the Committee had found inefficiency in the department, it was their duty to report to the Council, recommending desired changes. They should have recommended that the position of Chief Engineer should be declared vacant, and advertise for a man to fill the position. But they did not do this, virtually saying that they were running the city. They did not say they had found inefficiency in the Chief. The practical experience of Mr Devlin taught him to do his work properly. They could not deny his having, nor could they shut out his having done gallant service in years gone by. The fact that Mr Devlin possessed this courage should not be used as an argument against him being Chief Engineer. It would have only been fair play if the Committee had told the Council what fault they had to find. But the Committee, with their wise heads, had done nothing of the kind. They simply recommended that he be placed as assistant engineer without giving reasons for so doing. There might be better qualified men in the city, besides than the gentleman recommended, and the Committee had no right to force the Council to accept him. But above all, he thought the report was not in order, as the evidence had not been produced, nor had the prayer of the petition been complied with, and he asked for the Mayor's ruling.

The Mayor ruled that the report did refer to the petition of Vandewater and Betts and others, and was in order for discussion.

Ald. Harty rose to a point of order, and asked that a letter from Mr G. A. Kirkpatrick be read in order to show that many persons had been "fogled" into signing the report.

Ald. Allen thought it would be unfair to ask Mr Devlin the question propounded by Ald. Walkem, as he did not know what the Council would do with the report. Probably he would not give any answer in the meantime. If action was taken on Mr Devlin's petition first, there would be plenty of time to speak of the report.

Ald. Walkem said the report did not recommend definitely that Mr Devlin should be dismissed, but only that he be made assistant engineer. If he found the Chief was not willing to accept the position he would vote nay to the report, but if he did accept, he would vote yea.

Ald. Allen thought they would not find any man willing to say that he would accept $200 instead of $300. He did not think that it was fair to hold the investigation with closed doors. In the report a man was being forced upon them as Chief Engineer. He (Ald. Allen) did not know where they could find a better man than the gentleman named in the report; still he was forced upon them. He was not prepared to submit to this, and would not vote for the report.

Ald. Drennan said he could answer Ald. Walkem's question in reference to the Chief with an emphatic "No."

Ald. Allen asked to have the evidence taken submitted to the Council. The Committee, to have done right, should have recommended the disbanding of the brigade and the making of a fresh start. He called upon the Committee to give explanations as to the investigation.

The Mayor said the report was in order, but whether any weight should be attached to it in the absence of evidence was a question for the Council to decide.

Ald. Woods suggested the report being taken up clause by clause.

Ald. Allen and Harty both moved that the evidence be submitted before discussing the report. Withdrawn.

The first part of the report having been withdrawn,

Ald. McCammon proceeded to speak on the adoption of the report. He detailed at some length the steps which led to the investigation being made into the state of the Fire Department. In order to make the matter as thorough as possible the Committee resolved to ask a number of persons whose names were on the petition to go before them and give evidence as to what they knew on the subject. Some of the Committee were in favour of having the investigation open to the public, but the majority was opposed to this. The only object of the Committee was to get the unbiassed views of the petitioners. The members of the Council were invited to be present if they saw fit.

Ald. Allen—I never heard of the invitation before.

Ald. Drennan said he understood the investigation was conducted with closed doors. There was no invitation given.

Ald. McCammon—The Council got a general invitation. The evidence taken was very contradictory, and from it no just conclusions could be arrived at. Persons were swayed by predilections, and so the evidence was given. In answer to the complaint of the witnesses not being sworn, the Committee had no power to do this. The salient points in the evidence were taken down. The assurance was given to witnesses who came forward that their evidence would not be open to the general public. The Committee were not responsible for the report, and they were not bound to submit the evidence to the Council.

Ald. Harty said this was the first time he had heard that the evidence was not to be submitted to the Council. He understood it was to be.

Ald. McCammon gave reason for keeping the evidence private and proceeded to say that the Committee were responsible for the report and not the witnesses. They might throw the evidence to the winds, but the Council had taken a solemn affirmation to do its duty in the premises and they must do it. It was from personal observation that the Committee had brought in the report. If the Council did not see fit to adopt this, he would bow to their decision. It was a fact that for years there had been a chronic dissatisfaction expressed with the Fire Brigade. During the investigation facts had come to their knowledge which led them to believe that a change was necessary. For himself he signed the report on the Chief's own evidence, to which he proceeded to refer.

Ald. Walkem objected to this, as no evidence had been submitted. (Applause.)

The Mayor said Ald. McCammon could not relate what the Chief said, as none of the evidence had been submitted.

Ald. McCammon then proceeded to state the qualities a Chief Engineer should possess. He should know a good deal about the water supply, the mains, the position of the hydrants and their capacity, and the quantity of water in the tanks. He should know something about a steam fire engine. He should be a thorough disciplinarian, and able to govern men. He should not use profane language at fires.

Ald. Harty—There was nothing in the evidence to show that Mr Devlin used profane language.

Ald. McCammon was prepared to show that there was evidence to that effect. Then a Chief should understand organization. On occasions when required to take his place at a fire he should possess coolness, good judgment, and decision of character enough that when he told a man to do a thing he should see it done. There was sometimes correspondence required on the part of a Chief Engineer, and it was at least necessary that he should possess the rudiments of education. These were the reasons he had for signing the report, irrespective of the evidence. If they did not adopt it, he could only say that he had endeavoured to do his duty conscientiously.

Ald. Allen asked if Mr Devlin was present at the investigation?

Ald. McCammon—He was not.

Ald. Allen—Why?

Ald. McCammon said he was refused admission to the Committee Room by a majority of the Committee. If Ald. Allen wished to know his personal feelings on the subject, he would state that he was in favour of Mr Devlin being present; but the majority decided otherwise. The proceedings were not kept secret from Devlin, for he was informed of everything that transpired before the Committee.

Ald. Harty confirmed the statement that Ald. McCammon wished Mr Devlin to be present.

Ald. Walkem said he had never heard a more miserable defence of a report than that made by Ald. McCammon. (Applause.) He had asked a number of questions, but he had grounded no statements on these questions.

Ald. McCammon—I say emphatically that I can prove the statements made in these questions. (Applause.)

Ald. Walkem contended that there were two points which seemed to him to be inexcusable: 1st, that Mr Devlin was excluded, and 2nd, had no chance of making a cross-examination. He (Ald. Walkem) had on a former occasion commented on Mr Devlin's exclusion. It was unfair for the Committee to ask the Council to endorse a report of this kind, which was one-sided. The evidence should have been taken openly and above board. It was contrary to reason to discuss a report without evidence. Ald. McCammon did not assert, but he insinuated that Mr Devlin used profane language at fires. Did the Alderman hear him?

Ald. McCammon—Yes.

Ald. Walkem—Then why was it not brought to the Council before? He would do this before he would slaughter any man in this way, or condemn a man behind his back. He earnestly entreated the Council not to decide on evidence taken in the manner in which it was done. It was utterly impossible for them to discuss the report without the evidence. It was grossly unfair to Mr Devlin to do so.

Ald. Price said there was no denying the fact that public confidence had been shaken in the Fire Brigade. The Committee had had an unpleasant duty to perform. As to the evidence, he thought perhaps it should never have been taken. The Council should have been able to decide on the subject without a reference to the Committee at all. He was prepared to take the word of the Committee that they gave an unbiassed opinion on the question, and he would vote for the report. He denounced the letter sent by the Chief Engineer to the Council as a slander on the Committee, and said that alone would make him vote against him. He thought the recommendation of the Committee a very easy let-down for Mr Devlin, as it was virtually giving him a pension of $200 per annum. While paying a tribute to Mr Devlin's courage and ability, he was of opinion that a man of higher standing was necessary to carry on the work. The insurance companies were threatening to withdraw from the city, and unless the report was adopted public confidence would be lost in the Fire Department and in the Council.

Ald. McRossie moved, seconded by Ald. Walkem, that the report be laid over for two weeks in order to give the members an opportunity to read the evidence.

Ald. Drennan moved in amendment to the amendment to the effect that the report be referred back to the Committee for the purpose of producing the evidence.

Ald. McRossie said that while reluctant to vote against the report of a Committee, he felt it his duty to do so on the present occasion.

Ald. Gaskin said he expected the report which had been brought up would cause a commotion among those gentlemen who wished to obtain office, to make capital out of the case, or wishing to appear hurt. As a matter of fact he did not believe the members of the Council thought the case did not require the appointment of a new Chief. Since he had been connected with the fire department he had seen that the organization was not what it ought to have been, and he had never concealed that opinion from any one. As a result of his having expressed those opinions pretty strongly, he had the misfortune to be looked upon as a bitter enemy of Mr Devlin's. He wished once for all to declare that such was not the case. He looked upon Mr Devlin as a very good man for what he understands; and if he was working under an intelligent and experienced Chief he had many good qualities.

Ald. Harty—Hear, hear.

Ald. Gaskin—It had been said by some that the Chief had no by-laws to guide him. For the information of those who did not know he would say that the Chief had it in his power to make such laws as were necessary to govern his men at fires; and if the men had not been drilled properly, the fault lay with the Chief for not knowing how to do it. After a few other remarks, Ald. Gaskin proceeded to say that in Mr Horsey, the gentleman proposed for Chief, he believed they had a man who possessed the necessary qualifications to command the Brigade. He had skill, practical knowledge and endurance, and was a skilled mechanic. He has had considerable experience in connection with the Fire Brigade, and is a man that those under him could trust. Ald. Gaskin entered into explanations as to why he had moved that the investigation should be conducted in private, and accused Ald. Harty of being animated by a party feeling in the matter.

Ald. Harty characterized this statement as a lie.

Ald. Gaskin denied that he had introduced the religious cry into the question. He read from the Fire By-law a section which gave the Committee power to dismiss any officer or men connected with the Department. Ald. Gaskin then made a warm personal attack on Ald. Walkem in reference to the investigation, and proceeded to refer to various fires which he asserted had been mismanaged. He thought the time was come for a change being made, and the sooner it was accomplished the better.

Ald. Metcalfe attacked Ald. Gaskin for the violent language he had employed in speaking of members of the Council, and said he felt himself humiliated to come to the Board and hear such words uttered. He entered into a warm defence of Mr Devlin, whom he considered to be an excellent fireman. He thought it was a premeditated plot on the part of some persons who came from they did not know where to throw out Mr Devlin. He had himself been approached on the subject and asked to vote against Mr Devlin. He had no favour to ask from Mr Devlin's friends, but he would do his duty honestly and fearlessly in the premises. He hoped the feeling which appeared to exist would soon die out.

Ald. Walkem asked permission to make a brief reply to Ald. Gaskin, when he deprecated the importation of private matters into the discussion.

Ald. Harty said he did not sign the report because he did not think the Chief got justice, in the first place because he was not present at the investigation. Ald. Gaskin could not convince him (Ald. Harty) that he was a friend of Mr Devlin's. At a recent meeting of the Fire Brigade, which the Committee attended, not a single complaint was made against the Chief. But the Committee had not given him a fair chance, and even members had been canvassed outside to vote against Mr Devlin.

Ald. Gaskin—Name the members!

Ald. Harty named Alds. Dupuis and McRossie.

Both the Aldermen named said they had not been asked to vote against Devlin.

Ald. Gaskin—Who is the liar now?

Ald. Harty said he understood the Aldermen to have been asked. After a few other remarks Ald. Harty spoke of Mr Devlin's honesty, which could not be attacked.

Ald. Gaskin said he had proved in Committee that Mr Devlin got money for the men which had not been accounted for.

Ald. Harty defended the engineer from the charge of want of intelligence, and spoke of the manner in which he had worked at fires.

Ald. Asselstine moved the previous question, but

Ald. Allen asserted his right to speak. He could not see what they wanted with two engineers. He defended Mr Devlin at some length, and said that the proper thing to have done was to upset the whole department and start it afresh.

Ald. Dupuis protested against being asked to vote until he saw evidence to prove the charge of inefficiency made against Mr Devlin. The evidence should have been submitted before the Council was asked to express an opinion on the subject. It was not fair to them as honest men to ask them to vote on a subject of which they could know nothing.

Ald. McCammon rose to wind up the debate. He said the Committee had never made any charge of incompetency as a fireman against Mr Devlin. But during the debate he had not heard one reason advanced why Mr Devlin should be retained as Chief. He denied, so far as he was concerned, the statement made by Ald. Metcalfe, that the investigation had been concocted. He repeated the statement that he was convinced of the Chief's incompetency from his own evidence. He had letters to show that the Insurance Companies threatened to raise their rates in the city if reorganization did not take place. The Royal was one of the Companies.

Ald. Drennan said the Royal had within a month or two reduced their rates, instead of raising them, policies being effected at three-quarters of a cent instead of one cent.

Ald. McCammon then went into the financial aspect, showing that under the old arrangement salaries had been $970; under the new, $800 would be the amount. He also stated that Mr Horsey had offered to give his services for nothing as Chief of the Fire Brigade, but the Committee would not accept them.

Ald. Drennan's resolution having been withdrawn, Ald. McRossie's was put and lost. The report was then adopted on the following division:

Yeas—Ald. Anglin, Asselstine, Carson, Fee, Gaskin, Gildersleeve, McCammon, Pense, Price, Thompson, Wilson—11.

Nays—Ald. Allen, Drennan, Dupuis, Harty, Metcalfe, McRossie, Walkem, Woods—8.

The Council adjourned at 1.20 a.m.

ROBINSON'S PHOSPHORIZED EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL, WITH LACTOPHOSPHATE OF LIME, is prepared with the finest Cod Liver Oil—one of the most esteemed remedies in the catalogue of the "Materia Medica"—Lacto-phosphate of Lime, which enters so largely into formation of bone material and other important tissues of the body—Phosphorus, the great brain and nerve tonic and invigorator, in a form most desirable to obtain its fullest effects, together with other valuable remedial agents. These are all intimately combined in one demulcent fluid of homogeneous appearance and delicate flavour, possessing remarkable power in arresting the decay and supplying the waste constantly going on in those abnormal conditions of the system, affected by such diseases as pervert and impair nutrition, vitiate the blood and sap the vital forces. It is highly recommended for Consumption, Chronic Bronchitis, Coughs, Scrofula, Scrofulous and Syphilitic Ulcers, Tumors, Diseases of the Bones, Joints and Spine, General Debility, Emaciation, and all Impurities of the Blood. It is particularly adapted to Delicate Females in those low states of the system that manifest themselves in so many of the ailments peculiar to their sex. To the aged and infirm its nourishing and invigorating properties will give renewed strength and buoyancy of spirit; while to only very young children its continued use will be found of incalculable benefit, as its tonic and nutritive properties supply the blood with strength-giving materials for bone and muscle structure, and thus furnish the foundation for strong and healthy constituents. It is very pleasant to the taste. Prepared only by J.H. Robinson, Chemist, St. John, N.B., and for sale by Druggists and General Dealers. Price $1.00 per bottle; six bottles for $5.00.
