to cruise upon Cuba, and look after filibustering expeditions and blockade-runners, a service for which her fast-sailing properties eminently fit her. She had no armament or warlike stores on board when she left New York. The "Chicamauga" is a twin-screw steamer, schooner rigged, 185 feet long, 25 feet beam, 15 feet depth of hold, and is of 600 tons burden. She has four double engines, two to each shaft, and four cylinders, 34 by 28 inch stroke. Her boilers, of which she has two, have each four furnaces. She was built in London in 1864, and launched under the name of the Edith. In her construction speed more than carrying capacity was regarded, and it is said that while engaged in running the blockade to the rebel ports, for which service she was probably built, the Edith frequently made thirteen knots an hour under 10 pounds of steam pressure. Subsequently she became a Confederate privateer, and had her name changed to the "Chickamauga," inflicting serious damage on U. S. shipping, as may be judged from claims made on her account against Britain for capture and destruction of five vessels, amounting to $183,070.

N. Y. CHARTER.—A bill giving New York City a new charter has passed the State Assembly and is now before the Senate. It strips the Mayor of power, removes Mr. Green from the Controllership, and would subject the city to the Custom House Ring, as corrupt as ever was Tammany. The better portion of the press, the Council of Political Reform, the Committee of Seventy, and good citizens generally, are working hard to prevent this restoration of the Ring tyranny. The New York Tribune's Albany special declares that the "Custom House managers have been forced to confess that they cannot get their charter through the Senate, and opines that Gov. Dix and Mayor Havemeyer will agree upon a plan for a charter that will be acceptable to the moderate portion of the Republican party not interested in the private schemes of the managers aforesaid."

The proceedings against Mr. C. E. Belle, the Agent of the Quebec Government at Montreal, are being taken up by the Yankee agents in the United Kingdom, and a handle made of them to damage this country. It is highly desirable that these proceedings should not drag their slow length along. If Mr. Belle is innocent, he should be promptly acquitted and the fact proclaimed. And, if he is guilty, equally prompt justice should be done. It is not simply a question of an individual, but of an important public interest.

A Very Candid Man.
The Sunday Herald (Indianapolis) relates the following: A rather good thing—we don't vouch for its truth, however—is told of a very estimable citizen in Bartholemew County, whose only fault is a tendency to tarry longer than is sanitary at the wine when it moveth itself aright. Notwithstanding this his infirmity, Joe is held in high esteem by his neighbors. One night, during a protracted meeting, Joe straggled into the church, a little drunker than anybody ever saw him before, and came to an anchor among a herd of unregenerate goats on the back seats. The heat of the room and the fumes of the liquor induced a gentle somnolence, half sleeping and half waking, during which he heard but heeded not the earnest words of the preacher. Finally, however, the inquiry, 'Where is the drunkard?' propounded in a louder tone, thoroughly aroused our fuddled friend, and he promptly replied in equally clear tones, 'Here I am.' The preacher was disconcerted. 'I was not alluding to you personally, Mr. H——,' he explained, 'the remark was general.' 'Yer 'pology's 'cepted,' cried Joe grandly, and the preacher continued. After a few moments he said, 'Where now is the hypocrite?' This again aroused Joe. 'There he is, over there!' he replied, pointing with his finger. 'Tom Peasely, why don't you answer when your name's called?' This was too much, and Joe was shaked out by a couple of deacons. As he went out he was heard to mutter—'I never go back on nothin', I don't. But there's that Tom Peasely; hain't he got cheek?'

Is health worth having? If it is protect it—it is a jewel as easily lost as virtue, and in many cases as difficult to recover. In this climate, and more particularly at this season of the year, people are very apt to take cold and suffer from sore throat, coughs, spitting of blood and pulmonary complaints generally, which if not checked immediately lead to serious consequences. The question arises—which is the quickest and most effectual remedy? Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers have been before the public for twenty years, and have always given perfect satisfaction, and invariably effect permanent cures when taken in season. Sold by all medicine dealers and country stores, at 25 cts. per box.

Wheeler's Elixir of Phosphates and Caltsaya.—"After having used your Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Caltsaya, for over two years in my daily practice, I must give it my unqualified approbation. During a practice of over twenty years I have used many scientifically prepared compounds, made to fulfil the same therapeutical indications as your Elixir, but none of them has proved with me as valuable as yours. To the medical profession and to the public I would especially commend it as the best remedy with which I am acquainted for the successful treatment of that large and constantly increasing class of over-worked and nerve-exhausted women.
"Yours truly,
