DEAN STANLEY AND THE METHODISTS.

Reception of the Dean in New York

Dean Stanley was last Friday evening the recipient of a most enthusiastic reception at the Methodist Church of St. Paul's, at Fourth avenue and twenty-second street. Long before the appointed hour the edifice was literally packed with ladies and gentlemen, while in and about the chancel were gathered a large number of Methodist bishops and prominent pastors. The chancel was elegantly trimmed with trailing strands of smilax and roses, while just in front of the reading desk was a magnificent bank of rare and fragrant flowers bearing the word "Welcome." The Rev. William L. Harris, D.D., LL.D., presided.

The Rev. Dr. Tiffany, pastor of St. Paul's, first spoke as follows:—My friends, all America has rejoiced at the generous ovation recently paid by the people of Great Britain to our honoured ex President. Such recognition of distinguished visitors is at once the extending of a generous hopitality and the exhibition of a proper self-respect. The example of the mother country is worthy of our imitation, and the opportunity is afforded us by the presence in this country of one of the foremost Englishmen of his day—who is one of the chaplains of Her Most Gracious Majesty the Queen—the widely known and well beloved Arthur Penrhyn Stanley, Dean of Westminster.

While, as citizens, we join with all others heartily in the expression of our pleasure at his presence, as Methodists, we have a very special delight in extending to him this greeting, for he is a loyal clergyman, who has discovered that the Church is larger than the establishment, Christianity is broader than our creeds, even as the Mount of the Transfiguration was grander than the tabernacles men proposed to build upon its crest.

The Methodists "which in time past were not a people, but are now a people" found themselves at the close of the Revolutionary War in this country as holders of an Armenian theology, practically left without church ordinances by the departure of many of the English clergy with the English troops, in fact the Church of England in America was greatly reduced and weakened, and was not in political sympathy with the masses of the people, and the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States was not yet in existence. The organization of a form of church government to meet the exigencies of a new form of civilization was a necessity. We undertook it, and were guided largely by the counsels of an English clergyman, whose devotion to Christ and His cause has never been questioned, whose scholarship to this day commands respect and admiration, and whose practical wisdom has been proved by results which have been wrought out on his plans. A large enthusiasm enters into this greeting because of the public recognition by Dean Stanley of the worth and work of John Wesley, who, under God, was our spiritual father. When the Dean, as custodian of Westminster Abbey, was approached with a proposition to recognize Charles Wesley by a tablet in the "Poet's Corner," he instantly replied, "If Charles, why not John?" and the result was the memorial to both.

We indulge the further hope that such greetings may cement the alliance of Christians on both sides of the sea. The royal standard which protects the Dean bears an emblazoned cross; the flag of our freedom is gemmed with stars. Is it wrong for us to indulge the expectation that English speaking Christians may combine these symbols and the Anglo Saxon of the future may cherish in his heart a cross, the emblem of our common faith, radiant with the stars of our common hopes?

Longing for such a future we are here to-night to greet our guest right loyally, and to express to him our high estimate of his genius, his catholic spirit and his Christian character.

The Rev. Dr. James M. King then presented to the Dean an address of welcome and congratulation on the part of the ministers. The address was elegantly engrossed upon parchment. The presiding officer, at the conclusion of the presentation, introduced Dean Stanley, who was received by the audience standing and with repeated outbursts of applause. The Dean was dressed in the clerical garb of the Episcopal Church, and wore about his neck the collar of the Order of the Bath, of which he is chaplain. After thanking the audience for their reception the reverend speaker said that his reception by the Society of Methodists was due, in a great part, he had no doubt, to the recognition he had been able to make of John Wesley, the founder of the Society. In his remarks, he said he would mostly confine himself to a tribute to that honoured preacher. Some eight or ten years ago he had been approached by the President of the Wesleyan Conference in England, who had asked him if a monument could be erected in Westminster Abbey, in the "Poets' Corner," to Charles Wesley, the sweet Psalmist.

"WHY NOT TO JOHN?"

He had responded by asking "if to Charles Wesley, why not to John?" (Applause.) The monument was erected close to another monument erected in the last century to the memory of the great Congregational divine and poet, Isaac Watts. (Applause.) In referring to a remark of a previous speaker in relation to the consecration of the church edifice, the Dean said that he was reminded of a visit he once paid to the village where Wesley had preached and the churchyard where he was buried. In a conversation with the old sexton he asked who had consecrated the burying ground, and had been told that it was consecrated by the bones of the great man whose remains had been placed there. The speaker said that intending no disrespect to the several denominations; he could say that the founders of the Baptists, Congregationalists, Society of Friends and Unitarians were comparatively unknown; but the name of the founder of the Methodist Society would live forever. He would say, with no disrespect to the eminent Methodists about him, that no one in their society had arisen equal to John Wesley. (Applause.) He was a representative of the much abused eighteenth century, and his life was important in showing that in that century, no doubt in many respects dry and dull, there was a religious fervor which no era before could boast of. John Wesley had a genius for godliness. (Applause.) The Dean then went on to speak of the separation of the Methodists from the Mother Church, and counselled all, no matter to what communion they belonged, to stay with it as long as they could. He trusted that much of the old feeling remained, that the hearts of the Methodists responded to the feeling which the Mother Church still entertained toward them.

"THE PARISH IS MY WORLD."

The Dean then gave an interesting account of the cause of separation, and went to describe some of the characteristic points in the methods of Wesley's teachings which had, he said, an immense value for all Christian churches. In referring to the celebrated words of Wesley, "The world is my parish," he said there was a counter principle which, he hoped, the Methodists would receive, and that was, "The parish is my world." (Laughter and applause.) The Dean then spoke of America, its vastness and beauty, and urged upon his hearers to put down corruption wherever and whenever found.

The Dean was followed by Bishop Simpson, who spoke at length urging the union of all Christian churches against materialism and Roman Catholicism. His reference to Her Majesty Victoria, whom, he said, honoured the world by her purity, was received with immense applause.

THE DEAN'S MOVEMENTS.

To-day Dean Stanley will breakfast at the Century Club. In the afternoon he will meet the Chi Alpha Society of clergymen at the Rev. Dr. Schaff's, and in the evening will attend the reception of the Century Club. On Monday afternoon he will attend the reception of the American Museum in Central Park.—N. Y. Herald, 2nd.

Professor Dupuis' opinion of the above-named Medicine as a CHEMICAL COMPOUND is as follows:

"I have carefully examined the composition of a Tonic Compound known as the STANLEY ETHIOPIC ELIXIR, and have found its ingredients to be wholly vegetable, and of reputed medicinal value. It contains no incompatables, no mineral or other poisons and it might be taken in even abnormal doses without producing serious consequences. I believe it to be thoroughly safe, and reliable, as far as it is a Chemical Compound."

(Signed) N. F. DUPUIS,
Professor of Chemistry, Queen's College, Kingston, Ontario.

We, the undersigned, certify to whom it may concern, that having personally or in our families, used the STANLEY ETHIOPIC ELIXIR referred to by Professor Dupuis in his certificate, cheerfully commend it to the public as being in our judgment an excellent Family Medicine:
