SHIPMENT OF MILITARY STORES.—Four guns, with shot and shell, were shipped for some point east to-day.

COOL.—Mr Gunn sends cards to leading Conservatives of the city asking their "support and influence." There is nothing like lots of brass.

SIR JOHN'S COMMITTEES.—Meeting of Sir Macdonald's Committees at the Hall over Wade's Drug Store this evening. All are requested to be present.

CATTLE.—The cattle trade with the United States continues, there being numbers sent over almost every day. Seventy four head was the contingent for to-day.

OFFICIAL CANVASSING.—We were informed to-day that several officials in the employment of the Dominion Government are making themselves very busy electioneering.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?—Mr Brophy's new hotel at Gananoque is to be called the "Windsor." If it is anything like its namesakes at Ottawa and Montreal it will do.

THE OTTAWA HOTEL.—A Montreal despatch, received to-day, states that the Ottawa Hotel has been reopened, after the extensive alterations which have recently been made.

"TOO THIN"—That "Independent Workingman's" letter in our contemporary. The "workingman" shows his hand—that he is not a "workingman." The veil is "too thin."

PROBABILITIES for next twenty-four hours: For the lower lake region, moderate winds and clear to fair warmer weather. For the St. Lawrence, moderate winds and fair weather.

THEN AND NOW.—Some time ago the Ottawa Times declared the absentee cry to be unreasonable, used only in desperation, and impolitic. Mr Gunn's organ endorsed this view of the matter, declaring it "sensible."

FORTUNATE HOUSE.—Henry O'Brien, late of the Anglo-American, will make the Crossman House the popular resort for excursionists to Alexandria Bay this summer. Henry's brother, Martin, was one of the decentest hotel men to be found in the country.

A SEVERE CUT.—Some lads were engaged in fooling this morning down at the docks, when two of them fell out. One of the boys picked up a piece of tin and threw it at a companion, striking him in the eye, inflicting a bad cut. We did not learn the boy's name.

BIRDS OF A FEATHER FLOCK TOGETHER.—This is the name of a new novel by E. A. Sothern, the celebrated actor, and which is published by J. Ross Robertson for the nominal sum of 15 cents. It is said to be a great literary success, and is for sale at Mr Woods' store.

COMING TO KINGSTON.—The good sense of the Watertown Hook and Ladder Company has prevailed and they will visit Kingston after all. They are not coming, however, till the first of July, but whenever they come they will be sure of a hearty reception and good treatment.

A NEW VOLUNTEER COMPANY.—We are informed that a new Volunteer Company is in course of formation in the city, composed principally of clerks in stores and shopkeepers generally. About forty names have already been procured, and the organization will be completed in a short time.

MODERN FILIAL AFFECTION—When the weary mother calls out to her daughter, who is playing the piano in the parlour, to come and help her in the kitchen, the modern young lady snaps out "O, do you think I have nothing to do but dirty my hands on stove-pipes?" and then goes on singing "Kind words can never die, no, never die!"

ROUGHS.—Every evening a gang of roughs congregates at Martin's new buildings and insults passers-by. Last night a couple of ladies were grossly abused by some of the ruffians, and when spoken to used the most obscene language. Unfortunately none of them could be recognized, or a warrant would have been procured for their arrest.

ARE THEY PURCHASING ALREADY?—The Argus has told us (and its editor ought to know what was going on) that Mr Carruthers was the standing nominee of the Grits on account of his wealth. Mr Carruthers got tired of defeats, in other words, of "shelling out," and then the lot fell upon his rich ex-partner, who, the Argus says, had a carte blanche for manipulating the bribery fund on former occasions. Last evening a Conservative canvassed a certain voter, from whom a satisfactory reply could not be obtained. His answer was "The other side" (the Gunn party) are offering money. If this be true, they are early at work.

Sir John's Committees.

A meeting of the members of the Ward Committees will be held in the Hall over Wade's Drug Store THIS (Wednesday) evening at eight o'clock. Other supporters of Sir John Macdonald are requested to attend.

Police Court.

(BEFORE THE MAYOR.)

Wednesday, May 15.

Daniel McDonald, vagrant, dismissed.

Mathew Shields, drunk, fined $2 or 30 days in gaol.

Miles Burns, drunk, fined $2 or 10 days in gaol.

Important business meeting of the Kingston Masonic Relief Association at the Secretary's office on Friday evening.

Sir John Macdonald's friends are energetically working in order to secure a large majority at the forthcoming election.

