FORMER RINGWOOD MAN

Passes Away Very Suddenly While at His Daily Toil in Harvard Factory.

Harvard Herald: James H. Kemerling, manager of the Bowman Dairy company plant in this city, well known citizen and universally liked by all, died suddenly Monday morning while at his post of duty, heart disease causing his sudden demise. Mr. Kemerling had been troubled with a weak heart for some time, tho it did not deter him from attending to his customary work incident to looking after the management of the Bowman company's interest in the local milk plant.

Monday morning Mr. Kemerling ate his breakfast, read the morning newspaper, bade his wife and children good bye and left for his day's work at the milk plant, which he reached in his usual health, so far as members of the family or his associates knew, for he was a man who rarely ever complained of ill health. After reaching the factory he began to test cream that came in and while thus engaged said he experienced difficulty in breathing and the next minute fell in a faint to the floor, from which he was carried by employees in the plant to an adjoining room, where he died in less than five minutes.

Mr. Kemerling was one of the best known and most successful butter and cheese makers in northern Illinois. All his life from boyhood had been devoted to the trade and he found positive pleasure in following it. In addition to this he possessed executive ability of a high order, as well as unusual tact in handling men in his employ, every one of whom liked him and would do anything within their power to carry out his wishes. Another element he possessed, too, to a marked degree and that was his faculty of getting along with the patrons of the milk industry with which he was connected. In the face of the fiercest competition possible and entirely surrounded by a chain of strong milk condensing plants, Mr. Kemerling more than held his own and many patrons were obtained and held by virtue of his friendship and the confidence they had in him. He was, in fact, a distinct personal asset for the milk concern that employed them.

During the last year or two the competition waged the hardest, part of the time milk patrons uniting in an organization to obtain better prices for their product, but thru it all Mr. Kemerling was free from attack of ever doing anything that was out of the way. As one milk patron said on arriving at the Bowman plant Monday after he had passed away, "I brought my milk here because of the personal esteem I had for Mr. Kemerling, whom I knew to be honest and straightforward." This, in fact, was the verdict universally expressed among employees and patrons of the Bowman plant, where over thirty find employment now and over 100 farmers are daily patrons of the same concern. Among them all Mr. Kemerling was held in terms of highest esteem, all sharing a loss that seemed a personal one to them, for he was a likeable gentleman and one in whom implicit confidence could be placed.

Mr. Kemerling was but a few months more than forty-six years old. He was born at Colon, Mich., on Sept. 13, 1863, and came to McHenry county, Ill., about twenty-three years ago. He learned the butter and cheese making business, in which he was skilled and had few equals. He had been employed for eight years by the Oatman Creamery company and also by co-operative creamery concerns at Ringwood and Maple Park, Ill., and the last few years at the head of the Bowman Dairy company plant in this city. On Feb. 13, 1900, he was married at Maple Park, Ill., to Mrs. Mary Fay, by whom he is survived, and also by three daughters, one step-son and one step daughter, they being Hilda, wife of Ed. Olson of Peru, Ill.; Joy and Vallie Kemerling, Carlton Fay and Genevieve Fay, wife of Geo. Minshall of Genoa Junction, Wis. Mrs. Harriet Kemerling, mother of deceased, and one brother, Albert, are also living, the brother reaching here on Wednesday from his home at Denver, Colo., while the mother has made her home with her son in this city for some time.

ROUND LAKE CASE

In Court Ends by Principals Shaking Hands and Each Paying Costs.

[From Last Saturday's Waukegan Gazette.] One of the most peculiar cases ever called to the attention of local attorneys ended this morning when the two interested parties shook hands and each agreed to pay half the costs. There were several acts to the case, in which local justices were interested. Here are a few of them:

Act One—Case called before Justice Weiss, but taken to Justice Botsford on a change of venue. Case dismissed thru a failure of the complaining witness to be on hand when case was called.

Act Two—Defendant rearrested immediately and case called before Justice Weiss, being set for hearing yesterday. Change of venue taken to Justice Botsford and again dismissed.

Act Three—Defendant rearrested immediately and case called before Justice Murrie. Change of venue taken to Justice Weiss, where, upon the advice of attorneys, a settlement was effected.

The prologue to this interesting little drama took place some time ago, but the climax which preceded the first act took place a week ago at Round Lake. Here is the plot:

Ben Cossman and Frank Dow both own livery stables at Round Lake. For some reason there had been a feeling of rivalry for some time past. One night a week ago, when the moon hid its face behind a cloud, Dow is alleged to have gone to Cossman's house and called him out, it is said, on the pretext that he wished to hire a horse and buggy. The moment Cossman stepped out into the yard, Dow is alleged to have slipped over a few clean punches.

The next day he was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Cossman. Then followed the three acts. Orvis & Beaubien appeared for Dow, while State's Attorney Dady represented the prosecution. It was the states attorney who had Dow rearrested after the case had been dismissed by Justice Botsford. Then when the case was taken to Justice Botsford on a change of venue by attorneys for the defense the state's attorney allowed it to be dismissed and had it brought up before Justice Weiss.

In the meantime the going back and forth from one court to another had caused the defendant and plaintiff to come together several times and they decided to forget anything that might have happened in the past. They were perfectly willing to shake hands and share in the costs upon the suggestion of the attorneys.

No Case on Record.

There is no case on record of a cough or cold resulting in pneumonia or consumption after Foley's Honey and Tar has been taken, as it will stop your cough and break up your cold quickly. Refuse any but the genuine Foley's Honey and Tar in a yellow package. Contains no opiates and is safe and sure. Frank Masquelet.

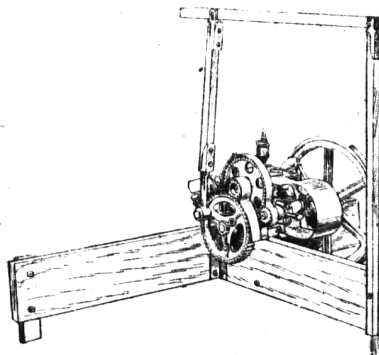

The Plaindealer will be sent to any address on trial three months for twenty-five cents, and will be discontinued at the expiration of that time unless other wise ordered. Try it.
