American Goods in England.

One day last week a correspondent of the Times brought a great discovery to the notice of that journal in the following letter: "I chanced lately to go into a village shop where cotton goods are sold. On the counter lay a large piece of cotton cloth, or calico, on which was stamped an eagle on a rock, occupying ten inches, with the words, 'This cloth was made in America;' and a second piece, also American, with the name of an English firm as agent, both a penny a yard cheaper than the English of the same, or rather inferior quality." We must say that it takes our "enterprising" contemporaries a long time to find out what is going on in our own country. Their foreign correspondence, as a rule, is excellent; if a Hindoo does not get enough to eat, whole columns are sent about the awful incident from Calcutta; but to events that are happening at our own doors they seem to pay no attention whatever. A fire, in which four persons are burned alive in London, is dismissed in three lines at the bottom of a column, while the submarine telegraph and a force of correspondents are called in to report that a "drunken Cossack has killed a Roumanian peasant at Parapan." There appears to us to be great room for a paper which would condescend to give a little English news now and then. Nothing more important has ever happened in the history of English trade than the threatened displacement of our cotton manufactures by those of America. Yet we have for months looked in vain for a word in the leading journals on the subject. Piece goods from the Lonsdale Mills, of New York State, are now sold in every town in England at a lower price and of better quality than English goods of a nominally corresponding grade, very mysterious! People who go about the world with their eyes shut think that it is. The fact is that the Americans are beating us in our own field—a fact which it may take the political economists and city editors a long time to digest, but which unfortunately, will soon be brought home to us all by the spectacle of thousands of working men thrown permanently out of employment, and the hopeless paralysis of a chief source of our commercial prosperity. The disaster might still be warded off if our manufacturers would only bestir themselves to dislodge their rivals; but they are told by the city editor of the Times and other authorities, that it "is only a passing cloud" and, although they have been told the same thing three or four years, and the cloud has not passed, yet they go on believing it and will presently be rudely shaken out of the fool's paradise in which they have been slumbering. We repeatedly told the public last year through these columns that American manufactured cotton could be bought better and cheaper in London, than the products of the Lancashire Mills. It has taken the Times till July 1878, to find out the same piece of news. How long will it take our contemporary to apprehend its full meaning and significance?—London World.

Sour Grapes.

The indecent haste manifested by the Reform press headed by the Toronto Globe, in charging the New Government with insincerity and with showing a tendency to back down on the Protection question is as absurd as it is untrue. If, as the Reformers state, they are really anxious to see the National Policy tried, why in the name of common sense did they not urge Mr Mackenzie to resign immediately after the elections instead of making excuse for his delay? If, on the other hand, they believe the National Policy will prove a curse instead of a blessing, they should be slow in clamouring for its adoption. It is all very well to cry "Woe, woe," and at the same time charge the new Government with evincing a desire to back down, but it is only sour grapes. The greatest fear which animated the late Dictator and his subordinates, is the fear that the National Policy will prove a blessing instead of a curse to the country. Not for worlds would they have it so, for the prosperity to Canada under its present Government means a long period of wandering in the cool shades of Opposition for the Reformers. Little do they care about Canada's prosperity when the nuts of office are in the scale, if they did they would be slow to charge men with insincerity who have not had the chance yet to prove their sincerity. Gentlemen, possess your souls in patience a little longer and don't bark at mere shadows. It will be time enough for you to cry out when you are really hurt, and please remember that boys in disgrace should be seen and not heard. You have five years hard work before you, in cleansing your own besmirched reputations before you can afford to throw mud at other people. Its all very well to cry insincerity and charge the new Government with sins they have not had the opportunity of committing, but making them black does not make you white. If you are really the philosophers, and the majority of the public the fools you are endeavoring to make them out to be, let others and not yourselves proclaim the fact. Brag is a very good dog but we have heard of better, and it shows very poor philosophy, to say nothing of its bad taste, to make a man of straw yourselves just for the purpose of knocking it to pieces. Have a little patience. We know that nauseous medicines are not palatable beverages, but 'tis only foolish children who kick and scream when their superiors order them. The people of Canada have confidence in the new Government, surely spoiled pets like yourselves might follow so good an example.—National.

The Best Plan.

The most profitable plan for operating in stocks is that of uniting the capital of various sums by combining or pooling the orders of thousands of customers and using them as one mighty whole, which has been done so successfully by Messrs. Lawrence & Co., Bankers, 57 Exchange Place, N. Y. City. By this co-operative system each investor is placed on an equal footing with the largest operator, and profits are divided pro rata among shareholders every 30 days. An investment of $10 would pay $50, making 5 per cent on the stock during the month. $25 would pay $150, or 6 per cent; $100 would pay $1,000, or 10 per cent, and so on, according to the market. Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper, June 29th, says: "The Combination Method of operating in stocks is the most successful ever adopted." New York Independent, Sept. 12th, says: "The Combination System is founded upon correct business principles, and no person need be without an income while it is kept working by Messrs. Lawrence & Co." The firm's new circular (copyrighted and sent free) contains "Two unerring rules for success in stock operations," and explains everything. All kinds of Stocks and Bonds wanted. New Government Loan supplied. Address Lawrence & Co., Bankers and Brokers, 57 Exchange Place, New York City.

The Duke of Westminster writes that his balls are not, as reported by the Architect, of silver, and that they cost under $10,000 instead of $150,000.