The electors are inquiring what interest in public affairs Mr Gunn ever took, so as to qualify him as representative of Kingston.

It was poor consolation for a Sydenham Ward voter yesterday to tell Mr Gunn that he would be beaten by 250 majority.

Mr Simpson, Mrs Simpson and Miss Simpson intend leaving next week for a tour in Ireland and a visit to the Paris Exhibition.

The License Commissioners should not dabble in politics while they hold office. The offer of a tavern license for a vote for Gunn may cause trouble.

Nordheimer's new music store is winning its way to popular favour not more by the intrinsic value of the goods than the courtesy of the attendants.

Col. Ross, of Ottawa, has been in Montreal arranging for the billeting of the Ottawa Guards on the Queen's Birthday. They will turn out 300 strong.

The "steel rail" organ finds now that in wrestling with the seat of Government question it made a serious blunder and was barking up the wrong tree.

It is said when John Macdonald, M.P., presents himself to the electors of Centre Toronto it will be as a member of the Cabinet, he having been offered the position of President of the Council.

The Whig mis-states the fact when it says several attempts were made to organize the Young Men's Conservative Association. Only two meetings were held, and both were as successful as were the preliminary meetings of the "thinking" young Liberals.

THE NEW STEAM YACHT.—The new yacht built for three gentlemen in this city by Capt. R. Davis, Westport, arrived in the harbour yesterday morning. Its dimensions are 45 feet in length, with 8½ feet beam. In the stern there is a 14 feet cabin, fitted with every convenience, and comfortably furnished. The windows are so arranged that it can be made completely open. Another 14 feet cabin is placed in the bow, so that the accommodation is extensive. The engine occupies a space of six feet square, in the centre of the boat, and is guaranteed to give a speed of ten miles per hour. The engine was built by Black Bros., Brockville, and is a beautiful piece of work. The building of the boat is very creditable to Capt. Davis. A trial of speed was made yesterday, but owing to a defect in the steering chain, only about nine miles was made in an hour.

A SCRIMMAGE.—Last evening two frequenters of a prominent hotel had a "little onpleasantness" at the bar, owing to one having accused the other of never paying for the drinks when they were called on. The insult was promptly resented by a slap on the mouth from the smaller of the two contestants, and immediately a challenge was issued to mortal combat. One of the parties went out to the back yard and took off his coat to wait for his adversary, but the latter evidently thought that "the better part of valour is discretion," for he did not put in an appearance. It is expected that "pistols and coffee for two" will be the next move in the matter.

TENDERS.—In addition to asking for tenders for plank walks and other street repairs, the Committee on Streets ask for tenders for furnishing and placing in position the names of the several streets of the city, the lettering to be cast iron.

THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Meeting of the Synod of Toronto and Kingston.

The annual session of the Synod of Toronto and Kingston of the Presbyterian Church in Canada opened last (Tuesday) evening by divine worship at St. Andrew's Church. The Synod embraces the ministers and elders of nine Presbyteries, Kingston being the most easterly. There are about two hundred ministers on the roll, but of these only about one hundred were present, with some thirty elders. A considerable number were expected to arrive this morning from the west. The service last evening was conducted in the usual manner by the Rev. Dr. Wardrope, of Guelph, who had occupied the Moderator's chair during the past year. After devotional exercises,

The Rev. Dr. Wardrope, of Guelph, the retiring Moderator, preached the opening sermon from Rev. v. 12—"Worthy the Lamb that was slain to receive . . . riches." He said when a sovereign appeared among his subjects on a review day, or on the occasion of some great national rejoicing, they rend the air with shouts of "God save the King." Such an expression of loyalty but infinitely higher, and more comprehensible, was uttered by those that surround the Throne of Him who is "King of Kings and Lord of Lords." They said with a loud voice, "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power, and riches and wisdom and strength and honour and glory and blessing." Many in the train of earthly sovereigns, while conscious that those reigning over them were tyrants despots and oppressors, have joined in loyal acclamation. They have cried "God save the King" while conscious that his reign was a curse and a scourge to the people under his sway. But it is not so with those, who around the throne of the Lord Jesus Christ lift up their voices and strike their harps in His praise. It is not more in accordance with the divine decree than with the desire of their own hearts that He should set upon His throne. That "He must reign" is indeed a divine necessity—not, however, a necessity which they accept as an inexorable doom, but a decree in the contemplation and fulfilment of which they rejoice with a joy unspeakable and full of glory. Many, on the other hand, in the train of earthly sovereigns, have joined in such acclamations with real loyalty and love, accompanying them with the heart's prayer that the days of their sovereign might be lengthened; but conscious all the while that he might soon be taken away from them, and that after his demise days of darkness might come upon his kingdom. But it can never be so with those who sing the new song around the throne in heaven. If bowing before the Lord Jesus they say, "O King live for ever," they are conscious that there is no exaggeration in the sentiment. The rejoicing of Christ's subjects, in view of the stability and permanency of His Kingdom, implies their conviction of His worthiness to reign. This was not only implied, however; but was, as was seen in the passage from which the text was taken, expressed in this ascription of praise. In the case of those who had been translated to glory, they could form a more just estimate of Christ. Now, however, diversified may have been their experiences here below, however different may have been the paths along which they have been led on their pilgrimage, however various the degrees of glory to which they have been exalted, there is the most perfect harmony among them in their admiration and love of Him who loved them and gave Himself for them. Now, who is this that is represented as being worthy to receive the homage of the adoring multitude around the throne? And what do the worshippers around the throne attribute to Him in their ascriptions of praise? 1st. It is the Lord Jesus Christ who is worthy to receive these ascriptions of praise. There were some who called in question His right to the homage and worship due to Deity. But there they had Him represented, under the similitude of a "Lamb as it had been slain," as receiving and as worthy to receive the profoundest homage of the unfallen and redeemed. When angels and saints offered to Jesus this tribute of adoration, they had prominently in view the great work of Atonement. The record of Christ's death as a propitiation for sin some would bury out of sight. But they preached Christ crucified, and they were not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ. In His incarnation He did not lay aside his holiness for a moment, or His mercy or truth, or in short any of those attributes which they were wont to sum up under the general name of goodness, and so to these the worshippers around the throne make no special reference in their song of praise. But He laid aside for a time many of those attributes which they are wont to sum up under the general name of greatness. He laid aside power, riches, wisdom (or at any rate the reputation of it) strength, honour, glory and blessing in that, instead of blessing from those whom He came to bless, He was assailed with the cry, "Away with Him! Crucify Him! Crucify Him! Now all these, "power and riches and wisdom and strength and honour and glory and blessing" are ascribed to Him in the adoration of saints and angels around the throne. They virtually say, "By as much as He was abased, let Him be exalted. By so much as he was despised and contemned on earth let Him be honoured and adored in Heaven." 2nd. What do the worshippers around the throne attribute to Jesus in their ascriptions of praise? This question had been partly answered in advance; but it invited a fuller consideration. The gifts and graces of Christ could not be analysed in one discourse, so he asked their special attention to what was taught in this "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive . . . riches." In the largest sense they could take the term "riches" to mean everything that was accounted valuable either in mental or material wealth. And if ready to join in this ascription of praise this would imply their conviction that Jesus was worthy to be served with the best of their time, their talents and their influence—the best of everything that they could consecrate to the advancement of His cause, to the promotion of His glory. At present he would restrict the term "riches" to its usual signification and consider it as meaning what of this world's wealth Christ had entrusted to his people. Their ascription of praise would be worse than meaningless if it did not especially refer to riches which He has put it in the power of their own hand to bestow, as well as of riches over which the had no control. He contended that whatever of this world's wealth they possessed came from God and belonged of right to Him. The Lord has never abrogated His claim to the works of His hands, over which for His own wise purposes He has made man to have dominion. It was still as true as on the day when the words were first uttered, that "the earth is the Lords and the fulness thereof." Communists and fosterers of revolution have given forth the maxim that "property is crime." It was not theirs to palliate or defend the oppressions and tyrannies by which men have been goaded on to the adoption of a theory so fraught with perdition, even to those acting upon it. But this maxim, false and ruinous as regarded their fellowmen, contained the germs of truth as regarded God. As regarded fellowmen, man has a right which is fully recognized by God Himself; as regarded God, he had, and could have none. But, it might be asked, is it the Lord Jesus Christ that puts forth the claim that the earth and all that is therein is His? Was it of Him that these things were spoken? Yes, for the Evangelist told that it was of Him that Esaias spake, that it was His glory that Esaias beheld, when he saw the Lord sitting upon a throne high and lifted up and his train filling the temple. This was Christ's own word—"All things the Father hath are mine." Again, whatever they possessed of this world's wealth, He alone gave them the ability to procure it. If they acquired substance by means of intellectual effort, they were apt to forget Him who endowed them with those faculties of mind which they possessed; if acquired it by agricultural industry they were apt to forget Him who gave them strength for labour and prudence for management; if they acquired it in mechanical or commercial pursuits, they were apt to forget Him who gave them skill to devise their plans and perseverance to carry them out. The preacher strongly denounced the love of money, remarking that when acquired in a way contrary to God's meaning they were raising higher and higher the wall of separation between their souls and Him. Further, whatever they possessed of this world's wealth, it was only in recognizing God in it, and laying it out for the advancement of His glory that they can secure for themselves the highest and most real enjoyment of it. They were all ready enough to say, or at least to think, "Only give us the wealth, and we are willing to run all risks of being unable to enjoy it." But this was not so much a matter of course. Wealth might come, and yet the power to enjoy it may not come. He meant that in many cases the expected increase of enjoyment did not come with the increase of wealth. He proceeded to say that the Lord gave them the power to acquire wealth, but it was designed that they should use it to advance his glory, to extend the Kingdom of Christ, to promote the happiness of their fellowmen and thus multiply their own joy. The fact that Christ died for mankind, should be the motive to make men contribute cheerfully and liberally to the advancement of His Kingdom in this world. They appealed to the highest motive when they appealed to the claims of Christ as their Redeemer. In speaking of Christian missions to the heathen, he said they were indebted to the benighted nations in a temporal sense—indebted for silks, and spices, for gold, silver and jewels. On the ground of a common humanity, likewise the heathen had a claim upon them still stronger became the claim when they remembered that these heathens knew nothing of life beyond the grave. Their sympathies were touched; but when he said "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain," he appealed to a higher motive. They touched deeper and stronger the springs of action. A sense of duty may operate as a steady power. But love to Christ was a steadier and stronger. He urged them to let this animate them, to let it constrain them to live not to themselves, but to them who died for them and rose again.

After singing a hymn the benediction was pronounced.

The Synod was then constituted with prayer by the Moderator.

The Clerk, the Rev. John Gray, of Orillia, called the roll of the Synod, and submitted a statement of the changes which had taken place during the year, which was taken as read.

Dr. Wardrope then said that it remained for him to thank the Synod for the honour done him last year in electing him to preside over its deliberations. He also thanked them for their forbearance and sympathy to him during his term of office. He then called for nominations for a successor to him, when he would willingly make way for him, who would no doubt receive similar kindness from the members. (Applause.)

The Rev. R. Wallace, of Toronto, moved that the Rev. Professor Mowat be elected as Moderator. He did so on several grounds. Prof. Mowat had been brought up in Kingston. From childhood he had been attached to this Church (St. Andrew's); and had held many prominent positions in connection with the Presbyterian Church. He and Professor Mowat had had the privilege of being associated with each other as Professor and student, and he (the speaker) as an old personal friend esteemed it a privilege to propose his friend in this connection. The Professor was a man of superior attainments, of great modesty, prudence and firmness, and he would do honour to the position and confer credit upon the Synod in carrying on its work. (Applause.)

Prof. Mowat begged of the Rev. Mr Wallace to withdraw his motion, but the Moderator declared him out of order, as the motion had not been seconded.

Rev. Dr. Robb, of Toronto, seconded the motion in a few words. He believed the Synod would be doing credit to itself in carrying the motion, and confer an honour on one who richly deserved it. (Hear, hear.)

The motion was carried unanimously, amid applause.

Dr. Wardrope then announced the election, expressing the pleasure he had in making it. He gladly welcomed Prof. Mowat as his successor in the chair.

Prof. Mowat, on taking the chair, thanked the Synod for his unexpected elevation to the chair, saying he would endeavour to discharge his duties faithfully.

Principal Grant moved, seconded by Rev. Dr. Fraser, a vote of thanks to the retiring Moderator for his services during the year and for his sermon. Carried.

The Clerk read the arrangements made last year to regulate the meetings of the Synod, which were adopted.

Several Committees were appointed and the Synod adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

Wednesday morning.

The Synod resumed at ten o'clock, the Moderator presiding. The first hour was spent in devotional exercises, conducted by members of the Synod.

The business before the Court was mainly of a routine character, being of no public interest. It consisted of the reading of Presbytery reports and changes made in the stations.

The Synod adjourned at one o'clock until three this afternoon.

