The Modern "Liberal."

Is this to be a man
Who looks around the world
When hostile banners wave
And thunderbolts are hurled—
To echo boast and threat,
Aggression raises high,
Then curse his native land—
Dare she the foe defy?

Is it to scoff and jeer
At those who now in pow'r
Would fain maintain our rights,
Whatever cloud may low'r?
Cry "Cosmopolitan,"
Or "any land" but one,
And that the very land
The light of love shines on?

To pat oppression's back,
Cringe, toady, buy and sell,
Then play a prating part
And plead it's "Liberal?"
Nor feel a blush nor shame,
Though, as a parvenu,
This country may be snubbed,
As that oppression grew?

To knuckle in the dust,
To truckle as in fear?
Surrender at a nod
One fourth a hemisphere?
Come, Weakness, to the helm,
Come, Faction, lead the van,
Though England sinks a prey,
Shout "Cosmopolitan?"

A modern "Liberal," then,
To show a patriot's skill
And sacrifice renown,
Yet cry for milk you spill,
Bend to our greatest foe,
And swear the safest plan
Is to haul down our flag
Oh! "Cosmopolitan."

SHADE OF PALMERSTON.

Fashion and Other Notes.

Muslin mantles will be worn loose.

Rainbow beads cost more than jet.

Black silk dresses have no overskirts.

Knife-pleating are very fine this year.

Grenadine lace is the newest trimming.

Jet ornaments are confined to black bonnets.

Bronze is the popular colour in England just now.

White satin with polka dots is shown for bridal dresses.

English ladies are adopting some Turkish fashions in dress.

Pearl gray and lemon colour are combined with black silk.

Gold and silver Neapolitan braids are shown by the milliners.

Satin foulard for trimming purposes is very light, but very lustrous.

Shot goods of mixed silk and wool are used for combination dresses.

One of the heaviest gamblers at Monaco is a French woman from Paris.

The short walking suits are called "Cheminer" by the New York houses.

Flowered bonnets for every-day wear are made of beige grasses and blossoms.

Embroidered satin, wrought with roses, lillies and forget me-nots, is shown for scarfs.

New mantles for Summer wear are a network of sewing silk with a bead in each mesh.

The front breadth of many costumes is of a material different from that of the basque and train.

Blue gingham dresses have vests of mandarin yellow, softened by a covering of modern point lace.

Sleeves, made with elbow ruffles and cuffs that can be removed at will, are much liked for thin dresses.

The new spring handkerchiefs are hardly large enough to flirt with, complains the New York Herald.

Rosettes of gros-grain ribbon, with long ends, have taken the place of sashes on white dresses for children.

Mme. Livtivnow, a Russian, has just received the degree of doctor of philsophy from the faculty of Berne.

The Nabob mixture, so called from Daudet's novel, is a loosely-woven silk gauze striped in bright colours.

Batiste and guipure are the favorite materials for white curtains. Turkey red applied work is a pretty novelty.

Plain Brussels net, stretched over a frame and trimmed with Chantilly lace, flowers and jet, makes a handsome bonnet for an elderly lady.

The first lady boarder at the Stewart palace was Miss Sprague, a New York stenographer; references, General Sherman and Supreme Judge Swaine.

Harriet Prescott Spofford has a face as clearly cut as a cameo, but as she never will have her photograph taken, only her personal friends have a chance to judge of her beauty.

The newest bracelets are spirals representing snakes. They are long enough to reach the whole length of the arm, and the head of the serpent rests on the wearer's shoulder.

Ladies who wish to be a little economical about their lace trimmings should make them with alternate plain spaces and clusters of knife-plaiting, and set a tiny bow of ribbon in each plain space.

Julia Rive King, the pianist, never plays with music before her. She learns a piece by looking at it until she has a mental picture of it, and then practices it. The weight of her touch is twelve pounds.

The Empress of Austria is a very bold rider when out with the hounds. Nothing stops her. She takes fences, gates and brooks as they come, and fairly beats the English ladies on their own ground.

Worth's short suits are composed of a half-long princesse polonaise, and an underskirt bordered with wide side plaits, crossed by a transverse bar of silk. The polonaise is very slightly draped and has panel pockets.

Mr Heap, an Englishman, has just received $5,000 from a lady who promised to marry him, or to give him $100 the first year, $200 the second, and so on until she paid him $50,000 annually. She decided not to marry him, and he sued for the money.

Shade Trees.

There is great satisfaction in knowing what section of shade-tree those who are competent to judge would make for road or lawn planting. Just such information is now before the public, and it will prove of very great value to those who intend to beautify their road sides or private grounds. The Park Commission of Washington, D.C., composed of three men of ability standing in horticultural circles, have planted miles of street trees, numbering about forty thousand. The bulk of these are made up of twelve varieties, and are named herewith in the order in which the commission valued them for the purpose: White maple, American linden, American elem, scarlet maple, sugar maple, American white ash, English sycamore, button-ball, tulip-tree, honey locust, Norway maple. This is an excellent assortment to select from for road side planting. Each variety here named when full grown assumes handsome proportions, and most of them have brilliant and attractive foliage in the fall. In planting shade trees along the road side, especially in a clay country, they should be set at least fifty feet apart, for if closer there will be too much shade, and bad, wet roads in the spring are sure to follow. This close planting should also be strenuously avoided in decorating private grounds. Any system that excludes the free access of sun and air from the dwelling house is pernicious. Go wherever one may he will find this faulty system of close planting in vogue, and in eight cases out of ten there are two trees or shrubs on a space where one would have been enough. The plea for this is a desire for immediate effect. The remedy is to cut down in time every other tree. This last is seldom, if ever, carried out.—P. T. Q., in Scribner's Magazine for April.

A Cruel First of April Hoax.

Not for many years has Airdrie been the scene of so much excitement as it was recently, the cause of the disturbance being a first of April hoax. In the local paper of the 30th ult., the following advertisement appeared:—"A gentleman (a native of Airdrie) having lately come into a fortune, will distribute to the people of Airdrie, on Monday 1st, at 12 o'clock, at the Old Town Cross, 1,000 loaves of bread, and 3 cwts. of cheese. Come in time! All are welcome!" Long before the hour mentioned large numbers of poor people, some of them from a distance, began to assemble, and by twelve o'clock there were several thousand present. The depressed state of trade in the district, and the great destitution that at present prevails, especially among the miners, who are at present on the strike, no doubt made many respond to the invitation. After waiting for some time, the crowd began to get impatient, and it soon dawned upon them that they had been the subjects of a cruel hoax. In the evening the house of the author of the hoax was mobbed, and the Star Hotel, in which it was said he had taken refuge, had a number of windows smashed by the crowd.