SMALL BUSINESS.—The organ of the wealthy Mr Gunn sneers at the Young Men's Conservative Association by saying that it was organized in what it calls an "attic." The fact is, the room is one of the best in the city, and was the only one available. The Conservative young men have to pay for the use of their meeting room, not having the privilege of occupying one rent free, as the "thinking" young Liberals, it is said, have. We would like to know what the opinion of the Secretary of the "thinking" men young is about the room with which he has something to do being called an "attic?"

PROF. MOWAT.—We are sure we but express the sentiments of the many friends of Prof. Mowat in this city when we say that the Synod of Toronto and Kingston did itself honour in electing that gentleman to preside over its deliberations as Moderator. The Professor's well-known modesty impelled him to ask the withdrawal of his name, but the Synod unanimously declined to do this. We have no doubt his knowledge of Church law will stand him in good stead during the meeting of Synod, and enable him to conduct the business promptly and expeditiously.

THE SEAT OF GOVERNMENT.—An old resident informs us that when the seat of Government was at Kingston the attacks of the Whig upon the members and their families were so grossly abusive and persistent that some of them were glad to get away from it. This is a well known fact, and has been frequently spoken of during the last few days.

The oldest stove in the United States, if not in the world, is that used in the hall of the capitol of Virginia, in Richmond. It was made in England and sent to Virginia in 1777.

Medical Examinations.

As we mentioned yesterday the results of the examinations of the Medical Council were made known to the students, and it appears that all the Kingston students passed, only two having orals. The students from Montreal and Toronto were also very successful. The following are the names of those who passed without an oral:

FOURTH YEAR FINALS.—The following M.D.s. were successful in obtaining license—Bennett, Cameron, Clinton, Craig, Davis, Evans, Faulkner, Fraser, Graham, Graveley, Kidd, Kennedy, Kirk, Lewis, Lynch, McArthur, Wilson, O'Brien, Reddick.

THIRD YEAR.—PRIMARY.—Messrs Abbott, R. H., Donovan, F., Groves, Hanna, Henderson, W. H., Horton, N., Hossie, T. R., Hunt, Kilborn, R. F., Lafferty, Wm., Leonard, A. R., McCammon, Jas., Newlands, Geo., Smith, R. W. R., Stark, A., Ward, Geo.

SECOND YEAR.—Messrs Clark, Dickson, Galbraith, Judson, Odlum, Snider and Wilson.

FIRST YEAR.—Messrs. Alexander, Betts, Chown, Coughlan, Coutlee, Day, Dupuis, Empey, Fraser, Grey, Herrington, Houston, Jamieson, Josephs, Knight, Koyl, Lavell, McConnell, McPhaddien, Oldham, O'Shae, Reeves, Reid, Rodgers D. H., Rogers, Service, Symington, Wagner, Walmsley.

Fenian Fancies.

Syracuse Herald:—It is now strongly suspected that the Cimbria's mysterious six hundred are Fenians.

Syracuse Herald.—General O'Neil will probably command the Fenian army through the medium of a medium.

The Buffalo Express learns that several hundred Fenians have been smuggled into Canada labelled "Canned Fruit."

The "scare" was revived last night by the exciting rumours from Ottawa. There has apparently been nothing done yet by the "Finnegans." It was currently reported that the 14th had positive orders to be in readiness, but Col. Kerr has as yet received no intimation of the fact. The excitement, although considerably abated, continues strong.

$15,000,000 of Grit Bungling.

"The present position of the Pacific railway is, that we have spent about fifteen million dollars (half the cash subsidy which Sir John Macdonald proposed to give for the construction of the whole line) and what we have to show for it is: Surveys partially completed; two little pieces of the line (from Fort William to English River, and from Rat Portage to Selkirk) partially constructed, with a gap of 184 miles between; the short branch from Winnipeg to United States boundary graded; some piles of rusty steel rails, and the Nosbing Hotel! Can the Country stand five years more of such blundering as this?"—Owen Sound Times.

THE "REFORM" BRIBERY FUND.—The editor of the Argus is by degrees letting the cat out of the bag in regard to the corruption practised by the Carruthers Party (now the Gunn Party) at previous elections. In yesterday's issue the editor says that he had it from (Mr.) "Gunn's own lips" how Mr Carruthers' funds had been used by his active supporters. It is no wonder Mr Carruthers complained of the manner in which he was bled. There is much force in the statement of the Toronto National, the "Canada First" organ: "Mr Gunn will oppose Sir John Macdonald in Kingston. He is said to be very wealthy. It is somewhat significant that the Reformers who never use money at elections always select their wealthiest men to oppose Sir John."
